

About the Authors

Patrycja Antosz is a sociologist and a psychologist, currently a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Sociology, Economy, Education and Methods of Social Research at the Institute of Sociology at Jagiellonian University in Kraków. Her research interests concentrate on the subjects of sociology of organizations and decision-making processes. She is a consultant for the Malopolska Translational Medicine Centre (as a part of the project SPIN—Model of innovation transfer in Malopolska) and a sampling expert in for Human Capital Balance project. At the Institute of Sociology at the Jagiellonian University she lectures on quantitative methodology. She is also interested in agent-based simulations.

Betsy L. Barry is the Co-Founder of BDataSmart (<http://technicity.us/bdatasmart/>), which provides business intelligence, marketing research, and compliance investigations using text data analysis and analytics. She holds a Ph.D. in Linguistics from the University of Georgia. She has over 15 years professional experience working on text analysis on large corpora. She can be reached at b3tsyb@gmail.com.

Elisabeth S.C. Berger is researcher and doctoral student at the University of Hohenheim, Germany. Her research interests revolve around the application of qualitative comparative analysis (QCA) to entrepreneurship phenomena, in particular entrepreneurial finance, networks and innovation. She is member of the Editorial Review Board of the Journal of Business Research.

Markus Braun is a start-up consultant and research assistant for the start-up network SAXEED at Technische Universität Chemnitz (Germany) and holds a Ph.D. from the same university. His research interests are partially influenced by his ample consulting work in the start-up area and entrepreneurial finance, entrepreneurial strategy, and business transformation in the entrepreneurial process.

Arnaldo Camuffo is Professor of Business Organization, at the Bocconi University, Milan, Italy. His research appeared, among others, in Strategic Management Journal, Organization Science, Research Policy, MIT Sloan Management Review, Industrial and Corporate Change, Industrial Relations, Industry and Innovation, Journal of Business Ethics, The International Journal of Human Resource Management, European Management Review, The International Journal of Operations and Production Management, The International Journal of Management Reviews. He serves in the Editorial Board of The International Journal of Innovation Management and of the European Management Review.

Arnela Cerić's research interests are in creation of ICT value, application of cross-impact analysis and human resource management.

Petra Dickel is Assistant Professor for Entrepreneurship at the University of Kiel. After graduating from the University of Paderborn and Nottingham Trent University she worked as a brand manager at Kraft Foods and as innovation and strategy consultant. She received her Ph.D. from the University of Kiel on her dissertation on learning processes of academic spin-offs. Her empirical research is primarily based on quantitative methods and focuses on social entrepreneurship, entrepreneurship education and entrepreneurial behavior.

Zuzanna Drożdżak Ph.D. candidate in sociology and public health at the Jagiellonian University in Krakow, Poland; and an expert of the Centre for Evaluation and Analysis of Public Policies. For 2 years she served as a consultant for the Malopolska Translational Medicine Centre (as a part of the project SPIN—Model of Innovation Transfer in Malopolska). Collaborator of the Swiss Tropical and Public Health Institute and member of a Medical Anthropology Research Group, both in Basel, Switzerland. Her research interests concentrate on the subject of social epidemiology, health innovation and Mixed-Methods.

Marcus Ehrenberger Born in 1985. Studies of business administration at the Constance University of Applied Sciences (HTWG). Internships with companies in the international textile industry and music business. Semester abroad at the Michigan State University in Michigan (USA). Graduation as Diplom-Betriebswirt (FH) in 2011; Diploma thesis focused on social entrepreneurship. Since 2011: member of the doctoral program of the HTWG Konstanz and doctoral student of Prof. Dr. Michael Schramm at the University of Hohenheim (department of business ethics). Since 2013: scientific assistant of Prof. Dr. Josef Wieland at the Konstanz Institute for Intercultural Management, Values and Communication (KIeM) and the Konstanz Institute of Corporate Governance (KICG). Scholarship grant from the "Stiftung der Deutschen Wirtschaft" (sdw).

