ORGANIZING GOD'S WORK

Also by Margaret Harris

ORGANIZING VOLUNTARY AGENCIES: A Guide through the Literature (with David Billis)

VOLUNTARY AGENCIES: Challenges of Organisation and Management (co-editor with David Billis)

Organizing God's Work

Challenges for Churches and Synagogues

Margaret Harris

Acting Director

Centre for Voluntary Organisation

London School of Economics

First published in Great Britain 1998 by

MACMILLAN PRESS LTD

Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS and London

Companies and representatives throughout the world

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

ISBN 978-1-349-39902-4 ISBN 978-0-230-37598-7 (eBook)

DOI 10.1057/9780230375987

First published in the United States of America 1998 by

ST. MARTIN'S PRESS, INC.,

Scholarly and Reference Division,

175 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10010

ISBN 978-0-312-21501-9

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Harris, Margaret, 1945–

Organizing God's work : challenges for churches and synagogues /
by Margaret Harris.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-0-312-21501-9 (cloth)

1. Church polity. 2. Synagogues—Organization and administration.

3. Religious institutions—England—Case studies. I. Title.

BV650.2.H36 1998

254—dc21

98-13513

CIP

© Margaret Harris 1998

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 1998 978-0-333-67221-1

All rights reserved. No reproduction, copy or transmission of this publication may be made without written permission.

No paragraph of this publication may be reproduced, copied or transmitted save with written permission or in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, or under the terms of any licence permitting limited copying issued by the Copyright Licensing Agency, 90 Tottenham Court Road, London W1P 9HE.

Any person who does any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

The author has asserted her right to be identified as the author of this work in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

This book is printed on paper suitable for recycling and made from fully managed and sustained forest sources.

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1
07 06 05 04 03 02 01 00 99 98

To the memory of my father, El Roer

This page intentionally left blank

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
PART I: ORGANIZING CONGREGATIONS
1 Local Churches and Synagogues	3
2 Cause for Concern: Emerging Organizational Issues	23
3 Three Churches and a Synagogue: Four Case Congregations	42
PART II: CHALLENGES FOR CONGREGATIONS
4 Mission Impossible? Choosing Goals and Implementing Them	71
5 King Pin or Facilitator? The Ambiguous Role of Ministers of Religion	92
6 Willing Spirits? The Position of Lay Staff and Volunteers	108
7 Taking Things Gradually? Change, Growth and Organizational Structures	128
8 Serving a Useful Purpose? Dilemmas of Caring	153
PART III: CONGREGATIONS IN PERSPECTIVE
9 An Organizational Perspective on Congregations	173
10 A Public Policy Perspective on Congregations	189
Appendix: Research Approach and Fieldwork	203
Notes	208

Contents

	viii
Glossary	214
Bibliography	217
Index	230

Acknowledgements

The idea for this book was born more than ten years ago when I first realised that churches and synagogues, just like the rest of the voluntary sector, were battling with 'organizational' difficulties. During the time which has elapsed since then I have been supported in my research by numerous people, most of whom I can only mention here in general terms.

I am deeply grateful to those people working in and with congregations who so generously shared with me their time and their insights – the 55 people interviewed for the pilot and main studies, as well as those who allowed me the luxury of wide-ranging discussions at the pre-pilot stage. The perspectives of these many people have not only provided the very bones of this book, but have also greatly enriched my understanding of religious commitment and the work that goes on within English churches and synagogues.

At the London School of Economics, I have been surrounded by academic and administrative staff who have been unfailingly kind and helpful. Howard Glennerster supervised the doctoral research which began this project with tactful and timely interventions. Staff of the Centre for Voluntary Organisation, including Romaine Hutchison, David Lewis, Colin Rochester and Sue Roebuck have, each in his or her own way, encouraged me to present my material with precision and clarity. Special thanks are due to David Billis, the Director of the Centre, who has been my teacher and colleague since 1981. He has provided me with an enduring model of commitment to rigorous and 'usable' scholarship.

During the research process I was stimulated by collegiate criticism from Jay Demerath, Peter Dobkin Hall, Thom Jeavons, Jim Wood and other associates of the Project on Religious Institutions, sponsored by the Program on Non-Profit Organizations (PONPO) at Yale University and funded by the Lilly Endowment. And I was helped by discussions I had with Helen Cameron, Lena Fajerman, Barry Palmer and other members of the Partners in Leadership programme of the Leo Baeck College, London. More recently, Carl Milofsky and other colleagues in the Association for Research on Nonprofit Organizations and Voluntary Action (ARNOVA) have given their time generously in discussing with me the implications of my findings. David Barker has provided support and advice for my voluntary sector research for many years and for this project in particular his guidance was invaluable.

I was proud and happy that my son and daughter, Keith and Ruth, found time to act as my research assistants at crucial stages and to ensure that I was kept abreast of the latest thinking in social science as taught at Birmingham and Cambridge Universities and Goldsmiths College, London. I would like to acknowledge too, the wider circle of friends, colleagues and postgraduate students who spurred me on with regular enquiries about my progress, contributed their own knowledge about work in congregations and generally helped me to feel that this was a worthwhile project.

The last words of gratitude are reserved for my husband, Paul. He has lovingly supported my interest in organized religion and ensured that I had the time and space to write undisturbed.

Finally, I should draw attention to the fact that earlier versions of parts of this book were published as research monographs and in academic journals and that I have benefited from comments made about those papers by colleagues and anonymous reviewers: Care by Congregation: Features and Issues of Organisation Working Paper 15, Centre for Voluntary Organisation, LSE, 1994; The Church is the People: Lay Volunteers in Religious Congregations Working Paper 16, Centre for Voluntary Organisation, LSE, 1995; 'Quiet Care: Welfare Work and Religious Congregations' Journal of Social Policy 24(1), 53-72, 1995; 'The Organization of Religious Congregations: Tackling the Issues' Nonprofit Management and Leadership 5(3), 261-274, 1995; and 'An Inner Group of Willing People: Volunteering in a Religious Context' Social Policy and Administration 30(1) 1996, 54-68.

MH

April 1997