Critical Studies of the Asia-Pacific Series

Series Editor: Mark Beeson, Professor of International Politics, Murdoch University, Australia

Critical Studies of the Asia-Pacific showcases new research and scholarship on what is arguably the most important region in the world in the twenty-first century. The rise of China and the continuing strategic importance of this dynamic economic area to the United States mean that the Asia Pacific will remain crucially important to policymakers and scholars alike. The unifying theme of the series is a desire to publish the best theoretically informed, original research on the region. Titles in the series cover the politics, economics and security of the region, as well as focussing on its institutional processes, individual countries, issues and leaders.

Titles include:

Thomas Birtchnell

INDOVATION

Innovation and a Global Knowledge Economy in India

Lindsay Black

JAPAN'S MARITIME SECURITY STRATEGY

The Japan Coast Guard and Maritime Outlaws

Toby Carroll

DELUSIONS OF DEVELOPMENT

The World Bank and the Post-Washington Consensus in Southeast Asia

Aurel Croissant, David Kühn, Philip Lorenz and Paul W. Chambers

DEMOCRATIZATION AND CIVILIAN CONTROL IN ASIA

Giovanna Maria Dora Dore, Jae H. Ku and Karl D. Jackson (editors)

INCOMPLETE DEMOCRACIES IN THE ASIA-PACIFIC

Evidence from Indonesia, Korea, the Philippines, and Thailand

Kelly Gerard

ASEAN's ENGAGEMENT OF CIVIL SOCIETY

Regulating Dissent

Felix Heiduk (editor)

SECURITY SECTOR REFORM IN SOUTHEAST ASIA

From Policy to Practice

Brendan Howe

THE PROTECTION AND PROMOTION OF HUMAN SECURITY IN EAST ASIA

Jane Hutchison, Wil Hout, Caroline Hughes and Richard Robison

POLITICAL ECONOMY AND THE AID INDUSTRY IN ASIA

Lee Jones

ASEAN, SOVEREIGNTY AND INTERVENTION IN SOUTHEAST ASIA

Eun Mee Kim and Pil Ho Kim (editors)

THE SOUTH KOREAN DEVELOPMENT EXPERIENCE

Beyond Aid

Jikon Lai
FINANCIAL CRISIS AND INSTITUTIONAL CHANGE IN EAST ASIA

Jonathan London (editor)
POLITICS IN CONTEMPORARY VIETNAM
Party, State, and Authority Relations

Arndt Michael
INDIA'S FOREIGN POLICY AND REGIONAL MULTILATERALISM

Claudia Tazreiter and Siew Yean Tham (editors)
GLOBALIZATION AND SOCIAL TRANSFORMATION IN THE ASIA-PACIFIC
The Australian and Malaysian Experience

Sow Keat Tok
MANAGING CHINA'S SOVEREIGNTY IN HONG KONG AND TAIWAN

William Tow and Rikki Kersten (editors)
BILATERAL PERSPECTIVES ON REGIONAL SECURITY
Australia, Japan and the Asia-Pacific Region

Barry Wain
MALAYSIAN MAVERICK
Mahathir Mohamad in Turbulent Times

Mikael Weissmann
THE EAST ASIAN PEACE
Conflict Prevention and Informal Peacebuilding

Robert G. Wirsing, Christopher Jasparro and Daniel C. Stoll
INTERNATIONAL CONFLICT OVER WATER RESOURCES IN HIMALAYAN ASIA

Critical Studies of the Asia-Pacific Series
Series Standing Order ISBN 978-0-230-22896-2 (Hardback)
978-0-230-22897-9 (Paperback)
(outside North America only)

You can receive future titles in this series as they are published by placing a standing order. Please contact your bookseller or, in case of difficulty, write to us at the address below with your name and address, the title of the series and the ISBNs quoted above.

