Privilege, Agency and Affect

This page intentionally left blank

Privilege, Agency and Affect

Understanding the Production and Effects of Action

Claire Maxwell

Institute of Education, University of London, UK

and

Peter Aggleton

The University of New South Wales, Australia

palgrave
macmillan

Selection and editorial matter © Claire Maxwell and Peter Aggleton 2013
Individual chapters © Respective authors 2013
Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2013 978-1-137-29262-9

All rights reserved. No reproduction, copy or transmission of this publication may be made without written permission.

No portion of this publication may be reproduced, copied or transmitted save with written permission or in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, or under the terms of any licence permitting limited copying issued by the Copyright Licensing Agency, Saffron House, 6–10 Kirby Street, London EC1N 8TS.

Any person who does any unauthorized act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

The authors have asserted their rights to be identified as the authors of this work in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

First published 2013 by
PALGRAVE MACMILLAN

Palgrave Macmillan in the UK is an imprint of Macmillan Publishers Limited, registered in England, company number 785998, of Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS.

Palgrave Macmillan in the US is a division of St Martin's Press LLC, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

Palgrave Macmillan is the global academic imprint of the above companies and has companies and representatives throughout the world.

Palgrave® and Macmillan® are registered trademarks in the United States, the United Kingdom, Europe and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-349-45096-1 ISBN 978-1-137-29263-6 (eBook)
DOI 10.1057/9781137292636

This book is printed on paper suitable for recycling and made from fully managed and sustained forest sources. Logging, pulping and manufacturing processes are expected to conform to the environmental regulations of the country of origin.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

A catalog record for this book is available from the Library of Congress.

Typeset by MPS Limited, Chennai, India.

Contents

Notes on Contributors	vii
Introduction: Privilege, Agency and Affect – Understanding the Production and Effects of Action Claire Maxwell and Peter Aggleton	1
Part I Privilege, Emotions and Reproduction Through Elite Education
1 The Libidinal Economy of the Globalising Elite School Market Jane Kenway, Johannah Fahey and Aaron Koh	15
2 The Sense of Entitlement Rubén Gaztambide-Fernández, Kate Cairns and Chandni Desai	32
3 Elite School Capitals and Girls' Schooling: Understanding the (Re)production of Privilege through a Habitus of 'Assuredness' Joan Forbes and Bob Lingard	50
Part II Agency and Affect In and Through Higher Education
4 The Space of Academia: Privilege, Agency and the Erasure of Affect Sue Clegg	71
5 Institutional Accountability and Intellectual Authority: Unconscious Fantasies and Fragile Identifications in Contemporary Academic Practice Claudia Lapping	88
6 Privilege, Agency and Affect in the Academy: Who Do You Think You Are? Valerie Hey	106
Part III Privilege, Dominance and Hierarchy Between Families and Communities
7 'Mumsnetiquette': Online Affect within Parenting Culture Tracey Jensen	127
8 Regenerational Selves and Regional 'Resilience': Agency, Entitlement and Privilege in the North East of England Yvette Taylor	146

Part IV Agency, Privilege and Social Justice

- 9 The White Middle Classes and Urban Comprehensive Schools:
Ambivalences and Anxieties of Privilege 167
Diane Reay
- 10 Negotiating Privilege through Social Justice Efforts 185
Adam Howard
- 11 Gender on Class Journeys 202
Harriet Bjerrum Nielsen

Part V End Notes

- 12 Feeling Rules, Atmospheres and Affective Practice: Some Reflections on the Analysis of Emotional Episodes 221
Margaret Wetherell
- 13 Privileging and Affecting Agency 240
Laura M. Ahearn
- 14 Privilege, Agency and Affect: Moving Further Debate 248
Claire Maxwell and Peter Aggleton
- Index* 258

Notes on Contributors

Peter Aggleton is Strategic Professor in Education and Health in the Centre for Health and Social Research at the University of New South Wales, Australia. He holds visiting professorial positions in the UK and in Norway. He edits three major journals (Culture, Health & Sexuality, Sex Education and the Health Education Journal). Together with Sally Power (Cardiff University, UK) and Michael Reiss (Institute of Education, University of London, UK), he also edits the prestigious Foundations and Futures of Education series of books.

Laura M. Ahearn is an associate professor of Linguistic and Cultural Anthropology in the Department of Anthropology at Rutgers University, USA. Her research focuses on agency, gender, language and social change in Nepal. She is the author of Invitations to Love: Literacy, Love Letters, and Social Change in Nepal and Living Language: An Introduction to Linguistic Anthropology, and is the general editor of the Anthropology of Language Series.

Harriet Bjerrum Nielsen is Professor of Gender Studies and Education at The Centre for Gender Research, University of Oslo. Her main research areas are gender socialisation, gender identity formation and gender constructions among children and adolescents. She has authored eight books and a large number of articles. Among her publications in English are the books Psychological Gender and Modernity with Monica Rudberg and Gender in Time (forthcoming).

Kate Cairns is a postdoctoral fellow in the Department of Sociology at the University of Toronto, Canada. Her research brings an interdisciplinary approach to questions of power and subjectivity, drawing on feminist theory, the sociology of education, cultural studies and critical geography. Kate's work has appeared in journals such as Gender & Society, Gender and Education, Ethnography and Education and The Canadian Geographer.

