

Nineteenth-Century Major Lives and Letters

Series Editor: Marilyn Gaull

This series presents original biographical, critical, and scholarly studies of literary works and public figures in Great Britain, North America, and continental Europe during the nineteenth century. The volumes in Nineteenth-Century Major Lives and Letters evoke the energies, achievements, contributions, cultural traditions, and individuals who reflected and generated them during the Romantic and Victorian period. The topics: critical, textual, and historical scholarship, literary and book history, biography, cultural and comparative studies, critical theory, art, architecture, science, politics, religion, music, language, philosophy, aesthetics, law, publication, translation, domestic and public life, popular culture, and anything that influenced, impinged upon, expresses or contributes to an understanding of the authors, works, and events of the nineteenth century. The authors consist of political figures, artists, scientists, and cultural icons including William Blake, Thomas Hardy, Charles Darwin, William Wordsworth, William Butler Yeats, Samuel Taylor, and their contemporaries.

The series editor is Marilyn Gaull, PhD (Indiana University), FEA. She has taught at William and Mary, Temple University, New York University, and is Research Professor at the Editorial Institute at Boston University. She is the founder and editor of The Wordsworth Circle and the author of English Romanticism: The Human Context, and editions, essays, and reviews in journals. She lectures internationally on British Romanticism, folklore, and narrative theory, intellectual history, publishing procedures, and history of science.

PUBLISHED BY PALGRAVE:

Shelley's German Afterlives, by Susanne Schmid
Romantic Literature, Race, and Colonial Encounter, by Peter J. Kitson
Coleridge, the Bible, and Religion, by Jeffrey W. Barbeau
Byron, edited by Cheryl A. Wilson
Romantic Migrations, by Michael Wiley
The Long and Winding Road from Blake to the Beatles, by Matthew Schneider
British Periodicals and Romantic Identity, by Mark Schoenfield
Women Writers and Nineteenth-Century Medievalism, by Clare Broome Saunders
British Victorian Women's Periodicals, by Kathryn Ledbetter
Romantic Diasporas, by Toby R. Benis
Romantic Literary Families, by Scott Krawczyk
Victorian Christmas in Print, by Tara Moore
Culinary Aesthetics and Practices in Nineteenth-Century American Literature, Edited by Monika Elbert and Marie Drews
Poetics en passant, by Anne Jamison
Reading Popular Culture in Victorian Print, by Alberto Gabriele
Romanticism and the Object, Edited by Larry H. Peer
From Song to Print, by Terence Hoagwood
Populism, Gender, and Sympathy in the Romantic Novel, by James P. Carson
Victorian Medicine and Social Reform, by Louise Penner
Gothic Romanticism, by Tom Duggett
Byron and the Rhetoric of Italian Nationalism, by Arnold A. Schmidt

FORTHCOMING TITLES:

Poetry and Public Discourse in Nineteenth-Century America, by Shira Wolosky
Trauma, Transcendence, and Trust, by Thomas Brennan

The Discourses of Food in Nineteenth-Century British Fiction, by Annette Cozzi
John Thelwall and the Wordsworth Circle, by Judith Thompson
Royal Romances, by Kristin Samuelian
The Poetry of Mary Robinson, by Daniel Robinson
Beyond Romantic Ecocriticism, by B. Ashton Nichols
Popular Medievalism in Romantic-Era Britain, by Clare A. Simmons
Coleridge and the Daemonic Imagination, by Gregory Leadbetter
Romantic Dharma, by Mark Lussier
Regions of Sara Coleridge's Thought, by Peter Swaab
Jewish Representation in British Literature 1700–1853, by Michael H. Scrivener

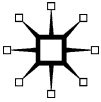

BYRON AND THE RHETORIC
OF ITALIAN NATIONALISM

This page intentionally left blank

BYRON AND THE RHETORIC
OF ITALIAN NATIONALISM

Arnold Anthony Schmidt

palgrave
macmillan

BYRON AND THE RHETORIC OF ITALIAN NATIONALISM

Copyright © Arnold Anthony Schmidt, 2010.

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2010 978-0-230-61600-4

All rights reserved.

First published in 2010 by

PALGRAVE MACMILLAN®

in the United States—a division of St. Martin's Press LLC, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

Where this book is distributed in the UK, Europe and the rest of the world, this is by Palgrave Macmillan, a division of Macmillan Publishers Limited, registered in England, company number 785998, of Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS.

Palgrave Macmillan is the global academic imprint of the above companies and has companies and representatives throughout the world.

Palgrave® and Macmillan® are registered trademarks in the United States, the United Kingdom, Europe and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-349-37965-1 ISBN 978-0-230-10782-3 (eBook)

DOI. 10.1057/9780230107823

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Schmidt, Arnold, 1954–

Byron and the rhetoric of Italian nationalism / Arnold Anthony Schmidt.

p. cm. — (Nineteenth-century major lives and letters)

ISBN 978-1-349-37965-1

1. Byron, George Gordon Byron, Baron, 1788–1824—Criticism and interpretation. 2. Byron, George Gordon Byron, Baron, 1788–1824—Appreciation—Italy. 3. Byron, George Gordon Byron, Baron, 1788–1824—Homes and haunts—Italy. 4. Byron, George Gordon Byron, Baron, 1788–1824—Influence. 5. Italian literature—English influences. 6. Nationalism in literature. 7. Nationalism—Italy—History. 8. Italy—Intellectual life—19th century. 9. Italy—Intellectual life—20th century. I. Title.

