

CHINA AND THE UNITED STATES

CHINA AND THE UNITED STATES
COOPERATION AND COMPETITION IN NORTHEAST ASIA

Edited by Suisheng Zhao

palgrave macmillan

CHINA AND THE UNITED STATES

Copyright © Suisheng Zhao, 2008.

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2008 978-0-230-60848-1

All rights reserved.

First published in 2008 by PALGRAVE MACMILLAN® in the US—a division of St. Martin's Press LLC, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

Where this book is distributed in the UK, Europe and the rest of the world, this is by Palgrave Macmillan, a division of Macmillan Publishers Limited, registered in England, company number 785998, of Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS.

Palgrave Macmillan is the global academic imprint of the above companies and has companies and representatives throughout the world.

Palgrave® and Macmillan® are registered trademarks in the United States, the United Kingdom, Europe and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-349-37547-9

ISBN 978-0-230-61609-7 (eBook)

DOI 10.1057/9780230616097

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

China and the United States : cooperation and competition in northeast Asia / edited by Suisheng Zhao.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

1. United States—Foreign relations--China.
2. China—Foreign relations—United States.
3. United States—Foreign economic relations—China.
4. China—Foreign economic relations—United States.
5. International cooperation—Case studies.
6. Competition—United States.
7. Competition—China.
8. East Asia—Politics and government.
9. East Asia—Economic conditions. I. Zhao, Suisheng, 1954—

E183.8.C5C4634 2008

327.73051—dc22

2008015073

A catalogue record of the book is available from the British Library.

Design by Scribe Inc.

First edition: November 2008

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

Transferred to Digital Printing 2011

To Yi, Lillian, Sandra, and Justinian

CONTENTS

About the Editor and Contributors	ix
Introduction	1
Suisheng Zhao
1 The Transformation of U.S.–China Relations	9
Suisheng Zhao
2 China’s Rise and the Durability of U.S. Leadership in Asia	33
Robert Sutter
3 U.S. Domestic Politics and the China Policy Rollercoaster	61
Robert M. Hathaway
4 The Worldviews of Chinese Leadership and Sino–U.S. Relations	81
Chien-min Chao and Chih-Chia Hsu
5 The Japan Factor in U.S.–China Relations	107
Steven I. Levine
6 The Russian Factor in U.S.–China Relations	123
Christopher Marsh and Lowell Dittmer
7 The North Korea Nuclear Crisis and U.S.–China Cooperation	143
Bonnie S. Glaser and Liang Wang
8 The Taiwan Factor in U.S.–China Relations	171
John F. Copper
Index	193

ABOUT THE EDITOR AND CONTRIBUTORS

THE EDITOR

Suisheng Zhao is Professor and Executive Director of the Center for China–U.S. Cooperation and the Institute of U.S.–East Asia Cooperation at Graduate School of International Studies, University of Denver; founder and editor of the Journal of Contemporary China; a member of the Board of Governors of the U.S. Committee of the Council for Security Cooperation in the Asia Pacific (USCSCAP); a member of National Committee on U.S.–China Relations; a Research Associate at the Fairbanks Center for East Asian Research in Harvard University; and a jianzhi professor at Beijing University, Renmin University and Fudan University. A Campbell National Fellow at Hoover Institution of Stanford University, he was Associate Professor of Political Science/International Studies at Washington College in Maryland, and Associate Professor of Government/East Asian Politics at Colby College in Maine. He received a PhD degree in political science from the University of California, San Diego; a MA degree in Sociology from the University of Missouri; and a MA degree in economics from Peking University. He is the author and editor of nine books. His most recent books are China-U.S. Relations Transformed: Perspectives and Strategic Interactions (Routledge, 2008); Debating Political Reform in China: Rule of Law versus Democratization (M. E. Sharpe, 2006); A Nation-State by Construction: Dynamics of Modern Chinese Nationalism (Stanford University Press, 2004); Chinese Foreign Policy: Pragmatism and Strategic Behavior (M. E. Sharpe, 2003); China and Democracy: Reconsidering the Prospects for a Democratic China (Routledge, 2000); Across the Taiwan Strait: Mainland China, Taiwan, and the Crisis of 1995–96 (Routledge, 1999). His articles have appeared in Political Science Quarterly, The Wilson Quarterly, Washington Quarterly, International Politik, The China Quarterly, World Affairs, Asian Survey, Asian Affairs, Journal of Democracy, Pacific Affairs, Communism and Post-Communism Studies, Problems of Post-Communism, Issues and Studies, and elsewhere.