Customer Services Department, Macmillan Distribution Ltd, Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS, England

Incomplete Democracies in the Asia-Pacific

Evidence from Indonesia, Korea, the Philippines, and Thailand

Edited by

Giovanna Maria Dora Dore

Fellow, Asian Studies Program, The Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University

Jae H. Ku

Director, U.S.-Korea Institute at the The Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University

Karl D. Jackson

*CV Starr Distinguished Professor and Director Asian Studies and Southeast Asia
Studies Program, The Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University*

palgrave
macmillan

Editorial matter and selection © Giovanna Maria Dora Dore,
Jae H. Ku and Karl D. Jackson 2014
Individual chapters © Respective authors 2014
Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2014 978-1-137-39749-2

All rights reserved. No reproduction, copy or transmission of this publication may be made without written permission.

No portion of this publication may be reproduced, copied or transmitted save with written permission or in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, or under the terms of any licence permitting limited copying issued by the Copyright Licensing Agency, Saffron House, 6–10 Kirby Street, London EC1N 8TS.

Any person who does any unauthorized act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

The authors have asserted their rights to be identified as the authors of this work in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

First published 2014 by
PALGRAVE MACMILLAN

Palgrave Macmillan in the UK is an imprint of Macmillan Publishers Limited, registered in England, company number 785998, of Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS.

Palgrave Macmillan in the US is a division of St Martin's Press LLC, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

Palgrave Macmillan is the global academic imprint of the above companies and has companies and representatives throughout the world.

Palgrave® and Macmillan® are registered trademarks in the United States, the United Kingdom, Europe and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-349-48498-0 ISBN 978-1-137-39750-8 (eBook)
DOI 10.1057/9781137397508

This book is printed on paper suitable for recycling and made from fully managed and sustained forest sources. Logging, pulping and manufacturing processes are expected to conform to the environmental regulations of the country of origin.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

A catalog record for this book is available from the Library of Congress.

Contents

List of Tables and Figures	ix
Acknowledgments	xii
Notes on Contributors	xiii
1 Introduction	1
Giovanna Maria Dora Dore and Karl D. Jackson
2 Democracy Is Not the Only Game in Town! Democratic and Authoritarian Attitudes in Indonesia, Korea, and Thailand	13
Giovanna Maria Dora Dore
Introduction	13
What does democracy mean to you?	13
Is democracy a process or an outcome?	32
Is democracy the only game in town?	39
Indonesia	51
Korea	53
Thailand	56
Conclusions	58
3 Democratization and the Indonesian Middle Class: Waiting for Godot?	63
Karl D. Jackson
Introduction	63
Class structure	66
Socio-economic correlates of class in Indonesia	69
Personal networks	71
Competing explanations: Social capital and civil society	73
Civil society	74
What can be explained by socio-economic variables in Indonesia?	78
Impact of social class on political knowledge	79
Knowledge of Indonesia	79
Knowledge of political systems	81
Impact of social class on attitudes	84

Institution building and truth-telling	85
Violence, ethnic prejudice, and the role of Islam in the state	86
Corruption	91
Trust	92
Evaluation of government	96
Impact of social class on political behavior	98
Political interest	99
Democratic voice	99
Political efficacy	100
Political parties	100
Voter turnout	102
Non-electoral participation	104
Satisfaction with leaders	107
Preferred political systems	111
Authoritarian rule	113
Army rule	113
Democracy	114
Conclusions: Implications for the future of Indonesian democracy	116
 4 The Decline of Political Participation in Korea between 2000 and 2011	 119
Jae H. Ku
Introduction	119
Political participation	120
Electoral participation	121
Non-electoral participation	125
Membership in civic organizations	133
Civic associations and political participation	136
Conclusions	142
 5 From Subjects to Citizens: Democratic Consolidation in Thailand between 2000 and 2011	 143
Prinat Apirat
Rote democracy	143
Political participation	144
Voting in Thailand	145
Who are Thailand's 'habitual' voters in 2011?	148
Attitudes of 'habitual' voters in 2011?	149
Non-electoral participation	150
Who participated in Bangkok in 2000?	152

