

Early Modern Literature in History

Series Editors

Cedric C. Brown
University of Reading
Reading, United Kingdom

Andrew Hadfield
School of English
University of Sussex
Brighton, United Kingdom

Aim of the Series

Within the period 1520–1740, this large, long-running series, with international representation discusses many kinds of writing, both within and outside the established canon. The volumes may employ different theoretical perspectives, but they share an historical awareness and an interest in seeing their texts in lively negotiation with their own and successive cultures. Editorial board members: Sharon Achinstein, University of Oxford, UK; John Kerrigan, University of Cambridge, UK; Richard C McCoy, Columbia University, USA; Jean Howard, Columbia University, USA; Adam Smyth, Birkbeck, University of London, UK; Cathy Shrank, University of Sheffield, UK; Michelle O’Callaghan, University of Reading, UK; Steven Zwicker, Washington University, USA; Katie Larson, University of Toronto, Canada.

More information about this series at <http://www.springer.com/series/14199>

Hannah Crawford • Sarah Lewis
Editors

FAMILY POLITICS IN EARLY MODERN LITERATURE

palgrave
macmillan

Editors

Hannah Crawforth
Department of English Language
& Literature
King's College London
London, United Kingdom

Sarah Lewis
Department of English
King's College London
London, United Kingdom

Early Modern Literature in History

ISBN 978-1-137-51143-0

ISBN 978-1-137-51144-7 (eBook)

DOI 10.1057/978-1-137-51144-7

Library of Congress Control Number: 2016955947

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s) 2017

The author(s) has/have asserted their right(s) to be identified as the author(s) of this work in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use.

The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made.

Cover image ©'Portret van de schilder Andries van Bochoven en zijn familie' (1629) by Andries van Bochoven. © Centraal Museum Utrecht

Printed on acid-free paper

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by Springer Nature

The registered company is Macmillan Publishers Ltd. London

The registered company address is: The Campus, 4 Crinan Street, London, N1 9XW, United Kingdom

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This collection began to take shape in November 2013 when we hosted a two-day symposium, ‘Family Politics in Early Modern England’, at King’s College London. Our first thanks, therefore, must go to the Faculty of Arts and Humanities at King’s, who awarded the research grant which funded the symposium, enabling scholars from around the world to travel to London in order to attend. Thanks are also due to the Arts and Humanities Research Institute, and in particular, Pelagias Pais, who supported us as we prepared for the symposium and whose impeccable organisational skills ensured its success. Thanks also to Laura Gowing, Gordon McMullan, Elizabeth Scott-Baumann and Sue Wiseman, who were kind enough to act as respondents during the symposium. Their astute observations and insights were an invaluable part of our discussions, and subsequently their reports helped to develop the collection itself. As part of the symposium, we hosted a public roundtable debate, and we want to thank Ed Howker, Shiv Malik and Philip Tew for kindly giving up their time to participate.

The encouragement and support of all our colleagues in the English Department at King’s and within the London Shakespeare Centre has sustained us as we worked on this collection over the last few years, and we are thankful to Jo McDonagh and Richard Kirkland who have both served as Head of Department during this period. We are hugely indebted to one particular colleague at King’s, Clare Whitehead, whose feedback on every chapter and meticulous attention to detail has made all the difference. She has worked for many long hours on the collection with us, and without her, it simply would not have been possible to complete this project.

It has been a real pleasure to work with Ben Doyle and Tomas René at Palgrave, and we are very grateful to them for their guidance and patience throughout the revision process.

Finally, thanks to our families for their tireless love and support: Ray and Karen Lewis, Jane, Matt, Evie and Florence Nicolle, Eleanor and Ian Anderson, Sue, Graham and Eleanor Crawforth, Hadrian, Lucian and Rufus Green.

