ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The contributions collected in this volume were first presented at “The Postsecular in International Politics,” an international ESRC-sponsored conference at the University of Sussex held in October 2011. This event was made possible by the generous support of the Economic and Social Research Council (Fellowship Grant PTA-026-27-2645) and the Department of International Relations at the University of Sussex (a particular thanks goes to the then Head of Department, Stefan Elbe), both of which are gratefully acknowledged. The two intense days of presentations, discussions, questions, and conversations, which would have not run as smoothly as they did without the superb organizational help of Joanna Wood, were an exceptional opportunity to delve into the intricacies and complexities of the postsecular in international politics. Therefore, our first thanks goes to all those who took part and contributed to this event, which include our authors plus Mariano Barbato, Pınar Bilgin, Joe Camilleri, Antonio Cerella, Fred Dallmayr, Hilal Elver, İştâr Gözaydın, Cesare Merlini, Adrian Pabst, Mustapha Pasha, Huw Rees, Niamh Reilly, Olivier Roy, and Kees Van Der Pijl—some of whose contributions have appeared in the 2012 Special Issue of the Review of International Studies “The Postsecular in International Relations” (vol. 38, no. 5). Our second thanks goes to our authors for their patience, commitment to the project, and capacity to cope with our numerous emails setting deadlines and suggesting revisions. Finally, a special thanks goes to Yosef Lapid and Friedrich Kratochwil for their keen interest in this project and for welcoming it into their series, and to Farideh Koohi-Kamali and Sara Doskow for their help in bringing this book to publication.