Who participates in politics between elections in Bangkok in 2011?	153
Attitudinal differences	156
Involvement in civil society in Thailand	161
Who participates in civil society in Thailand in 2011?	168
A political typology of Thai citizens	170
Bangkok 2000	172
Bangkok 2011	173
'Democratic citizens'	173
'Disconnected democrats'	174
'Rote democrats'	174
'Subjects'	175
Bangkok and Thailand: Two different worlds	176
Implications of the Bangkok–Rural divide for citizens' typologies	178
From monarchy to democratic sovereignty?	179
Conclusions	183
6 The Philippines: Who Votes, Who Participates, and Why?	186
Karl D. Jackson
Voter turnout in the Philippines	189
Non-electoral participation	191
Civil society in the Philippines	197
Who takes part in civil society organizations?	201
What do civil society members think?	204
Changing levels of NEP and civil society membership in Jakarta, Manila, and Bangkok 2000 and 2011	208
The influentials, voting, and NEP	210
Who are the leaders?	213
What do they think?	214
Proclivity to violence	215
Conclusion	217
7 Satisfaction and Dissatisfaction with Political Leaders in Indonesia, Korea, the Philippines, and Thailand	220
James Marshall Kirby
Introduction	220
Indonesia	224
Who are the Indonesians who are satisfied or dissatisfied with their leaders?	231
The Philippines	232

Who are the Filipinos who are satisfied or dissatisfied with their leaders?	239
Korea	241
Who are the Koreans who are satisfied or dissatisfied with their leaders?	247
Thailand	248
What are the characteristics of the Thais who are satisfied with their past and current leaders?	253
Conclusions	254
8 Conclusions: Politics Is More Difficult than Physics Giovanna Maria Dora Dore, Jae H. Ku, and Karl D. Jackson	256
 Appendix 1: The SAIS Surveys	 264
Bibliography	272
Index	280

Tables and Figures

Tables

2.1	CSOs membership and participation in Thailand in 2011	30
2.2	Citizens' understanding of democracy in Indonesia, Korea, and Thailand	34
2.3	Preferences for democratic and authoritarian political systems in Indonesia, Korea, and Thailand	43
2.4	World Value Survey preferences for democratic and authoritarian political systems in Indonesia, Korea, and Thailand	44
2.5	Predictors for citizens' authoritarian or democratic attitudes	50
3.1	AC Nielsen classification of respondents based on household expenditures	67
3.2	Education levels in Indonesia in 2011	68
3.3	Social classes index reflecting wealth and educational attainment	69
3.4	Overlap among civil society memberships in Indonesia	77
3.5	Knowledge of Asian democratic and non-democratic political systems in Indonesia	81
3.6	Knowledge of Asian democratic political systems in Indonesia	82
3.7	Knowledge of Asian non-democratic political systems in Indonesia	82
3.8	Citizens' satisfaction with President Suharto	109
3.9	Interaction of elite consensus and public opinion	118
4.1	Predictors for electoral participation	126
4.2	Logistic regression analysis of voting frequency on NEP index, Nation 2011	130
4.3	Logistic regression analysis of NEP	132
4.4	Logistic regression analysis of membership in civic associations	137
4.5	Cross-tabulation of voting frequency and participation in civic association, Nation 2011	138
4.6	Cross-tabulation of voting frequency and participation in horizontal association	139
4.7	Cross-tabulation of NEP and participation in civic associations	139
4.8	Cross-tabulation of NEP and participation in horizontal associations	140

