

Discourse Theory and Critical Media Politics

Also by Lincoln Dahlberg

RADICAL DEMOCRACY AND THE INTERNET (with Eugenia Siapera)

Also by Sean Phelan

SCOOPED: THE POLITICS AND POWER OF JOURNALISM IN AOTEAROA
NEW ZEALAND (with Martin Hirst and Verica Rupa, forthcoming)

Discourse Theory and Critical Media Politics

Edited by

Lincoln Dahlberg

and

Sean Phelan

palgrave
macmillan

Introduction, selection and editorial matter © Lincoln Dahlberg & Sean Phelan 2011

Individual chapters © Contributors 2011

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2011 978-0-230-27699-4

All rights reserved. No reproduction, copy or transmission of this publication may be made without written permission.

No portion of this publication may be reproduced, copied or transmitted save with written permission or in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, or under the terms of any licence permitting limited copying issued by the Copyright Licensing Agency, Saffron House, 6–10 Kirby Street, London EC1N 8TS.

Any person who does any unauthorized act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

The authors have asserted their rights to be identified as the authors of this work in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

First published 2011 by
PALGRAVE MACMILLAN

Palgrave Macmillan in the UK is an imprint of Macmillan Publishers Limited, registered in England, company number 785998, of Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS.

Palgrave Macmillan in the US is a division of St Martin's Press LLC, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

Palgrave Macmillan is the global academic imprint of the above companies and has companies and representatives throughout the world.

Palgrave® and Macmillan® are registered trademarks in the United States, the United Kingdom, Europe and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-349-32549-8 ISBN 978-0-230-34351-1 (eBook)
DOI10.1057/9780230343511

This book is printed on paper suitable for recycling and made from fully managed and sustained forest sources. Logging, pulping and manufacturing processes are expected to conform to the environmental regulations of the country of origin.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Discourse theory and critical media politics / edited by Lincoln Dahlberg, Sean Phelan.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

1. Mass media—Political aspects. 2. Discourse analysis—Political aspects. 3. Field theory (Sociology) 4. Laclau, Ernesto—Criticism and interpretation. 5. Bourdieu, Pierre, 1930–2002—Criticism and interpretation. I. Dahlberg, Lincoln, 1966– II. Phelan, Sean, 1972– P95.8.D57 2011

302.23—dc23

2011024168

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1
20 19 18 17 16 15 14 13 12 11

Contents

Notes on the Contributors	vi
Acknowledgements	ix
1 Discourse Theory and Critical Media Politics: An Introduction Sean Phelan and Lincoln Dahlberg	1
2 Discourse Theory as Critical Media Politics? Five Questions Lincoln Dahlberg	41
3 From Media to Mediality: Mediatic (Counter-)Apparatuses and the Concept of the Political in Communication Studies Oliver Marchart	64
4 What Does Democracy Feel Like? Form, Function, Affect, and the Materiality of the Sign Jeremy Gilbert	82
5 Ideology and Politics in the Popular Press: The Case of the 2009 UK MPs' Expenses Scandal Wei-yuan Chang and Jason Glynos	106
6 The Media as the Neoliberalized Sediment: Articulating Laclau's Discourse Theory with Bourdieu's Field Theory Sean Phelan	128
7 Post-Marx beyond Post-Marx: Autonomism and Discourse Theory Jack Zeljko Bratich	154
8 Multiplicity, Autonomy, New Media, and the Networked Politics of New Social Movements Natalie Fenton	178
9 Mediated Construction of the People: Laclau's Political Theory and Media Politics Jon Simons	201
10 Mobilizing Discourse Theory for Critical Media Politics: Obstacles and Potentials Peter Dahlgren	222
Index	250

Notes on the Contributors

Jack Zeljko Bratich is Associate Professor of journalism and media studies at Rutgers University. He is author of Conspiracy Panics: Political Rationality and Popular Culture (2008) and co-editor, along with Jeremy Packer and Cameron McCarthy, of Foucault, Cultural Studies, and Governmentality (2003). His work applies autonomist social theory to such topics as audience studies, social media, and the cultural politics of secrecy. He is currently writing a book titled Programming Reality (forthcoming), which examines reality programs (on and off television) as experiments in affective convergence.

Wei-yuan Chang is a PhD Student in the Ideology and Discourse Analysis Programme at the Department of Government, University of Essex. His current research focuses on the logics of enjoyment in tabloid discourse and their articulations with socio-political issues and debates.

Lincoln Dahlberg teaches and researches in the areas of media politics, critical theory, and digital democracy. He is co-editor of Radical Democracy and the Internet (Palgrave, 2007). Lincoln is currently a Visiting Research Fellow in the School of Political Science and International Studies at The University of Queensland.