CONTRIBUTORS

Chien-min Chao is Professor and Director of Sun Yat-sen Graduate Institute of Social Sciences and Humanities at National Chengchi University. He has been a visiting distinguished professor at George Washington University, and visiting teaching professor at University of Wisconsin, Madison. He has won a variety of research and publication awards. He has written and edited eight books, including Lee Teng-hui's Legacy: Democratic Consolidation and Foreign Relations (M. E. Sharpe, 2002); Rethinking the Chinese State: Strategies, Society, and Security (Routledge, 2001); The ROC on the Threshold of the 21st Century: A Paradigm Reexamined (University of Maryland, 1999); Cross-strait Relations and Taiwan's Foreign Policies (Taipei, 2000); An Analysis to Contemporary Chinese Politics (Wunan, 1997); Taiwan and Mainland China: Relations and Foreign Competition (Yeh-yeh, 1992); Authoritarian Politics (Youshi, 1994). Dr. Chao has also produced over one hundred articles in academic journals such as Asian Survey, China Quarterly, Journal of Contemporary China, Pacific Affairs, Issues & Studies, Chinese Law and Government, and Zhongguo dalu yanjiu, among others, and book chapters.

John F. Copper is the Stanley J. Buckman Distinguished Professor of International Studies at Rhodes College in Memphis, Tennessee. Dr. Copper is the author of more than twenty books on Asia and international affairs. In addition, he has written several monographs, edited one book, coedited one book, and cotranslated two books. He has also contributed to more than forty books and has published over seventy articles in academic journals and magazines. A number of his public addresses have been published. Professor Copper has testified several times before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee and its Sub-committee on Asia and Pacific Affairs. Dr. Copper was a member of the Board of Governors of the East West Center (an appointment made by the White House and the Secretary of State) from 1983 to 1989. He is currently on the Board of Directors of the American Association for Chinese Studies, and is a member of the editorial board of the journal Asian Affairs. Professor Copper is listed in Who's Who in the World, Who's Who in America, Men of Achievement, Contemporary Authors, Annual Guide to Public Policy Experts, and Who's Who in Asian Studies. In 1997, Dr. Copper was the recipient of the International Communications Award. Professor Copper has spent more than thirteen years in Asia teaching and doing research.

Lowell Dittmer received his PhD from the University of Chicago in 1971. His scholarly expertise is the study of contemporary China. He teaches courses on contemporary China, Northeast Asia, and the Pacific Rim. His current research interests include a study of the impact of reform on Chinese Communist authority, a survey of patterns of informal politics in East Asia, and a project on the China–Taiwan–U.S. triangle in the context of East Asian regional politics. Professor Dittmer's recently published books and monographs include Sino-Soviet Normalization and Its International Implications (University of Washington Press, 1992); China's Quest for National Identity (with Samuel Kim, Cornell University Press, 1993); China Under Modernization (Westview Press, 1994); and South Asia's Nuclear Crisis (M. E. Sharpe, 2005).

Bonnie S. Glaser has served as a consultant on Asian affairs since 1982 for the Department of Defense, the Department of State, Sandia National Laboratories, as well as other agencies of the U.S. government. She is also a senior associate at the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS) in Washington, DC, and a senior associate with Pacific Forum CSIS in Honolulu, Hawaii. Ms. Glaser has written extensively on Chinese threat perceptions and views of the strategic environment, China's foreign and security policy, Sino–American relations, U.S.–Chinese military ties, cross-strait relations, Chinese assessments of the Korean peninsula, Sino–Russian relations, and Chinese perspectives on missile defense and multilateral security in Asia. Her writings have been published in China Quarterly, Asian Survey, International Security, Problems of Communism, Contemporary Southeast Asia, American Foreign Policy Interests, Far Eastern Economic Review, the Korean Journal of Defense Analysis, the New York Times, the International Herald Tribune, as well as various edited volumes on Asian security. Ms. Glaser is a regular contributor to the Pacific Forum quarterly Web journal Comparative Connections. She is currently a board member of the U.S. Committee of the Council for Security Cooperation in the Asia Pacific and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, and she served as a member of the Defense Department's Defense Policy Board China Panel in 1997. Ms. Glaser received her BA in political science from Boston University and her MA with concentrations in international economics and Chinese studies from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies.