CONTENTS

1	Introduction	1
	Hannah Crawforth and Sarah Lewis
Part I	Union	17
2	Margaret Cavendish, Wife	19
	Julie Crawford
3	Reading Overbury's Wife: Politics and Marriage in 1616	39
	Christina Luckyj
4	Representations of the Family in Early Caroline Drama: Or, How Do You Solve a Problem Like Henrietta Maria?	57
	Tom MacFaul
5	Animal Families	75
	Helen Smith

Part II Succession	97
6 'Good Agreement Betwixt the Wombe and Frute': The Politics of Maternal Power in the Letters of Lady Anne Bacon Katy Mair	99
7 Allegiance and Alliance: Maternal Genealogies in the Works of Mary Wroth Naomi J. Miller	117
8 Mini-Majesty: Dynasty and Succession in the Portraiture of Henry VIII and Edward VI Naomi Yavneh Klos	135
9 Beyond the Palace: The Transmission of Political Power in the Clifford Circle Jessica L. Malay	153
Part III Rebellion	171
10 Bare-Forked Animals: King Lear and the Problems of Patriarchalism Su Fang Ng	173
11 The State, Childhood and Religious Dissent Lucy Underwood	191
12 Father Figures: Paternal Politics in the Conversion Narratives of Thomas Gage and James Wadsworth Abigail Shinn	211

13 Family Politics and Age in Early Modern England	229
Lucy Munro
Bibliography	247
Index	265

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Julie Crawford is the Mark van Doren Professor of Humanities in the Department of English and Comparative Literature at Columbia University. She works on topics ranging from the history of sexuality to the history of reading, and is the author, most recently, of Mediatrix: Women, Politics and Literary Production in Early Modern England (2014). She is currently completing a manuscript entitled ‘Margaret Cavendish’s Political Career’.

Hannah Crawford is Senior Lecturer in Early Modern Literature at King’s College, London, where she is also a founding member of the London Shakespeare Centre. She is the author of Etymology and the Invention of English in Early Modern Literature (2013) and co-author, with Sarah Dustagheer and Jennifer Young, of Shakespeare in London (2015). She is also co-editor, with Elizabeth Scott-Baumann of On Shakespeare’s Sonnets: A Poets’ Celebration (2016), a collection of contemporary poetic responses to Shakespeare’s verse.

Naomi Yavneh Klos became the first full-time Director of the University Honors Program at Loyola University New Orleans in 2011, after serving as the Associate Dean of the Honors College at the University of South Florida. A Professor of Languages and Cultures, she is the author of numerous articles on gender and spirituality in the representation of both the virginal and the maternal body in Renaissance Italy, as well as three award-winning essay collections on gender in the early modern world. A former president of the Society for the Study of Early Modern Women and founding director of the Council of Undergraduate Research’s Arts &

Humanities division, she is Vice President of the National Collegiate Honors Council and Chair of the Honors Consortium of the Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities. Her current research project is ‘Not Just for Jesuits: Ignatian Values in Honors and Beyond’.

Sarah Lewis is Lecturer in Shakespeare and Early Modern Literature at King’s College London. She has also lectured at University College Dublin, University of Roehampton, Royal Central School of Speech and Drama, and Shakespeare’s Globe. She is currently working on her first book, Time and Gender in Shakespeare and Early Modern Drama. She is also a director of the research network, ‘Grasping Kairos’.

Christina Luckyj is Professor of English at Dalhousie University in Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada. She is the author of ‘A Moving Rhetoricke’: Gender and Silence in Early Modern England (2002) and editor of The Duchess of Malfi: A Critical Guide (2011). She has published a range of essays on early modern drama and women’s writing, and is currently completing a monograph entitled ‘Reasonable Libertie’: The Politics of the Female Voice 1603–1636.

Tom MacFaul is Lecturer in English at St Edmund Hall, University of Oxford. He is the author of four books—Male Friendship in Shakespeare and his Contemporaries (2009), Poetry and Paternity in Renaissance England (2012), Problem Fathers in Shakespeare and Renaissance Drama (2015), and Shakespeare and the Natural World (2016)—and the co-editor of Tottel’s Miscellany (2011), and has published many articles on Renaissance literature. He is now working on two further books: Care in Renaissance Literature and Space in the Romantic Period.