Birgit Felden is founding director of the Institute for Entrepreneurship, Mittelstand and Family Firms (EMF-Institute) at Berlin School of Economics and Law (BSEL). She is professor and course director of the bachelor program for business creation and business succession at the Berlin School of Economics and Law (BSEL). Since 1995 she runs her own family firm and is in the board of directors of other family firms. Her research addresses a broad and hands-on approach on family-firm management, family business government and succession planning. She has created many information tools and platforms over the last years (e.g. nachfolge-in-deutschland.de and the nachfolgewiki).

Philipp Fischer B.A. graduated from the Berlin School of Economics and Law (BSEL) in Business Administration early 2015. His main study focusing was on management of large corporations. Due to his interest in Entrepreneurship he wrote his bachelor thesis in collaboration with the Institute for Entrepreneurship, Mittelstand and Family Firms (EMF-Institute) on brand management in family firms and SMEs.

M. Laura Frigotto is assistant professor in Organization management and theory at the Department of Economics and Management of the University of Trento, Italy. Laura holds a M.A. in Economics and Business from the University of Trento (2001), a (postgraduate) Master in Innovation Management from Scuola Superiore Sant'Anna in Pisa (2002) and a Ph.D. in Management and Business from the Ca' Foscari University in Venice (2007). She was visiting scholar at Stanford University in 2007 and 2012 and at the University of Alberta in 2015.

Jan-Martin Geiger is research assistant at the chair of Entrepreneurship and Economic Education at TU Dortmund University. He graduated in economics and educational sciences and is manager of the Junior Business School. His research focuses on educational processes in entrepreneurship.

Fabrizio Gerli is Associate Professor of Business Organization and Human Resources Management at Ca' Foscari University of Venice, Italy. He is also the Director of the Ca' Foscari Competency Centre and the Scientific Coordinator of post-graduate courses in Human Resources Management. His research has been published in various journals, including: Industrial Relations, European Management Journal, Journal of Management Development, Cross Cultural Management, International Journal of Training and Development. He is also Associate Editor of Frontiers in Psychology (section Organizational Psychology) and member of the Editorial Board of the Engaged Management Review.

Peter Graeff is Professor at the Faculty of Faculty of Business, Economic and Social Science at Kiel University. Prior coming to Kiel, he was an assistant professor at Goethe University, Frankfurt, and Duesseldorf University. He received a diploma in economics and a Ph.D. in psychology from Bonn University. His research focuses on empirical research methods and social capital research in its positive (e.g. social trust) and its negative sense (e.g. corruption).

Michael Graffius M.A. is a researcher at the Institute for Entrepreneurship, Mittelstand and Family Firms (EMF-Institute) at Berlin School of Economics and Law (BSEL). He focuses on various aspects of family business succession concerning communication, brand continuity and tacit knowledge transfer. Over the last years he has established a variety of online information platforms, such as the nachfolgewiki, the nachfolg-o-mat and nachfolge-in-deutschland.de.

Terje Grønning is professor in work, society and learning at the Department of education, University of Oslo. He received his Ph.D. in applied sociology from Ritsumeikan University in Japan in 1992 with the dissertation Human value and “competitiveness”: On the social organization of production at Toyota Motor Corporation and New United Motor Manufacturing, Inc. Grønning has previously worked at the Work research institute in Oslo and at the Centre for technology, innovation and culture, University of Oslo. His research interests include organizational change, organizational learning and innovation processes in the automobile and medical biotechnology industries.

Frank Hartmann is a senior scientist at Technical University of Applied Sciences Wildau. He has a diploma of philosophy from the University of Leipzig and holds a doctorate in philosophy of science. Frank is a leading expert in innovation research, technology assessment and regional development. His current research is in foresight methodology and its application on the future requirements of work in the context of digitalization.

Mohammad Keyhani is an Assistant Professor at the Haskayne School of Business, University of Calgary. He received his doctorate in strategic management from the Schulich School of Business, York University and also has a M.Sc. in Entrepreneurship and B.Sc. in Applied Mathematics from the University of Tehran. He pursues research interests in both entrepreneurship and strategy, studied both theoretically and empirically, with diverse methods. Dr. Keyhani’s work recently published or forthcoming in the Strategic Management Journal and the Strategic Entrepreneurship Journal represents some of the first ever simulation studies of the entrepreneurial market process as envisioned in Austrian economics.

