ACKNOWLEDGMENTS ~

Many people aided me in the writing of this book. Marilyn Gaull, in her editorial role, offered tireless support and showed infinite patience in bringing it to press. My sincere thanks are due also to Karl Kroeber and David Simpson for their great encouragement, careful reading (and re-reading) of the manuscript, and always pertinent advice. Others who read part or all of the manuscript in draft versions, and offered indispensable help, were Martin Meisel, Jonathan Crary, William Galperin, Nick Roe, Anna Brickhouse, and Laura Engel. I likewise owe a debt of gratitude to David Ferris and Andreas Huyssen, whose inspiration was critical to my development of this study at its embryonic stages. At Palgrave, my thanks go to Kristi Long; her enthusiasm and professional acuity has made the road to publication mercifully smooth. On a personal note, I am deeply grateful to my family in Australia for their unstinting support, and to my wife, Nancy Castro, without whom I could never have enjoyed the requisite good health, of both body and mind, to finish this book. My debts to her are beyond measure.

To Nancy
... happy changes in emphatic dreams
