ABOUT THE EDITORS

Dr. David Anderson is a Professor and the Director of the of Museum Education program at the University of British Columbia (UBC), Vancouver, Canada. His academic work is situated in the fields of Museum Education and Science Education, and he has made contributions to these fields through initiating, reforming and strengthening collaborations between museums, schools and universities. Dr. Anderson's research activities focus on helping museum-based institutions to optimize the experiences they provide their visitors, and to refine the theoretical frameworks through which educational researchers conceptualize and investigate visitor behaviour and learning in museum settings. He is a Japan Foundation, Ritsumeikan and Universitas 21 Research Fellow. His research contributions span the globe, but have had particular impact and relevance for the nations of Asia. E-mail: david.anderson@ubc.ca

Dr. Alex de Cosson is an internationally exhibiting sculptor / educator who has been awarded grants from The Canada Council, The Ontario Arts Council and the BC Arts Council. Alex is a full-time Associate Faculty member in the Department of Curriculum and Pedagogy at UBC. He teaches in Educational Technology and Museum Education at UBC, and was also awarded the Gordon and Marion Smith Award for Excellence in Art Education. Alex believes that creativity is essential for inquiry that leads to learning in informal and classroom settings. His research interests are clustered within arts-based, autobiographical ways of knowing and being; artist-in-residence and museum education programs; and inquiry into informal ways of teaching and learning. He has published in numerous educational journals and contributed chapters to books furthering arts-based research. In 2004 he was co-editor with Dr. Irwin, of A/r/tography: Rendering Self through Arts-Based Living Inquiry, which introduced the now widely used concept of a/r/tography as a research methodology. ## ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Lorenda Calvert is an assistant programmer at Burnaby Village Museum, Burnaby, British Columbia. She entered into a career in museums through a personal interest in history and a passion for people, that led to researching, implementing, interpreting, facilitating and delivering education programs at various museums within the lower mainland of British Columbia over the past four years. She received a Bachelor of History and a Master of Museum Education degree from the University of British Columbia in 2012 and 2014 respectively. Her master's research focused on navigating sensitive topics with children. E-mail: lorenda.calvert@gmail.com

Stephanie Chong is the coordinator of school programs at the Vancouver Aquarium Marine Science Centre, Vancouver, British Columbia. She received a Bachelor of Science (hons.) from Queen's University in 2008, and a Master of Museum Education from the University of British Columbia in 2014. She has worked as an informal science educator for over seven years. Current interests include inquiry-based learning, both in curricular and non-curricular programming in museum settings. She is passionate about increasing science literacy for students, families, and communities, particularly through conservation, stewardship, and citizen-scientist opportunities. E-mail: stephanie.chong@vanaqua.org

Kendra Fehr is the public programs specialist at the Surrey Museum, Surrey, British Columbia – a municipal museum with a focus on local heritage. Within this position she works towards making the museum an active community space. In addition, she has worked as a school art teacher for ten years, and has worked as a studio and gallery educator in art museums for three years. Kendra received her Master of Museum Education from the University of British Columbia in 2014 and her Bachelor of Education and Bachelor of Arts from the University of Saskatchewan in 2001 and 2012 respectively. E-mail: kendrafehr@mac.com

Talya Fuchs is a program coordinator at the Vancouver Maritime Museum. She has worked as a museum educator for eleven years in the areas of arts, heritage, and environmental education. She received a Bachelor of Arts in International Relations and English Literature and a Master of Education in Curriculum Studies (Museum Education) from the University of British Columbia in 2007 and 2012 respectively. Her graduate research investigated the experience of high school students in an artist apprenticeship program at the Burnaby Art Gallery. E-mail: talya@live.ca

Erica Gibbons attended the University of British Columbia, where she completed an undergraduate degree in First Nations Studies and French in 2011. Originally from Toronto, Ontario, she has been living in traditional Coast Salish territory since 2006, where she has developed a profound appreciation for the complexities of contemporary colonial relationships in Canada. Erica received her Master of Museum Education degree in 2014, and continues to contribute to various locally based Aboriginal initiatives through research and community engagement opportunities. E-mail: gibbs.ef@gmail.com

Jennifer Hall is an independent consultant in Whitehorse, Yukon, who works with agencies that consider educational programming to be a significant component of their mission and vision. She is currently advising clients of a software company on projects that involve the use of digital platforms to increase audience engagement of heritage and museum collections. Since completing her Master of Arts in Science Education at the University of British Columbia in 2009, she has specialized in planning, research and evaluation initiatives that relate to informal learning. E-mail: jennifer.hall.100@gmail.com.