Sue Clegg is Emeritus Professor of Higher Education Research at Leeds Metropolitan University, UK, where she was Head of the Centre for Research into Higher Education. She is the editor of the journal Teaching in Higher Education. Her research is informed by critical realism and feminist theory and topics include academic identity, HE pedagogy and policy, and the mediation of policy into practice.

Chandni Desai is a doctoral candidate at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education of the University of Toronto, Canada. Her research interests include cultural studies, cultural resistance, critical race theory, social movements, anticolonial thought and decolonisation, feminist praxis and the dynamics of solidarity.

Johannah Fahey is a research fellow in the Faculty of Education at Monash University, Australia. Her research interests focus on education and global studies, and are informed by her expertise in cultural studies. Her most recent co-edited book (with Jane Kenway) is Globalising the Research Imagination. She is currently working on a new co-edited book called Social Aesthetics of Elite Schools: The Sensory Dynamics of Privilege.

Joan Forbes is a reader in the School of Education at the University of Aberdeen, UK. Her most recent book is The Transformation of Children's Services: Examining and Debating the Complexities of Inter/Professional Working. Her research interests focus on practitioner knowledges and identities, gender and education, and schools and social capital.

Valerie Hey is a professor of education at the University of Sussex, UK. Her research interests have been inspired by her social and intellectual biography – transdisciplinary in scope – and involve the approaches of feminist theory, cultural studies and sociology.

Rubén Gaztambide-Fernández is an associate professor in the Department of Curriculum, Teaching and Learning at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education of the University of Toronto, Canada. His research focuses on processes of identification within the context of secondary schools, most recently in specialised arts programmes in Canada and the United States. He is the author of The Best of the Best: Becoming Elite at an American Boarding School.

Adam Howard is an associate professor of education at Colby College in Waterville, Maine, USA. He is co-editor (with Rubén Gaztambide-Fernández) of Educating Elites: Class Privilege and Educational Advantage and is the author of Learning Privilege: Lessons of Power and Identity in Affluent Schooling. His research interests include elite adolescents and young adults and the educational institutions they occupy.

Tracey Jensen is a senior lecturer in the Department of Sociology and Social Policy at the University of East London, UK. Her research interests focus on the cultural politics of parenting, social class and social inequalities, emotional capitalism and happiness science.

Jane Kenway is an ARC professorial fellow, a professor in the Faculty of Education at Monash University, Australia, and an elected fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences, Australia. Her research expertise is in socio-cultural studies of education in the context of wider social and cultural change. Recent jointly written books include Masculinity beyond the Metropolis and Haunting the Knowledge Economy. Her most recent edited book (with Johanna Fahey) is Globalising the Research Imagination. She currently leads a multi-national five-year research project called 'Elite Independent Schools in Globalising Circumstances: A Multi-Sited Global Ethnography'.

Aaron Koh is an associate professor in the Division of English Language & Literature, National Institute of Education, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. He is the author of Tactical Globalization: Learning from the Singapore Experiment, and also the co-founding editor of a new book series entitled Cultural Studies and Transdisciplinarity in Education.

Claudia Lapping is a senior lecturer in the Department of Culture, Communication and Media at the Institute of Education, University of London, UK. Her main research interests are the sociology of knowledge and the use of psychoanalysis within empirical social research.

Bob Lingard is a professorial research fellow in the School of Education at the University of Queensland, Australia. His most recent book is Politics, Policies and Pedagogies in Education. His research interests include education policy, gender and schooling, and school reform.

Claire Maxwell is a senior lecturer in the Sociology of Education in the Department of Humanities and Social Sciences at the Institute of Education, University of London, UK. Her research interests focus on the concept of agency, the private education schooling sector and elite families' processes of cultivation and reproduction. Together with Peter Aggleton, she is leading an ESRC supported study entitled 'Top Girls: Middle Class Privilege and Agentic Practice'.

Diane Reay is a professor of education at the University of Cambridge, UK, with particular interests in social justice issues in education, Pierre Bourdieu's social theory and cultural analyses of social class. She has researched extensively in the areas of social class, gender and ethnicity across primary, secondary and post-compulsory stages of education. Her most recent book (with Gill Crozier and David James) is White Middle Class Identities and Urban Schooling.

Yvette Taylor is Professor in Social and Policy Studies and Head of the Weeks Centre for Social and Policy Research, London South Bank University, UK. She has held a Fulbright Scholarship at Rutgers University, USA. Her recent books include Fitting into Place? Class and Gender Geographies and Temporalities, Lesbian and Gay Parenting: Securing Social and Educational Capitals and Working-Class Lesbian Life: Classed Outsiders. She is currently working on an ESRC supported study entitled 'Making Space for Queer Identifying Religious Youth'.

Margaret Wetherell is Professor of Social Psychology at the University of Auckland, Australia, and Emeritus Professor at the Open University, UK. Her research interests lie in identity and discourse studies. Her recent work has been concerned with developing new concepts for researching affect and emotion.