Acknowledgements

The editors and contributors would like to offer their sincerest thanks to Catherine Gray at Palgrave for her enthusiasm, guidance and support throughout. We would also like to thank the two anonymous reviewers, for their careful and considered comments on an earlier draft of this book, which all contributors found enormously helpful.

Notes on the Contributors

Dr Sara Ahmed is Senior Lecturer in Women's Studies at Lancaster University and is currently Co-Director of the Institute for Women's Studies. Her previous publications include Differences that Matter: Feminist Theory and Postmodernism (2000), Strange Encounters: Embodied Others in Post-Coloniality (2000) and (co-edited) Transformations: Thinking through Feminism (2000).

Dr Hazel Biggs is Lecturer in Law at the University of Kent, Canterbury. She has published in the areas of critical, feminist and socio-legal studies, and specializes in medical law as it relates to the beginning and end of life. She is the author of Euthanasia, Death with Dignity and the Law (2001).

Dr Jo Bridgeman is a lecturer at the University of Sussex where she teaches healthcare law and ethics and tort. Her research interest is feminist perspectives on law, in particular concerning the health of children. Her interest in this area is enhanced by her fascination with, and enjoyment of, her children, George and Arthur.

Dr Jo Entwistle is Lecturer in Sociology at the University of Essex. Her research areas are sociology of body, gender, fashion and dress, and she is the author of The Fashioned Body: Fashion, Dress and Modern Social Theory (2000) and editor (with Elizabeth Wilson) of Body Dressing (2001).

Professor Mary Evans has taught sociology and women's studies at the University of Kent since 1971. Amongst her work are studies of Jane Austen and Simone de Beauvoir. Her book on Love will be published in 2002 and she is currently working on a book about changing perceptions of morality.

Emily Jackson is a lecturer in the law department at the London School of Economics. She is the author of Regulating Reproduction: Law, Technology and Autonomy (2001).

Dr Ellie Lee teaches sociology at the University of Southampton. Her research investigates the construction of social problems and social policy, especially in the area of fertility and reproduction. She has published many articles and papers about the legal and social regulation of abortion and contraception and is the editor of Abortion Law and Politics Today (2000).

David Morgan is a Senior Lecturer in Sociology at the University of Kent where he teaches the sociology of medicine and social theory. His current research is on the concept of 'treatability' in medical practice.

Professor Janet Sayers teaches sex, gender, and psychoanalysis in the School of Social Policy, Sociology, and Social Research at the University of Kent. Her books include Mothering Psychoanalysis (1991), Freudian Tales (1996), and Kleinians (2000).

Dr Sally Sheldon teaches law at Keele University. Her publications include Beyond Control: Medical Power and Abortion Law (1997) and numerous articles dealing with health care law and ethics, and feminist legal theory. With Michael Thomson, she is co-editor of Feminist Perspectives on Health Care Law (1998).

Dr Kylie Stephen gained a doctorate in feminist theory and political science from the University of Queensland (Australia). She taught women's studies at the University of Kent, worked for the Feminist Legal Research Unit at the University of Liverpool, and currently works in the Women and Equality Unit of the UK Government Cabinet Office (UK Government).

Dr Carol Thomas is a Senior Lecturer in Applied Social Science at Lancaster University. She has published widely in the field of disability studies as well as in the sociology of health and illness. She is the author of Female Forms: Experiencing and Understanding Disability (1999).
