Acknowledgements

This book started life as a doctoral thesis at the University of East Anglia, Norwich (UK), under the excellent supervision of Mr Jon Cook, to whom I should like to extend my most sincere thanks. Thanks also to my friends and colleagues Drs Megan Stern and Patricia Murray for help, advice and intellectual stimulation, and also for taking the time to read and discuss my final two chapters. Three people whom I have never met in person but whose correspondence proved invaluable in consolidating my ideas should also be mentioned: Sarah Lefanu for helping me to sort out exactly what science fiction is; Professor Daphne Patai for some helpful comments regarding the historical connections between writers; and Mrs Isobel Allan-Burns whose reply to my letter requesting information about her close friend Katharine Burdekin helped me to understand the personality behind the writing. In similar vein, I would like to express my gratitude to Caroline Forbes who was kind enough to talk at length to me about her influences and motivations. Thanks also to the librarians at the Science Fiction Foundation at the University of East London (now at Liverpool University) and to my students at the University of North London: in particular, Gareth Parry, Zandra Kuren, Annette Corbett, Ruth Sharman and Carlotta Kaufmann, whose excellent work helped to sustain my own enthusiasm for the subject. Finally, I would like to extend heartfelt thanks to Mrs Patricia Jackson, without whom (as they say) none of this would have been possible.