Jochen Koch is Professor of Management and Organization, Director of the Centre for Entrepreneurship and Research (CfER), and Vice Director of the Viadrina Center B/ORDERS IN MOTION at the European University Viadrina in Frankfurt (Oder), Germany. His research interests include organizational creativity, organizational routines and practices, and the theory of strategic and organizational path dependence.

Nicolai Kraemer heads the department of Automotive Security at BMW Group as a General Manager. After earning his Master’s degrees and Ph.D. in computer information systems, he worked for an international management consultancy before joining BMW Group in 2010, initially as head of OEM cooperation, and from 2012 to 2015 as General Manager of Connected E-Mobility. In May 2015 he assumed responsibility for the entire field of Automotive Security.

Ronald Kriedel is research assistant at the chair of Entrepreneurship and Economic Education at TU Dortmund University. He graduated in Human Resource Management and is manager of the tu>startup Entrepreneurship School. His research focuses on entrepreneurship and system competence.

Branka Krivokapic-Skoko's research interests are in the areas of economic sociology, innovation, minority entrepreneurship, applications of the QCA method and Boolean algebra to social sciences, as well as fully integrated mixed methods.

Seweryn Krupnik is an expert in the field of innovation policies analysis. Dr. Krupnik graduated and obtained a Ph.D. as sociologist at the Jagiellonian University. He also studied at Frankfurt University (Germany) and Antioch College (USA). He is affiliated with the Centre for Evaluation and Public Policy Analysis at the Jagiellonian University (Poland). Having been engaged for 10 years in public policy analysis projects, he coordinated many projects focusing on policy evaluation and development. His research interests concentrate on innovation policies and theory based evaluation. In the SPIN project he coordinated the work of the team responsible for diagnosis, SPIN Model development and evaluation.

Andreas Kuckertz is professor of entrepreneurship at the University of Hohenheim, Germany. Within the European Council for Small Business and Entrepreneurship (ECSB) he serves as the Country Vice President Germany. Moreover, he is a member of the board of FGF e.V., Germany's leading academic association for entrepreneurship. His research on various aspects of entrepreneurship, strategy, and innovation has been published in journals such as Journal of Business Venturing, Journal of Business Research, International Journal of Technology Management, Entrepreneurship & Regional Development or Strategic Entrepreneurship Journal.

Andreas Liening is head of the chair of Entrepreneurship and Economic Education and director of the Centre of Complexity Sciences and Entrepreneurship Education (CCSEE) at TU Dortmund University. He is dean of the Faculty of Business, Economics and Social Sciences and head of the tu>startup Entrepreneurship School. His research focuses on complexity sciences in entrepreneurial and educational processes.

Karolina Łukasiewicz is a sociologist specialized in policy analysis. She pursued her Ph.D. in sociology at the Jagiellonian University and master degree in political sociology at Dalarna University in Sweden. She is an expert of the Centre for Evaluation and Analysis of Public Policies. For 2 years she served as a consultant for the Malopolska Centre of Biotechnology (as a part of the project SPIN—Model of Innovation Transfer in Malopolska). She worked in various projects financed by the European Social Fund commissioned by the Chancellery of the Prime Minister of Poland, Ministry of Regional Development or the Polish Agency for Enterprise Development. Currently Karolina is a visiting scholar at New York University.

Christoph Mandl is researcher and doctoral student at the University of Hohenheim, Germany. His research interest revolves around the application of content analytical approaches to entrepreneurship and small business phenomena, in particular entrepreneurial exit and failure.

Laura Marwede M.A. is a researcher at the Institute for Entrepreneurship, Mittelstand and Family Firms (EMF-Institute) at Berlin School of Economics and Law (BSEL). She has worked in several academic research projects with a strong link to business succession in family firms and brand management. She has established many online tools and instruments e.g. the nachfolg-o-mat, the nachfolgewiki and nachfolge-in-deutschland.de.

