Notes on Contributors

Joseph Carew is a PhD candidate in Philosophy at McGill University. He is the author of Ontological Catastrophe: Žižek and the Paradoxical Metaphysics of German Idealism (Open Humanities Press, 2014). His current research focuses on the metaphysical status of rationality in the context of nineteenth-century philosophy, with an emphasis on Hegel and the late Schelling, and the conceptual possibilities and challenges it presents for contemporary philosophy.

Wes Furlotte recently received his PhD in Philosophy from the University of Ottawa. His research concentrates on German Idealism, especially Hegel and Schelling, and reactions to it. His recent work focuses on the problem of nature as it unfolds in Hegel's final system. He is currently preparing a monograph on the Hegelian concept of nature.

Jean-Christophe Goddard is a Professor at the Université de Toulouse Jean-Jaurès, France. He is the French translator of Attempt at a Critique of All Revelation (Vrin, 1988), The Atheism Controversy (Vrin, 1993), and The Vocation of Man (GF-Flammarion, 1995) and co-translator of The Doctrine of the State (1813) (Vrin, 2006). Aside from two books on contemporary French philosophy—Mysticisme et folie. Essai sur la simplicité [Mysticism and Madness: Essay on Simplicity] (Desclée de Brouwer, 2002) and Violence et subjectivité. Deleuze, Derrida, Maldiney [Violence and Subjectivity: Deleuze, Derrida, Maldiney] (Vrin, 2008)—he has published two monographs on Fichte: La philosophie fichtéenne de la vie. Le transcendantal et le pathologique [The Fichtean Philosophy of Life: The Transcendental and the Pathological] (Vrin, 1999) and Fichte (1801–1813).

L'émancipation philosophique [Fichte (1801–1813): Philosophical Emancipation] (PUF, 2003).

Adrian Johnston is a Professor in the Department of Philosophy at the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque and a faculty member at the Emory Psychoanalytic Institute in Atlanta. He is the co-author, with Catherine Malabou, of Self and Emotional Life: Philosophy, Psychoanalysis, and Neuroscience (Columbia University Press, 2013). His most recent book is Adventures in Transcendental Materialism: Dialogues with Contemporary Thinkers (Edinburgh University Press, 2014). With Todd McGowan and Slavoj Žižek, he is a co-editor of the book series Diaeresis at Northwestern University Press.

Cem Kömürçü is an Assistant Professor at the Department of Philosophy and Theory of Religion at the University of Bonn. He is the author of Sehnsucht und Finsternis. Schellings Theorie des Sprachsubjekts [Yearning and Darkness: Schelling's Theory of the Linguistic Subject] (Passagen, 2011). He is currently preparing a book on the ontology of community.

S.J. McGrath is a Professor of Philosophy at Memorial University of Newfoundland. McGrath is an internationally recognized specialist in the philosophy of religion and the history of philosophy, although these broad terms do not do justice to the great diversity of his output—from medieval metaphysics to contemporary phenomenology, Protestant mysticism to German Idealism, twentieth-century existentialism to environmental philosophy. In his many publications McGrath is tracking a set of questions concerning the legacy of religion in today's secular society. His most recent book is The Dark Ground of Spirit: Schelling and the Unconscious (Routledge, 2012).

Constantin Rauer is a philosopher, religious studies scholar, and cultural anthropologist. Most recently he was a visiting professor at several universities in Brazil. He is currently working on a research project on the origin of symbolic culture in humanity. His most important book to date is Wahn und Wahrheit. Kant Auseinandersetzung mit dem Irrationalen [Madness and Truth: Kant's Confrontation with the Irrational] (Akademieverlag, 2007).

Alexander Schnell is a Professor at Paris-Sorbonne University/Abu Dhabi. He is an expert in German Idealism and contemporary French and German phenomenology.

He has published eight books to date on phenomenology, as well as three on German Idealism: Réflexion et spéculation. L'idéalisme transcendantal chez Fichte et Schelling [Reflexion and Speculation: Transcendental Idealism in Fichte and Schelling] (Millon, 2009), En deçà du sujet. Du temps dans la philosophie transcendantale allemande [Below the Subject: On Time in German Transcendental Philosophy] (PUF, 2010), and L'effondrement de la nécessité [The Collapse of Necessity] (J. Millon, 2015). Furthermore, he has co-translated into French Fichte's Guide to the Blessed Life (Vrin, 2012) and the Berlin Introductions to Philosophy (GF-Flammarion, 2014) and is developing his own 'speculative transcendentalism.'

F. Scott Scribner is an Associate Professor of Philosophy and Chair of Global Studies at the University of Hartford. He is a specialist in nineteenth- and twentieth-century Continental Philosophy, with a particular interest in post-Kantian German Idealism, philosophy of technology, and media theory. He has published widely in this field with more than 30 published articles and essays. His recent book, Matters of Spirit: J.G. Fichte and the Technological Imagination, was published with Penn State University Press (2010). His work focuses on an attempt to think about the material elements within idealism's oeuvre and marshaling the resources of German Idealism for thinking about current issues in technology.

Devin Zane Shaw teaches philosophy at Carleton University and the University of Ottawa. He is author of Freedom and Nature in Schelling's Philosophy of Art (Bloomsbury, 2010) and Egalitarian Moments: From Descartes to Rancière (Bloomsbury, 2015) and is co-editor of, and contributor to, "'Theory Mad Beyond Redemption': The Post-Kantian Poe," a special issue of the Edgar Allan Poe Review (2012). His current research is focused on the political thought of Miguel Abensour.

Konrad Utz studied Philosophy and Catholic Theology in Tübingen, Germany, and Pune, India. He defended his PhD thesis in Philosophy on Hegel's dialectical method in 1997. After teaching in Tübingen, in 2006 he accepted a Chair in Philosophy at the Federal University of Ceará (UFC) in Fortaleza, Brazil. While his articles focus on Hegel, Kant, and Aristotle, his books develop his own philosophical system: Philosophie des Zufalls. Ein Entwurf [Philosophy of Fortuity: An Outline] (2005), Freundschaft. Eine philosophische Theorie [Friendship: A Philosophical Theory] (2012), and the most recent Bewusstsein. Eine philosophische Theorie [Consciousness: A Philosophical Theory] (2015), all published by Schöningh.

Jason M. Wirth is a Professor of Philosophy at Seattle University and works and teaches in the areas of Continental philosophy, Buddhist philosophy, aesthetics, and Africana philosophy. His recent books include a monograph on Milan Kundera Commiserating with Devastated Things (Fordham University Press, 2015), Schelling's Practice of the Wild (SUNY, 2015), The Conspiracy of Life: Meditations on Schelling and His Time (SUNY, 2003), a translation of the third draft of The Ages of the World (SUNY, 2000), the edited volume Schelling Now (Indiana University Press, 2004), the co-edited volume (with Bret Davis and Brian Schroeder), Japanese and Continental Philosophy: Conversations with the Kyoto School (Indiana University Press, 2011), and The Barbarian Principle: Merleau-Ponty, Schelling, and the Question of Nature (SUNY, 2013).
