Early Modern Cultural Studies Series

Series Editors

Ivo Kamps
Department of English
University of Mississippi
Mississippi, USA

Jean Howard
Department of English
Columbia University
New York, USA

Aims of the Series

The early modern period was witness to an incipient process of transculturation through exploration, mercantilism, colonization, and migration that set into motion a process of globalization that continues today. The purpose of this series is to bring together a cultural studies approach - which freely and unapologetically crosses disciplinary, theoretical, and political boundaries - with early modern texts and artefacts that bear the traces of transculturalization and globalization in order to deepen our understanding of sites of exchange between and within early modern culture(s). This process can be studied on a large as well as on a small scale, and this new series is dedicated to both. Possible topics of interest include, but are not limited to: texts dealing with mercantilism, travel, exploration, immigration, foreigners, enabling technologies (such as shipbuilding and navigational instrumentation), mathematics, science, rhetoric, art, architecture, intellectual history, religion, race, sexuality, and gender.

More information about this series at <http://www.springer.com/series/14957>

Susan Harlan

Memories of War in Early Modern England

Armor and Militant Nostalgia in Marlowe,
Sidney, and Shakespeare

palgrave
macmillan

Susan Harlan
Wake Forest University
Winston Salem, USA

Early Modern Cultural Studies Series

ISBN 978-1-137-58849-4 ISBN 978-1-137-58012-2 (eBook)

DOI 10.1057/978-1-137-58012-2

Library of Congress Control Number: 2016947262

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s) 2016

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use. The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made.

Cover image © Lautaro / Alamy Stock Photo

Printed on acid-free paper

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by Springer Nature
The registered company is Nature America Inc. New York

For my family and friends

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The research for this book was generously supported by fellowships from the Folger Library, the New York Public Library, and the Huntington Library, and I would like to thank the wonderful librarians and staff at these institutions. I am particularly indebted to the New York Public Library. I spent many years reading and writing in the Rose Reading Room, which remains one of my favorite places on earth. I would also like to thank Wake Forest University for several generous grants that allowed me to travel to the Anne S.K. Brown Military Collection at Brown University, the British Library, the Wallace Collection, the Victoria and Albert Museum, and the Bibliotheque Nationale.

This book began as my dissertation, so it has benefitted from many generous mentors and readers over the years. More than anyone, John Archer's brilliant and thoughtful feedback has shaped my work, and I am grateful to him for his tireless dedication. He is the soul of intellectual generosity. I am also grateful to my anonymous reader, whose feedback was invaluable, and to those who have steered this project at Palgrave Macmillan, including Brigitte Shull, Ryan Jenkins, Paloma Yannakakis, and series editors Jean Howard and Ivo Kamps.

I have benefitted from the guidance of Mary Carruthers, Patrick Deer, Juliet Fleming, Ernest Gilman, John Guillory, Richard Horwich, Natasha Korda, the late Paul Magnuson, Bella Mirabella, Karen Newman, Mary Poovey, and Paul Strohm. And much of what follows was first presented at seminars and conferences, so I am grateful to the participants for their questions and thoughts. At these gatherings, I have also been privileged to meet many colleagues who have helped me to develop my ideas, including J.K. Barret, Patricia Cahill, Peter Stallybrass, Evelyn Tribble, and Lina Perkins Wilder. From my year at King's College London, where my interest in material culture began, I had the great fortune of working with Gabriel Egan, Madeline Knights, Gordon McMullan, Lucy Munro, Abigail Rokison-Woodall, and Ann Thompson. I am also lucky to have had excellent mentors from further back: David Scott Kastan, James Shapiro, Lauren LaMay, and Patricia Fels.

Wake Forest University has provided me with wonderful colleagues in the English department; particular thanks are owed to Olga Valbuena, Jessica Richard, Dean Franco, Gillian Overing, Melissa Jenkins, Sarah Hogan, Scott Klein, Omaar Hena, Claudia Kairoff, Jeff Holdridge, Laura Aull, Gale Sigal, Herman Rapaport, and Philip Kuberski. Beyond my department, I am thankful for Morna O'Neill, Jay Curley, Chanchal Dadlani, Penny Sinanoglou, Stephanie Kosack, Monique O'Connell, Jake Ruddiman, Kate Callaghan, John Oksanish, and Laura Veneskey. My colleagues at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, Michelle Dowd and Jennifer Feather, have also pushed me as a thinker, as have Niamh O'Leary and Cassie Thomas.