Alicia Mas-Tur is lecturer in the Management Department at the University of Valencia. She has presented numerous papers at international conferences. She has also published articles and books in international journals including Service Industries Journal, International Entrepreneurship and Management Journal, and Service Business. She is the guest editor and referee for international journals.

Joachim Metzger is a research and development engineer at BMW AG. After earning a Diploma in Industrial Engineering and Management from the Karlsruhe Institute of Technology (KIT) and a Master of Commerce from Macquarie University, Sydney, he was part of the BMW ProMotion program from 2012 to 2015. In March 2015 he joined BMW AG and is working in the area of Connected eMobility. Additionally, he is currently active as a researcher at the Institute for Entrepreneurship, Technology Management and Innovation (EnTechnon) at the Karlsruhe Institute of Technology (KIT).

Dana Mietzner is Professor for Innovation Management and Regional Management at the University of Applied Sciences Wildau. She has managed various research projects in Life Sciences, IT and Creative Industries. Dana Mietzner finished her studies in business administration and gained professional experience in her position as a project manager and business developer in a marketing company. After that, she worked as a senior researcher and project manager at the Centre for Entrepreneurship and Innovation at the University of Potsdam in Germany for 6 years. Her research interest lies in technology and innovation management, strategic foresight with a special focus on scenario building and planning.

Judith Mühlenhoff studied sociology, cultural studies and communication studies at Free University Berlin, Humboldt University Berlin and the University of Glasgow. She is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Potsdam, at the chair for innovation management and entrepreneurship. For her dissertation, she is exploring the role of the cultural environment as a resource driving innovation and start ups. She has worked as user and innovation researcher with a focus on ethnographic methods for firms like Deutsche Telekom and the BBC and holds presentations at conferences like ISPIM or IPDMC.

Arash Najmaei graduated from the Macquarie Graduate School of Management (MGSM), Sydney, with an award-winning Ph.D. in entrepreneurship in 2014. He has an MBA and an undergraduate degree in civil engineering. His research interests include entrepreneurial business modeling and the role of business systems and entrepreneurs in sustainable development. His research publications so far include 10 journal articles, 5 book chapters, and more than 30 conference papers. Dr. Najmaei is currently working as a marketing consultant in Australia. He is also the editor-in-chief of the International Journal of Sustainable Entrepreneurship and Corporate Social Responsibility (IJSECSR) and an adjunct lecturer at the Australian Catholic University (ACU) and the International College of Management Sydney (ICMS) and a research affiliate for the Macquarie Graduate School of Management (MGSM) and the Institute for Sustainable Leadership (ISL).

Gábor Péli is currently associate professor of organization at the School of Economics of Utrecht University in the Netherlands. He earned his university degrees in mathematics, physics, and sociology at the Eötvös Loránd University in Budapest. His research interests include the logical formalization of arguments in organization theory, network representations, and the modeling of market structuration processes. His interdisciplinary contributions involve organizational, economic, and political science aspects. His publications appeared in journals including Organization Science, Social Networks, Sociological Methodology, Sociological Theory, American Sociological Review, Academy of Management Review and American Journal of Sociology.

Belén Ribeiro-Navarrete is graduate student on the International Business programme at the University of Valencia. She has published articles in the Journal of Business Research, Journal of Promotional Management, International Journal of Business and Economics. She is the co-author of a book chapter published by Springer.

Norat Roig-Tierno is researcher at the Polytechnic University of Valencia. He has presented numerous papers at international conferences. He has published articles and books in international journals including Service Industries Journal, Journal of Business Research, and Applied Geography.

Michael P. Schlaile Born in 1985, is a research associate, teaching assistant, and doctoral student of Prof. Dr. Michael Schramm at the University of Hohenheim (department of business ethics). After completing his M.Sc. in International Business and Economics in 2012, he decided to delve deeper into various topics such as the interplay of morality, cultural evolution, and economic processes and agents. During a semester at the Danish Aalborg University, he also developed a keen interest in evolutionary economics, entrepreneurship, and innovation studies. Michael further holds the German degree Diplom-Betriebswirt (DH) in Banking from Baden-Württemberg Cooperative State University. His pre-academia work experience includes forex trading and consulting in a local bank's foreign trade department.