Robert M. Hathaway has been director of the Asia Program at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars since 1999. Prior to that, he served for twelve years on the professional staff of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives, where he specialized in American foreign policy toward Asia. Dr. Hathaway has also been a member of the History Staff of the Central Intelligence Agency, and has taught at George Washington University and at Barnard, Middlebury, and Wilson colleges. He holds a PhD in American Diplomatic History from the University of North Carolina. He has authored three books and numerous articles on U.S. foreign policy since 1933. Recent coedited reports include Hard Sell: Attaining Pakistani Competitiveness in Global Trade (Wilson Center, 2008); Fueling the Future: Meeting Pakistan's Energy Needs in the 21st Century (Wilson Center, 2007); and George W. Bush and East Asia: A First Term Assessment (Wilson Center, 2005). He is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and the National Committee on U.S.-China Relations.

Chih-Chia Hsu is Associate Professor at Ming Chuan University, Taiwan. His current researches focus on Chinese foreign policy, Chinese politics, international relations, and cross-strait relations. His recent publications include Chinese Foreign Policy and Sino-American Relations (in Chinese, 2004); Chinese Foreign Policy Decision-Making Patterns in the Era of Deng (in Chinese, 2000); "Foreign Policy Decision-Making Process in Deng's China: Three Patterns for Analysis" in Asian Perspective (1999), and several journal articles.

Steven Levine is Associate Director of the Maureen and Mike Mansfield Center at the University of Montana. He received his PhD from Harvard University and, over a thirty-five-year academic career, has also taught, inter alia, at American University, Columbia University, Duke University, and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he was founding director of the Carolina Asia Center. He is widely published in the field of modern Chinese history, Chinese foreign policy, and East Asian international relations, and has translated several scholarly books from Chinese and Russian into English. He is now working with the Chinese scholar-essayist Zi Zhongyun on her English-language autobiography; with Michael H. Hunt on a book on America's Pacific Wars; and he is translating a new Russian-language biography of Mao Zedong by Alexander Pantsov, incorporating many new materials from Soviet and Comintern archives.

Christopher Marsh is Director of Asian Studies and Director of the Keston Center for Religion, Politics, and Society, as well as associate professor of political science and church-state studies, at Baylor University. His research and teaching interests range from religion and politics to the role of identity in international relations. Professor Marsh's geographical focus is on China, Eastern Europe, and the former Soviet Union. Dr. Marsh is the author or editor of eight books, including Unparalleled Reforms: China's Rise, Russia's Fall, and the Interdependence of Transition and U.S.-China Relations in the Twenty-first Century (with June Teufel Dreyer). In addition, Dr. Marsh has authored over forty journal articles and book chapters, including those published in The National Interest, Religion, State & Society, Nationalism and Ethnic Politics, Journal of Church and State, and Communist and Post-Communist Studies. In his new book project, One Nation Under God, Dr. Marsh is exploring the intersection of ethnic, religious, and state identity in post-Communist societies. Dr. Marsh sits on the board of several journals, and serves as chairman of the editorial board of Demokratizatsiya: The Journal of Post-Soviet Democratization. He also works closely with the Institute on Culture, Religion, and World Affairs at Boston University, where he regularly directs research projects on religion and culture in Communist and post-Communist societies.

Robert Sutter specialized in Asian and Pacific Affairs and U.S. foreign policy in a U.S. government career of thirty-three years involving the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress, the Central Intelligence Agency, the Department of State, and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He was, for many years, the Senior Specialist and Director of the Foreign Affairs and National Defense Division of the Congressional Research Service. He also was the National Intelligence Officer for East Asia and the Pacific at the U.S. Government's National Intelligence Council, and the China Division Director at the Department of State's Bureau of Intelligence and Research. A PhD graduate in History and East Asian Languages from Harvard University, Robert Sutter taught part time for over thirty years at Georgetown, George Washington, and Johns Hopkins universities, and the University of Virginia. His current full-time position is Visiting Professor of Asian Studies at the School of Foreign Service, Georgetown University. He has published fifteen books, over one hundred articles, and several hundred government reports dealing with contemporary East Asian and Pacific countries and their relations with the United States. His most recent work is China's Rise: Implications for U.S. Leadership in Asia (East-West Center, 2006).

Liang Wang received his MA degree from the Elliott School of International Affairs, The George Washington University in 2007. A Young Leaders fellow with Pacific Forum, based in Hawaii, he has worked at Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington, DC and the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences in Beijing. His academic interests include Chinese foreign policy, East Asian international relations, and environmental politics and civil society in China. His writings have appeared in South China Morning Post and The Straits Times. Mr. Wang received his MPhil degree from the University of Hong Kong, and BA degree from Foreign Affairs College in Beijing.