Katy Mair completed her PhD on the letters of Lady Anne Bacon in 2009 at the Centre for Editing Lives and Letters, Queen Mary University of London. She is now working as an early modern record specialist at The National Archives, leading on cataloguing, exhibition and archival training programmes.

Jessica L. Malay is Professor of English Literature at the University of Huddersfield. Her recent publications include the first print edition of Anne Clifford’s Great Books of Record (2015) and a biographical study of the gentlewoman Mary Hampson that includes an edition of her recently discovered autobiography (2014). She has also published widely on the literature and culture of the sixteenth century, including a study on Sibylline imagery in the Renaissance.

Naomi Miller is Professor of English and the Study of Women and Gender at Smith College. Her scholarship includes Changing the Subject: Mary Wroth and Figurations of Gender in Early Modern England (1996), and three volumes of essays: Reading Mary Wroth: Representing Alternatives in Early Modern England (edited with Gary Waller, 1991), Re-Reading Mary Wroth (edited with Katherine Larson, 2015), and Maternity and Romance Narratives in Early Modern England (edited with Karen Bamford, 2015).

Lucy Munro is Reader in Shakespeare and Early Modern Literature at King's College London. Her books include Children of the Queen's Revels: A Jacobean Theatre Repertory (2005), Archaic Style in English Literature, 1590–1674 (2013), and editions of plays by Sharpham, Shakespeare and Wilkins, Brome and Fletcher. Her edition of Dekker, Ford and Rowley's The Witch of Edmonton was published by Arden Early Modern Drama in 2016. Between 2009 and 2012, she was a co-investigator on 'Ages and Stages: The Place of Theatre in Representations and Recollections of Ageing', a collaborative research project at Keele University and the New Victoria Theatre, Newcastle-under-Lyme.

Su Fang Ng is Associate Professor of English at the University of Oklahoma. She has published Literature and the Politics of Family in Seventeenth-Century England (2007) and articles in ELH, Studies in Philology, Comparative Literature, Modern Philology, and elsewhere. She has won fellowships from the Radcliffe Institute at Harvard University, the National Humanities Center, and the University of Texas at Austin. In 2015–2016, she is a visiting fellow at Heidelberg University and All Souls College, Oxford. She is currently working on imitatio Alexandri and linguistic exchange in east–west transcultural relations.

Abigail Shinn is a Teaching Fellow at the University of St Andrews. Alongside Andrew Hadfield and Matthew Dimmock, she is the editor of the Research Companion to Popular Culture in Early Modern England (2014). She has published chapters and articles on Edmund Spenser, William Painter, conversion narratives and early modern popular culture. Her current monograph project, Conversion Narratives in Early Modern England: Tales of Turning, examines the rhetorical form of the English conversion narrative.

Helen Smith is Director of the Centre of Renaissance and Early Modern Studies and Reader in Renaissance Literature at the University of York.

She is author of the prize-winning Grossly Material Things: Women and Book Production in Early Modern Europe (2012) and co-editor of Renaissance Paratexts (2012), The Oxford Handbook of the Bible in Early Modern England (2015), and Conversions: Gender and Religious Change in Early Modern Europe (2016). Her current book project traces the materiality of ideas in early modern England.

Lucy Underwood is a Leverhulme Early Career Fellow at the University of Warwick. She received her doctorate from the University of Cambridge and has held research fellowships at the British School at Rome and the Folger Shakespeare Library, Washington DC. She is the author of Childhood, Youth and Religious Dissent in Post-Reformation England (2014).

LIST OF FIGURES

Fig. 2.1	Margaret Cavendish, Natures Pictures drawn by Fancies Pencil to the Life (London, 1656), p. 271	25
Fig. 2.2	Margaret Cavendish, The Life of the thrice Noble ... Prince, William Cavendishe (London, 1667), p. 162	32
Fig. 8.1	Hans Holbein the Younger, Portrait of Edward, Prince of Wales , oil on oak, c. 1538, National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.	136
Fig. 8.2	Hans Holbein the Younger, King Henry VIII; King Henry VII , ink and watercolour on paper, c. 1536-37, National Portrait Gallery, London	141