Beth-Anne Schuelke-Leech is an Assistant Professor at the John Glenn College of Public Affairs and Director of Manufacturing Innovation and Policy, Ohio Manufacturing Institute, at the Ohio State University. She earned her doctorate from the University of Georgia.

Christian Schultz is Professor for Business Administration and is the head of the distance learning program of the HWTK Berlin. He has lead numerous research projects in the areas of entrepreneurship research, e.g. entrepreneurial finance and entrepreneurship education for different private and public sponsors. Christian has won the widely recognized Wolfgang-Ritter-Prize for his dissertation thesis on the financing of technology-based firms in Germany. His main research interests lay in the areas of technology entrepreneurship and entrepreneurship education.

Ninja Natalie Senf is a research assistant at the Chair of Management and Organization at the European University Viadrina in Frankfurt (Oder), Germany. Her research focuses on aspiration levels, ambiguous feedback, and creativity in haute cuisine restaurants.

Thomas Steger holds the Chair of Leadership and Organization at the University of Regensburg (Germany). His current research interests include corporate governance and employee ownership with particular focus on the transforming countries of Central and Eastern Europe. He has widely published in journals such as Organization, Journal of World Business, International Journal of Manpower and Baltic Journal of Management. He currently acts as editor-in-chief of the Journal for East European Management Studies.

Jan Strycharz is an economist pursuing his Ph.D. in economics of culture/economics of innovation at the University of Economics in Krakow (UEK). He has developed and led many leadership courses, programs, and trainings referring to the themes of innovation, technology, business models and application of science. He, also, currently serves as a Program Director for the Workshop for Social Innovations Foundation where he developed many research projects. He regularly cooperates with the Centre for Evaluation and Analysis of Public Policies, Papal University in Krakow, or Krakow Technology Park—a regional public body for innovation and entrepreneurship policies. In the SPIN project he performed analytical functions and served as a consultant for Malopolska Center of Biotechnology.

Anna Szczucka Graduated from the Jagiellonian University with M.A. in Sociology and M.A. in Ethnology and Cultural Anthropology. Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Economy, Education and Research Methods, Jagiellonian University. Expert of the Centre for Evaluation and Analysis of Public Policies of the Jagiellonian University, working in projects commissioned by: Ministry of Finance, Ministry of Regional Development, the Polish Agency for Enterprise Development etc. For 3 years she served as a consultant for the Smart Grid Information Centre, AGH University of Science and Technology (as a part of the project SPIN—Model of Innovation Transfer in Malopolska).

Dariusz Szklarczyk Sociologist, researcher and data analyst at the Centre for Evaluation and Analysis of Public Policies, Jagiellonian University in Krakow, Poland; Consultant for the Malopolska Centre of Energy-saving Buildings in the project SPIN—Model of Innovation Transfer in Malopolska). His research interests concentrate on economic sociology, social dialogue, social research methodology and data analysis. He collaborated as research and data analysis consultant in many projects on the part of university, public agencies, business and NGO's.

Orestis Terzidis heads the Institute for Entrepreneurship, Technology Management and Innovation (EnTechnon) at the Karlsruhe Institute of Technology (KIT). After earning his doctorate in physics, he worked from 1998 to 2011 for SAP, initially as an application developer, and later as an assistant to the CEO Henning Kagermann and director for the SAP Research Center in Karlsruhe. In October 2011 he joined the KIT as full professor.

Waldemar Wagner is research assistant at the chair of Entrepreneurship and Economic Education at TU Dortmund University. He graduated in economics and is manager of the tu>startup Entrepreneurship School. His research focuses on complexity sciences applied to economics.

Matthias Wenzel is a senior research assistant at the Chair of Management and Organization at the European University Viadrina in Frankfurt (Oder), Germany. His research activities center on market-shaping processes, strategic change, and digitization.