

CULTURAL WOUNDING, HEALING, AND
EMERGING ETHNICITIES

This page intentionally left blank

CULTURAL WOUNDING, HEALING, AND
EMERGING ETHNICITIES

Amanda Kearney

palgrave
macmillan

CULTURAL WOUNDING, HEALING, AND EMERGING ETHNICITIES

Copyright © Amanda Kearney, 2014.

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2014 978- 1- 137- 48056-9
All rights reserved.

First published in 2014 by PALGRAVE MACMILLAN®
in the United States—a division of St. Martin's Press LLC, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

Where this book is distributed in the UK, Europe and the rest of the world,
this is by Palgrave Macmillan, a division of Macmillan Publishers Limited, registered in England, company number 785998, of Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS.

Palgrave Macmillan is the global academic imprint of the above companies and has companies and representatives throughout the world.

Palgrave® and Macmillan® are registered trademarks in the United States, the United Kingdom, Europe and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-349-50271-4 ISBN 978-1-137-47829-0 (eBook)

DOI 10.1057/9781137478290

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Kearney, Amanda.

Cultural wounding, healing, and emerging ethnicities /
Amanda Kearney.
pages cm

Summary: "Cultural Wounding, Healing, and Emerging Ethnicities presents an analysis of ethnic identities that have emerged from contexts of political conflict and social suffering. Today, there is new appeal in the analysis of ethnicity, not merely as innate and fixed identities or fragmented and lost identities, but rather as wounded and then creatively reclaimed. If ethnic identity is more than a primordial sense of self, then what does it mean for ethnic groups who have survived wounding?
What happens when we leave "tradition" behind? Kearney discusses international examples of cultural wounding and healing and presents two close readings of emerging ethnicities in Australia and Brazil"—Provided by publisher.

Summary: "This book examines ethnic identities as they emerge out from experiences of cultural wounding. Framed as a study of healing and recuperation, it offers a new way of examining the impact of ethnic conflict and better appreciating the identities that emerge"—Provided by publisher.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

1. Ethnicity. 2. Group identity. 3. Ethnic conflict. I. Title.

GN495.6.K43 2014

305.8—dc23

2014023885

A catalogue record of the book is available from the British Library.

Design by Newgen Knowledge Works (P) Ltd., Chennai, India.

First edition: November 2014

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

To Yanyuwa families, Brazilian friends, and all those who are healing.

This page intentionally left blank

CONTENTS

List of Tables	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction	1
1 Ethnicity (Not Race) and Belonging	15
2 Cultural Wounding	29
3 Wounds: Broken Bodies and the Rupture of Kinship	45
4 What Happens When the Wounded Survive? Ethnicity and the Healing Project	69
5 Cultural Wounding, Healing, and Emerging Ethnicities for Indigenous Australians	93
6 Life in the Affirmative—Cultural Wounding, Healing, and African Descent in Brazil	145
Conclusion	195
Notes	205
Works Cited	209
Index	233

This page intentionally left blank

T A B L E S

4.1	Examples of healing actions based on a “because” motive	83
4.2	Examples of healing actions based on an “in-order-to” motive	87
5.1	Mapping the journey from cultural wounding experience to healing in Australian contexts	141
6.1	The relationship between protentions and “in-order-to” healing actions	190

This page intentionally left blank

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book is the result of much fieldwork and collaboration, facilitated by a number of people and organizations. First, thank you to the Borroloola Aboriginal community and Yanyuwa families. You have educated me on every level and afforded me a greater understanding of cultural wounding but most importantly healing. To the students and staff at Tranby Aboriginal College in Sydney, thank you for allowing me to share in your classroom and for being such excellent educators on matters of Indigenous life experiences and the possibilities for the future. For friends and organizations in Salvador, Bahia, you allowed me to slip from being an awkward outsider to a less awkward listener and participant. You have helped me learn a new language and find a new way of appreciating ethnicity as a creative and freeing venture. The University of New South Wales, Sydney, has provided the research environment for this work to develop. I am particularly grateful to my editor, Robyn Curtis, and editorial assistant Erica Buchman at Palgrave Macmillan, New York, for their support and absolute professionalism. Last, I want to thank my kin: the people who have offered enduring support through all episodes of life and in particular in the germinating of these ideas, the undertaking of fieldwork, and the freedoms that were needed to write this book. John Bradley, Zora Simic, Marco Susino, Kelly Kearney, and Gaynor Kearney are all owed a great deal.