Peter Dahlgren is Professor Emeritus at the Department of Communication and Media, Lund University, Sweden. His work focuses on media and democracy, using the horizons of late modern social and cultural theory. Most recently he has focused on the Internet and civic identities. Active in European academic networks, he has also been a visiting scholar at universities in Paris, Grenoble, Stirling, South Africa, as well as at the Annenberg School for Communication. His recent publications include Media and Political Engagement (2009), and the co-edited volume Young People, ICTs, and Democracy (2010).

Natalie Fenton is Professor in Media and Communications at the Department of Media and Communication, Goldsmiths, University of London, where she is also Co-Director of the Goldsmiths Leverhulme Media Research Centre: Spaces, Connections, Control, and Co-Director of Goldsmiths Centre for the Study of Global Media and Democracy. She has published widely on issues relating to civil society, politics, and new media and is particularly interested in rethinking understandings of public culture, the public sphere and democracy. Her latest book is New Media, Old News: Journalism and Democracy in the Digital Age (editor, 2010). Her forthcoming book is titled New Media and Radical Politics.

Jeremy Gilbert is Reader in Cultural Studies at the University of East London. He is an editor of new formations and has written widely on music, politics and cultural theory, with publications having been translated into French, Spanish, German, and Portuguese. His books include Anticapitalism and Culture: Radical Theory and Popular Politics (2008) and (with Ewan Pearson) Discographies: Dance Music Culture and the Politics of Sound (1999), and he writes with varying degrees of regularity for open Democracy, Red Pepper, Comment is Free, and Soundings.

Jason Glynos is Senior Lecturer in Political Theory at the Department of Government, University of Essex, where he is director of the MA Programme in Ideology and Discourse Analysis. He has published widely in the areas of post-structuralist political theory and Lacanian psychoanalysis, focusing on theories of ideology, democracy, and freedom, and the philosophy and methodology of social science. He is co-author of Logics of Critical Explanation in Social and Political Theory (2007), and co-editor of Politics and the Unconscious (Special Issue of Subjectivity, 2010), Traversing the Fantasy (2005), and Lacan & Science (2002). His current research explores the contributions of discourse analysis and psychoanalysis to the development of a critical political economy.

Oliver Marchart is a political theorist and Professor at the Department of Sociology, University of Lucerne. His books include Laclau: A Critical Reader (Ed.), with Simon Critchley (2004), and Post-foundational Political Thought: Political Difference in Nancy, Lefort, Badiou, and Laclau (2007).

Sean Phelan is Senior Lecturer at the School of Communication, Journalism and Marketing, Massey University, Wellington, Aotearoa New Zealand. He has a particular interest in the relationship between critical political theory and media studies, and he has published several essays informed by discourse theory. He is the co-editor of the forthcoming collection, Scooped: The Politics and Power of Journalism in Aotearoa New Zealand.

Jon Simons is Associate Professor of communication and culture at Indiana University, Bloomington. Trained in political theory, he published Foucault and the Political (1995) as well as essays on post-structuralist and feminist theory. He has edited three volumes about critical theory, From Kant to Lévi-Strauss (2002), Contemporary Critical Theorists (2004), and From Agamben to Žižek (2010), as well as co-editing Images: A Reader (2006), an anthology about the interdisciplinary study of images. He has published essays about democracy and mediated politics in edited volumes and journals such as Intertexts and The Journal for Cultural Research, edited a themed issue of Culture, Theory and Critique about democratic aesthetics (2009), and is currently working on a project about the images of peace in the Israeli peace movement.

Acknowledgements

This book has its roots in our joint participation in multiple Discourse Theory/Critical Theories Summer Schools at Victoria University, Wellington, Aotearoa New Zealand from 2003 to 2008. Participating in classes taught by Mark Devenney, Alejandro Groppo, David Howarth, Aletta Norval, and Lasse Thomassen played a crucial role in the development of our understanding of discourse theory. Special thanks to Peter Kitchenman, who voluntarily established the Summer School in 2003 and co-ordinated each of its annual sessions.

We would also like to thank the School of English, Media Studies, and Art History at the University of Queensland, and the faculty and staff of the School of Communication, Journalism, and Marketing, Massey University, for their support. Thanks to the anonymous reviewer of the manuscript for their comments and feedback. Finally, we are grateful to Palgrave's Catherine Mitchell and Felicity Plester for providing clear and helpful guidance on the publication side of this project, and to Linda Auld for managing the final stages of manuscript production and Nick Brock for patiently copy-editing the final manuscript.

Lincoln Dahlberg and Sean Phelan
March 1, 2011