PR4387.4.I7S35 2010

821'.7—dc22

2009046584

A catalogue record of the book is available from the British Library.

Design by Newgen Imaging Systems (P) Ltd., Chennai, India.

First edition: June 2010

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

*To my father,
Arnold Alfred Schmidt,
who showed me how to look at art
and to see the world*

This page intentionally left blank

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations	xi
Acknowledgments	xiii
Introduction	1
1 Byron and Italy	11
2 Byron and the Risorgimento	61
3 Crimes and Punishments	93
4 Don Juan	141
Conclusion: Byron's Legacy	179
Notes	187
Works Cited	191
Index	203

This page intentionally left blank

ILLUSTRATIONS

- | | | |
|-----|---|-----|
| 1.1 | “What is this my son Tom.” Print by
R. Sayer and J. Bennett, 1774 | 53 |
| 4.1 | “Royal Recreation.” Print By Isaac Cruikshank, 1795 | 173 |
| 4.2 | “General Swarrow, towing the French directory
into Russia!!” Print by Isaac Cruikshank, 1799 | 174 |
| 4.3 | “Gen’l Swallow Destroying the French Army.” Print
by Isaac Cruikshank, 1799 | 175 |

This page intentionally left blank

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The publication of a first book offers an opportunity to thank the many people who contributed both to it and to my development as a writer.

First, of course, to libraries and librarians, especially the Biblioteca Nazionale, Naples; the Biblioteca Nazionale Centrale, Rome; the Biblioteca del Museo del Risorgimento, Turin; the Biblioteca Marciana, Venice; the Biblioteca Vaticana, the British Library, the libraries at the Victoria & Albert Museum and the University of Reading, the New York Public Library, and the Shields Library at the University of California, Davis. Special thanks to Peter Harrington at Brown University's John Hay Library for sharing his interest in Garibaldi and knowledge of prints, to the Keats-Shelley House, Rome, where I spent many wonderful afternoons amid a fine collection and amiable colleagues, and to the American Academy in Rome, for providing insight into Italian culture and an indescribably beautiful location from which to study it. I owe a particular debt to the Interlibrary Loan department at CSU, Stanislaus, Deborah Childers and Julie Reuben, who with astonishing efficiency and cheerful good humor tracked down so much of the material essential to this project.

The California State University offered generous support in the forms of a sabbatical and a leave, as well as in frequent monies that enabled my research. I am particularly grateful for receiving a scholarship to study Italian through the University Study Abroad Consortium's program at the University of Turin.

I benefited from the camaraderie and substantive conversation of the many conference participants I have had the pleasure of meeting over the years, especially those at gatherings of the American Association of Italian Studies, the Browning Society Conference on Anglo-Italian Relationships, the Byron Society, the California Interdisciplinary Consortium of Italian Studies, and the Victorian Interdisciplinary Studies Association of the Western United States. Special thanks to Marilyn Gaull, who entertained and inspired our group during my time at the Wordsworth summer program in the Lake District, who published one of my first articles, and now my first book.

In many ways, credit for the genesis for this project must go to the National Endowment for the Humanities, especially to the directors of two summer seminars that I consider myself so fortunate to have attended. Jean D'Amato Thomas, Louisiana Scholars' College, and Richard Monti, University of Wisconsin, with their wonderful program "Campania Felix: Nature, Mythology, and the Works of Man," introduced me to Italy and provided guidance for the initiation of this project. John Davis, University of Connecticut, and David Kertzer, Brown University, in their "New Perspectives on Italy in the Age of the Risorgimento" seminar, brought me into the world of Italian Studies, giving me the background and encouragement that made this book possible.

My personal thanks are many as well, beginning with Tom Tolnay, my first editor, who convinced me that I could write and paid me to do so, and to Alan Powers, who encouraged me and made me laugh whenever we met, whether in Naples or in New Haven. Thanks to my professors at the State University of New York at New Paltz, especially Barry Bort, Arthur Cash, Jerry Greenfield, Harry Stoneback, and Jan Schmidt, from whom I learned so much, both in the classroom and out. My professors at Vanderbilt University made my experience there so rewarding, especially Jay Clayton, Margaret Doody, and Valerie Traub. I particularly benefited from work with Paul Elledge and Mark Schoenfield, whose scholarship serves as inspiring models of close reading and critical thinking.

My many Italian friends and colleagues taught me so much, instantly responding to my myriad questions about grammar, poetics, sources, and translating. Paolo Cucchi shared advice and hospitality in Turin and in California; Francesca Rocci offered her knowledge of Italian culture, history, and gelato. Davide Meinero helped me to understand Italian grammar, introduced me to Gozzano, and offered me the pleasure of his good conversation. Luca Gandolfi showed me Milan, as well as his friendship and enthusiasm for Italian literature. I am especially grateful to my teacher, Rita Chieppa, who over the past years gave selflessly of her time editing my Italian writing and improving my conversation, who introduced me to Puglia and fed me good pasta.

My grandmother Margaret and my aunt Kathleen gave their love and told me stories about growing up in the New York of another time. Thanks to my brother Bob for believing in me, and to my mother Anita, who helped me to love literature and culture. I cannot forget my four-legged companions who provided simplicity and relief from human thought, especially Jackie O and Tilney, my hero. My greatest debt goes to Catherine Eva Anderson, my wife, my friend. Words cannot express how lucky I feel to have you in my life.