Acknowledgements

This book has been developed on the basis of a four-year international comparative research project called: The Spatial Dimensions of Urban Social Exclusion and Integration: A European Comparison (URBEX). Eleven cities and 22 neighbourhoods were our targets of research. We are grateful to the European Commission who financed this project in the final phase of the Fourth RTD Framework Programme, in the domain of Targeted Socio-Economic Research (SOE2-CT98-3072).

Many people have played an important role in this project, not least several hundreds of neighbourhood inhabitants and other key persons we interviewed who allowed us to collect the information we required. People back-stage were also highly important to the success of this project. We would like to mention Dick van der Vaart, who has managed the non-scientific part of the programme and allowed us to focus on the academic side; and we also would like to thank Brooke Sykes, who corrected most of the English in the final phase of this project.

The book also owes to the Flemish Fund of Scientific Research, FWO-Vlaanderen. They financed for a 5 year period a scientific network on 'Social integration and exclusion processes and urban policy in Europe' in which all URBEX teams worked together with additional Flemish and Brussels research teams. Most of the book chapters were thoroughly discussed at several meetings of the network in Brussels, Leuven and Naples. We especially thank Yuri Kazepov, Pieter Saey, Henk Meert, Katleen Peleman, Maarten Loopmans, Filip De Maesschalck, Sarah Luyten, Matti Korteinen, Fulong Wu, Ugo Rossi and Jonathan Pratschke for their helpful comments.