Wei Hu is an editor at Coast Mountain Publishing & Media Management Corporation based in Vancouver, British Columbia. Before she moved to Canada she had been a science editor in Shanghai, China for 14 years. Her interest in making current science more understandable to the general public prompted her to pursue a Master of Museum Education at the University of British Columbia in 2014. Her research focuses on how to help working scientists communicate their research to museum visitors. E-mail: way.whu@gmail.com

Mary Ashley Masterson is the coordinator of education and guest services at the BC Sports Hall of Fame in Vancouver, British Columbia. Ashley is a three-time graduate of the University of British Columbia, having completed her Bachelor of Arts in 2006, her Bachelor of Education (Elementary) in 2010, and most recently her Master of Museum Education in 2014. She also holds a British Columbia teaching certificate, and has worked as a special education assistant. E-mail: ashley@bcsporthalloffame.com

Marina Mehai is a secondary science and math teacher who works in the Coquitlam School District, Coquitlam, British Columbia. She completed her Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Education degrees, in 2005 and 2006 respectively, as well as her Master of Education from the University of British Columbia in 2012. Her graduate research combined her passion of science learning and interactive science museums in her investigation of science learning beyond the classroom. She is a lifelong learner who enjoys learning about learning and applying her research in her everyday teaching. E-mail: mmehai@gmail.com

Kate Petrusa is currently the Collections and Exhibitions Coordinator at the White Rock Museum and Archives, White Rock, British Columbia. She holds a Master of Arts in Anthropology, and a Master of Museum Education from the University of British Columbia. Since 2010, Kate has had the privilege of working alongside farmers on small-scale farms in the Fraser Valley, which has deeply informed her academic and museological practice. She has continued to explore museum education through a second exhibition at the BC Farm Museum in 2014, and through a multi-stakeholder exhibition at the New Westminster Museum in 2015. E-mail: kate.petrusa@gmail.com

Nathalie Sienkiewicz has worked as an arts educator at the Art Gallery of Ontario and is currently the Education Lead and Project Coordinator at the McMichael Canadian Art Collection in Kleinburg, Ontario. She received her Honours Bachelor of Arts in Fine Art History and French Literature, and her Bachelor of Education from the University of Toronto in 2009 and 2013 respectively. She completed her Master of Museum Education at the University of British Columbia in 2014. A passionate educator and polylinguist, she has also spent some time teaching in classrooms, museums, and art galleries abroad, in France and in Italy. E-mail: nathalie.sienkiewicz@gmail.com

Karla Smedley is currently teaching Junior Science, Senior Biology and IB Art in a Secondary School in Vancouver. She completed the Master of Education (Focus on Museum Education) program in 2012 and is now applying many of the concepts learned into the classroom environment. Previous to working in the classroom, she worked on a Forest Pathology research project in the interior of B.C and volunteered at an animal rehabilitation centre in Bolivia. E-mail: kmedley@vsb.bc.ca

Pilar Wong currently works at the Museum of Anthropology, Vancouver, British Columbia, as the Education and Public Program Coordinator. She received her Master of Museum Education degree at the University of British Columbia in 2014, and her Bachelor of Arts degree at Stanford University with honors in Comparative Studies of Race and Ethnicity, with a minor in Education in 2011. Pilar has previously worked at the Dallas Museum of Art, Dallas, Texas, and the Cantor Center for Visual Arts, Palo Alto, California. Her current interests focus on encouraging visitor engagement through interpretive models. E-mail: pilarwong@gmail.com

Xiaomin Zhang is currently an education counsellor at the D&J Education Consulting Inc. Surrey, British Columbia. She completed her Master of Education degree in Museum Education in 2013 at the University of British Columbia. Her recent work is planning and organizing extracurricular activities (including volunteer and internship opportunities), outdoor camping and toastmaster sessions for international students from grade 9 to 12, as well as helping international students adapt to North American curriculum and developing new study habits.
