I am deeply grateful to my advisors, Prof. Dr. Ayse Buğra and Prof. Dr. Leo Lucassen, for their precious guidance and assistance during the entire course of this study. They also gave me support and courage, and inspired me with their wisdom, goodness, respect, and love. I also thank my committee members, especially Prof. Dr. Wim Willems for his valuable recommendations, Assoc. Prof. Cengiz Kırılı for his sophisticated comments and recommendations, Prof. Dr. Asım Karaömerlioğlu for his kindness and personal and professional support, Prof. Dr. Arzu Öztürkmen for her sincere and elaborate ways of sharing personal and professional experiences, and all those who contributed in their own ways.

I appreciate the support from several institutions for my studies and research, including Buvak for the doctoral grants, Tübitak for the support of conference participation, and Marie Curie for summer school participation. I am especially indebted to Assoc. Prof. Andrea Peto and my mentor Dr. Elisabeth Tauber, who encouraged me to question the ways of remembering and representation. Additionally, the help of the secretary Necla Turunç, the assistant Kadriye Tamtekin, the keyperson Leyla Kılıç, and the editor Kathryn Kranzler at the Atatürk Institute meant a lot to me and this study.

In the process of finalizing my study, I gathered material, informative, professional, and emotional supports from several people. In an oral research project like this study, it is not possible to include all the people engaged in the study. I am indebted to my narrators, who sincerely opened their hearts and minds, and also the ones who maintained their silence. The townspeople of Bayramiç are the main source of this study. I am grateful for their precious help. Among them, Ahmet Somalı, Ayşe Somalı, Rabia, Demir Karabaş, Medihan, Emine, Sadık, Fethiye, and Gülçin and her family especially contributed to my study.

Some of my relatives were sources of information for this study. Among them, I am especially thankful to my uncle Mehmet Dinçer for sharing his valuable experiences, knowledge, and analysis. My aunt Bedia Dincer was also very helpful; she shared her valuable knowledge of the relations between particular townspeople. I am grateful to have had their help and warmth in my life and for this particular study.

I always felt the support and love of my family during this study. I am not sure whether I could have managed to accomplish this task without the psychological support of my mother, Şaziment Özateşler. I am also grateful for the support of my father, Prof. Dr. Mustafa Özateşler, who has always tried to do his best for me. My brother, Alp Özateşler, also encouraged me in his own way. Additionally, almost all my relatives contributed to my study to some extent, especially the Dinçer, Yüksel, Ünlü, Erboz, and Özateşler families. I am indebted especially to my nephew Ömer, my newborn niece Rana, and my five-year-old niece Nehir for the peace, hope, and love that they made me feel about them. I also thank my friends who were there for me even though some could not make any sense of my study. Among them are Onur, Zeynep, Diana, Aslıgül, Sinan, Soner, Ayşe, Gonca, Pınar G., Emre, Nadide, Dilek, Değer, Seçkin, Ertunç, Cihan, Sese, Cenker, Özdemir, Pınar S., and Özhan. I also thank the people, some of whom I met only once, but who listened to my thoughts and feelings about this study. Most people, who were in my life in the process of my research, contributed to this study, directly or indirectly. I thank all of those people who touched my mind and my heart in these years.

Eventually, I am grateful to my beloved grandparents, Saniye Bulut and Mehmet Bulut, who passed away but still hosted me in their house during my fieldwork, accompanied me in my journey, and imbibed in me love, passion, and the belief that everybody deserves equal and peaceful life into my heart.