4.9	Regression analysis of membership in civic associations on voting and NEP	141
5.1	Non-electoral participation in Bangkok in 2000	151
5.2	Non-electoral participation in Bangkok in 2000 and 2011	151
5.3	Socio-economic variables and NEP in Bangkok and rural Thailand in 2011	155
5.4	Attitudes related to NEP in Bangkok and rural Thailand in 2011	159
5.5	Associational life in Thailand and Bangkok in 2011	162
5.6	Density of associational life in Bangkok in 2000 and 2011, and Thailand in 2011	164
5.7	Overlap among civil society organizations in Bangkok in 2000	165
5.8	Overlap among civil society organizations in Bangkok in 2011	166
5.9	Overlap among civil society organizations in Thailand in 2011	167
5.10	Typology of citizens	170
5.11	Political typology of Bangkok citizens in 2000 and 2011	172
5.12	Locale of citizen types	178
5.13	Concentration of citizen types in each locale	178
6.1	Non-electoral participation	194
6.2	Number of civil society organizations belonged to (or associated with) by each respondent	198
6.3	Overlap among civil society organizations in the Philippines	200
6.4	Non-electoral participation in Jakarta, Seoul, Manila, and Bangkok in 2000 and 2011	209
6.5	Civil society membership in Jakarta, Seoul, Manila, and Bangkok in 2000 and 2011	210
6.6	Reasons for consultations	211
6.7	Length of relationship with advisor	211
6.8	Frequency of being asked about politics	212
6.9	Interpersonal influence	212
6.10	Proportion of samples that designate themselves as both advisor (patron) and advisees (client)	213
6.11	Proportion of samples that designate themselves as both advisors (patrons) and political opinion leaders	213
7.1	Citizens' satisfaction and dissatisfaction rates with leaders in Indonesia, Korea, the Philippines, and Thailand	223

Figures

2.1	Democratic and authoritarian attitudes in Indonesia, Korea, and Thailand	46
-----	--	----

2.2	Authoritarian and democratic attitudes in Bangkok, Jakarta, and Seoul in 2000 and 2011	47
4.1	Frequency of voting for Koreans in 2011	123
4.2	Frequency of voting for Seoul residents in 2000 versus 2011	123
4.3	Koreans' engagement in NEP in 2011	127
4.4	Seoul residents' engagement in NEP in 2000 versus 2011	128
4.5	NEP index, Nation 2011	131
4.6	Membership in civic organization, Nation 2011	133
4.7	Membership in civic organizations, Seoul 2000 versus 2011	135
4.8	Membership frequency in civic organizations, nation 2011	135
6.1	Factors influencing NEP in the Philippines	197
6.2	Factors influencing CSO membership and participation in the Philippines	203
6.3	Attitudes among CSO participants in the Philippines	205
6.4	Factors influencing proclivity to kill in the Philippines	217
7.1	Indonesians' satisfaction and dissatisfaction with past and current leaders	225
7.2	Filipinos' satisfaction and dissatisfaction with past and current leaders	233
7.3	Koreans' satisfaction and dissatisfaction with past and current leaders	242
7.4	Thais' satisfaction and dissatisfaction with past and current leaders	249
8.1	Politics is more difficult than physics	260

Acknowledgments

Incomplete Democracies in the Asia-Pacific: Evidence from Indonesia, Korea, the Philippines, and Thailand is the first book to emerge from the SAIS Surveys, an innovative project launched in 1999 by the SAIS Southeast Asia Studies Program that focused on the capital cities of Jakarta, Seoul, Manila, and Bangkok as case studies to investigate the 1997 East Asian financial crisis as a possible cause of broad social, economic, and political changes that might alter the development trajectory of Indonesia, Korea, the Philippines, and Thailand. In 2010, the U.S.-Korea Institute at SAIS provided the financial resources necessary for organizing the second round of the Survey. The SAIS 2011 Survey was a national-level opinion survey, with a total sampling size of 4,000 individuals, which investigated the role of ordinary people in democratization through the rise of expressive social values in Indonesia, Korea, the Philippines, and Thailand. We are grateful to the U.S.-Korea Institute at SAIS and the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies for their continued support for the surveys and the scholarly research that is emerging from them.

For their intellectual advice and guidance during the early stages of drafting, we thank Larry Diamond (Senior Fellow at the Hoover Institution and at the Freeman-Spogli Institute for International Studies, Director of the Center for Democracy, Development, and the Rule of Law at Stanford University), Allen Hicken (Associate Professor of Political Science, Director of the Center for Southeast Asian Studies at the University of Michigan), Robert Albritton (Professor in the Department of Political Science of the University of Mississippi), Benjamin Reilly (Dean of the Sir Walter Murdoch School of Public Policy and International Affairs at Murdoch University), and Steven Rood (Country Representative and Regional Advisor for Local Governance for the Asia Foundation in the Philippines and Pacific Islands). We are also grateful to Dr Giulia Ferrari of the London School of Economics for her generous advice on the statistical analysis informing the book.

