THE AFRICANIST AESTHETIC IN GLOBAL HIP-HOP

THE AFRICANIST
AESTHETIC IN GLOBAL
HIP-HOP POWER MOVES

HALIFU OSUMARE

palgrave macmillan

THE AFRICANIST AESTHETIC IN GLOBAL HIP-HOP

© Halifu Osumare, 2007.

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2007 978-1-4039-7630-7

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be used or reproduced in any manner whatsoever without written permission except in the case of brief quotations embodied in critical articles or reviews.

First published in 2007 by

PALGRAVE MACMILLAN™

175 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10010 and

Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire, England RG21 6XS

Companies and representatives throughout the world.

PALGRAVE MACMILLAN is the global academic imprint of the Palgrave Macmillan division of St. Martin's Press, LLC and of Palgrave Macmillan Ltd. Macmillan® is a registered trademark in the United States, United Kingdom and other countries. Palgrave is a registered trademark in the European Union and other countries.

ISBN 978-0-230-60961-7

ISBN 978-1-137-05964-2 (eBook)

DOI 10.1007/978-1-137-05964-2

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Osumare, Halifu.

The Africanist aesthetic in global hip-hop : power moves /
by Halifu Osumare.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

1. Rap (Music)—Social aspects. 2. Rap (Music)—Political aspects.
3. Hip-hop—Influence. 4. Intercultural communication. I. Title.

ML3918.R37O88 2007

782.421649—dc22

2006049846

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

Design by Newgen Imaging Systems (P) Ltd., Chennai, India.

First edition: February 2007

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

Transferred to digital printing in 2007.

*For Baba Ochosi and Yeye Oya for always keeping me pointed in the right direction, and the ancestors
who I know were always looking over my shoulders,*

*for the hip-hop generation who is inheriting the twenty-first century
&
for those who will come afterwards to continue the beat in new forms*

CONTENTS

Illustrations	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction: Power Moves from the Hip-Hop Nation to the Hip-Hop Globe	1
1. Phat Beats, Dope Rhymes, and Def Moves: The Africanist Aesthetic Meets the Hip-Hop Globe	21
2. Beat Streets in the Global Hood: Hip-Hop's Connective Marginalities	61
3. Props to the Local Boyz: Hip-Hop Culture in Hawai'i	105
4. "It's All About the Benjamins": Postmodernism and Hip-Hop's Appropriation	149
Notes	181
Bibliography	203
Index	213

ILLUSTRATIONS

1.1	Hip-Hop's Two-Pronged Bodily Text	57
1.2	TeN's B-Boying Style	59
2.1	Diagram of Connective Marginalities of Global Hip-Hop	69
2.2	1995 New York Times Front Page: Hammer Performing at Russian Political Rally	75
2.3	The So-Called Jiggers of Japan	95
2.4	Non-Jigger Japanese Hip-Hoppers	97
3.1	Hawaiian Islands in the Northern Pacific Geographically Connecting the Pacific Rim, U.S. Mainland, and Polynesia	106
3.2	Kutmaster Spaz at Work	123
3.3	Partial List of Mainland Rap Artists Who Performed in Honolulu (1987–99)	126
3.4	Ku'e CD Cover by Sudden Rush	143

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I AM DEEPLY APPRECIATIVE for the heartfelt sharing that the hip-hop community in various locations gave to me during this research project. B-boys and girls who are truly “down” with the culture exhibited a deep love for their lifestyle. I have tried to capture some of what the b-boys, emcees, and deejays of Hawai‘i, in particular, shared regarding their engagement of life through hip-hop culture. I want especially to thank Kutmaster Spaz, TeN, Jason Frasco, Don Kawa‘auhau, Skill-Roy, Strategy, Orlando Smith, Pablo Rivera, Phil Lollhene, apart from many others.

This book is an extensive revision of my doctoral dissertation, and though my committee is now far removed from this current text, they still deserve recognition for their initial belief and aid in its foundation as a PhD dissertation. The Department of American Studies at the University of Hawai‘i at Manoa deserves recognition for supporting this type of research, particularly Drs. Mark Helbling, David Stannard, and David Bertelson. My dear friend Dr. Kathryn Takara, then with the Ethnic Studies Department, was also a vital contributor to the original text. This book would not be what it is today without the guidance and mentorship of Dr. VèVè Clark of the University of California, Berkeley’s African American Studies Department. Her “talking back” process of editing got me through many moments of mental inertia. Finally regarding the original text, I must thank The Hawai‘i Committee for the Humanities for the grant to conduct the high school research exhibited in chapter 3, as well as Pahoia High on the Big Island and Castlemont High in Oakland for opening their schools and sharing their students for my study.

It takes assistance from competent editors and academic colleagues to turn a dissertation into a book, and to this end, I must first thank the staff at Palgrave Macmillan for their recognition of this work and the speed with which they went about moving the text through the process. I have particular admiration for my editor Gabriella Pearce and her assistant Joanna Mericles, as well as the copy editor Maran Elancheran. I also want to thank Brenda Dixon Gottschild for her encouragement and Mark Anthony Neal who supported my presentations of several theoretical perspectives in this book at American Studies and other conferences throughout the years. I also give thanks to my UC Davis student, Anthony Pineda, who helped tremendously with the bibliography.

Every great endeavor has many behind-the-scenes supporters from one's personal life who deserve heartfelt acknowledgment. Susheel Bibbs, my dear friend and editor par excellence, gave many selfless hours to the manuscript. My daughter, Bolade Chinue Oyinkola, was a staunch supporter on a daily basis. Others who are to be thanked are Lily Chan Harris, Luisah Teish (Chief Yeye Fajembola Fatunmise), Francis Awe, and Gladys Crampton. Books, in the end, are group efforts.