I owe some of the most intellectually stimulating years of my life to my graduate school compatriots Jonathan Farina, Sara Landreth, Joanna Scutts, James Brooke-Smith, Kelly Stage, Elizabeth Bearden, Dave Landreth, Sarah Torretta Klock, Sharon Fulton, Melissa Hillier, Maeve Adams, Jessie Morgan Owens, James Owens, Alan Page, Sam Anderson, and Lauren Walsh. I appreciate our many conversations. And I am fortunate to have other friends who offered emotional and intellectual support throughout the process, including Jennifer Raab, Patrick Moran, Ania Wajnberg, Michael Redlender, Kristina Kaufman, Erika Moravec Jaeggli, Nelson Jaeggli, Daniel Quiles, Anne Moyer, Amanda Thompson, Sara Wilson Frajnd, Amos Frajnd, Grace Pickering, Mark Dean, Michael Klotz, Jason Gladstone, Maria Windell, and Rachel Deagman. My parents, Brad and Sharon, and my siblings, Katharine, Helen, and Derek, have also offered a tremendous amount of love and support in this process.

Thanks to Helen Ostovich at Early Theatre for allowing me to reprint part of one of my essays on Pericles and to the British Library, the Art Institute of Chicago, the Huntington Library, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Victoria and Albert Museum for granting me rights to their images.

Lastly, I thank my dog Millie, who is the very best writing companion.

CONTENTS

Introduction	1
1 “Objects Fit for Tamburlaine”: Self-Arming in Marlowe’s Tamburlaine the Great , Robert Vaughan’s Portraits, and The Almain Armourer’s Album	29
Interlude–Epic Pastness: War Stories, Nostalgic Objects, and Sexual and Textual Spoils in Marlowe’s Dido , Queen of Carthage	85
2 Spoiling Sir Philip Sidney: Mourning and Military Violence in the Elegies, Lant’s Roll , and Greville’s Life of the Renowned Sir Philip Sidney	115
Interlude–Scatter’d Men: Mutilated Male Bodies and Conflicting Narratives of Militant Nostalgia in Shakespeare’s Henry V	195

3	The Armored Body as Trophy: The Problem of the Roman Subject in Shakespeare's Julius Caesar , Antony and Cleopatra , and Coriolanus	215
	Coda: "Let's Do't After the High Roman Fashion": Funeral and Triumph	269
	Bibliography	275
	Index	301

LIST OF FIGURES

Fig. 0.1	Jost Amman, “The Armourer” from Stande und Handwerker , c.1590	14
Fig. 1.1	Robert Vaughan, “Tamburlaine,” Pourtraitures of Nine Modern Worthies of the World , 1622	52
Fig. 1.2	Jacob Halder, The Almain Armourer’s Album : Henry Herbert, the 2nd Earl of Pembroke, c.1557–87	56
Fig. 1.3	Jacob Halder, The Almain Armourer’s Album : Thomas Sackville, Lord Buckhurst, c.1557–87	57
Fig. 2.1	Plate from Sequitur celebritas & pompa funeris , or Lant’s Roll , drawn by Thomas Lant and engraved by Theodore de Brij, 1588	152
Fig. 2.2	Plate from Sequitur celebritas & pompa funeris , or Lant’s Roll , drawn by Thomas Lant and engraved by Theodore de Brij, 1588	154
Fig. 3.1	Andrea Andreani after Andrea Mantegna, plate from The Triumph of Caesar , 1599	222
Fig. 3.2	Trophy formerly credited to Enea Vico, sixteenth century	225
Fig. 3.3	A Roman trophy, unknown engraver, pub. Anthony Lafrery, third quarter of the sixteenth century	227