We are thankful to AC Nielsen Manila for coordinating the implementation of the SAIS 2000 and 2011 Surveys in Indonesia, Korea, the Philippines, and Thailand; to Wei-Chi Chen, Assistant Manager for the Asian Barometer Survey (ABS), for his assistance in making ABS data available to us in a timely manner; and to Heesu Kim and Wonhee Lee of the U.S.-Korea Institute at SAIS for providing research support for Chapter 4.

Finally, thanks go to Valentina Kalk, Director of Brookings Institution Press; to Palgrave Macmillan, particularly Christina Brian, Harriet Barker, and Amanda McGrath; and to Dr Mark Beeson, Series Editor, for their interest in this book and generosity with their time and advice.

Contributors

Prinat Apirat is a career diplomat at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Thailand. She has worked at the Department of East Asian Affairs, the Japan–Thailand Economic Partnership Agreement Task Force, and in the Office of the Permanent Secretary. She has served in Beijing, China, and is currently posted to Brussels, Belgium. She holds a PhD in Southeast Asia Studies (2003) from the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University and is a recipient of the prestigious Thai academic merit-based King's Scholarship.

Giovanna Maria Dora Dore is a Fellow in the Asian Studies Program at SAIS. Earlier in her career, Dr Dore has worked for over a decade as a political economist for the World Bank Group, where she focuses on economies in transition and institutional development in Asia and the Pacific; she also served as Special Assistant to the President of the World Bank. Giovanna has lectured at the London School of Economics and Johns Hopkins-SAIS on international development, democratization, and comparative Asian politics. Dr Dore has written extensively on Asian economic and sustainable development for peer-reviewed journals and edited collections. She holds a PhD in Political Economy and Southeast Asia Studies (2012) and an MA in International Economics and International Relations (1998) from the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University, and a Laurea Magistralis in Philosophy and Contemporary History (1995) from the Catholic University of Milan.

Karl D. Jackson is Director of the Asian Studies Program and the C.V. Starr Distinguished Professor of Southeast Asian Studies at the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University. He was a faculty member in the Department of Political Science at the University of California, Berkeley, 1972–1991. He served as the national security advisor to the Vice President of the United States, Special Assistant to the President of the United States, senior director for Asia on the National Security Council, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for East Asia and the Pacific, and senior advisor to the President of the World Bank. His publications include Asian Contagion: The Causes and Consequences of a Financial Crisis (1999); Cambodia 1975–78: Rendezvous with Death (1989); Traditional Authority, Islam and Rebellion: A Study of Indonesian Political Behavior (1980); and Political Power and Communications in Indonesia (1978). He holds a PhD from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a BA from Princeton University.

James Marshall Kirby is a Research Fellow at the U.S.-Korea Institute at SAIS, where he has worked on the SAIS 2011 Survey. While at USKI, Marshall has used the data to measure key concepts in political science such as participation, social capital, voting, and characteristics of government. He holds an MA from the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs of the University of Pittsburgh.

Jae H. Ku is the Director of the U.S.-Korea Institute at SAIS. He has taught at Johns Hopkins-SAIS, Brown University, Yonsei University, and Sookmyung Women's University in Seoul. Publications include Charge and Challenge in the Korea Peninsula (editor, 1996), Nuclear Security 2012: Challenges of Proliferation and Implications for the Korean Peninsula (editor, 2010), China's Domestic Politics and Foreign Policies and Major Countries' Strategies Toward China (editor, 2012), and dedicated pieces for the Washington Quarterly, Chosun Ilbo, and Korea Herald. He holds a PhD from the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University, an MSc from the London School of Economics, and an AB from Harvard University.