Notes on the Contributors

J. B. Bullen is Lecturer in English at the University of Reading. He has written widely on English nineteenth- and twentieth-century literary and artistic culture. His previous publications include an edition of Roger Fry's Vision and Design.

John J. Conlon is Associate Professor of English at the University of Massachusetts at Boston. He has written widely on English, European and Latin American literatures. He is the author of Walter Pater and the French Tradition.

Ceri Crossley is Senior Lecturer in French at the University of Birmingham. He is the author of Edgar Quinet (1803–1875): A Study in Romantic Thought, Alfred de Musset: 'Lorenzaccio', and articles on intellectual history and comparative literature.

Vanessa Davies is a research fellow at King's College, London. She is writing a study of the literary review Adam and is currently engaged in a descriptive cataloguing of the library and archive of Adam in the possession of King's College.

Richard Ellmann was Professor of English at Emory University and formerly held the Goldsmiths' Chair of English at the University of Oxford. His publications include The Identity of Yeats, Yeats: The Man and the Masks, Eminent Domain and a biography of James Joyce. He was the editor of Joyce's Letters and of The New Oxford Book of American Verse. He died in 1987.

Jill Forbes has taught at the Ecole Normale Supérieure and been a Lecturer at the Université de Paris III and the University of Loughborough. She is currently head of Modern Languages at the South Bank Polytechnic. She has been a governor of the British Film Institute and a member of its production board. She is the editor of INA French for Innovation and the author of the forthcoming French Cinema since 1968.

John Fowles was born in 1926 and read French at New College, Oxford. His main novels are The Collector, The Magus, The French Lieutenant's Woman, Daniel Martin and A Maggot; two of the stories in The Ebony Tower are set in France.

Susan James is Assistant Lecturer in the Faculty of Philosophy, at the University of Cambridge, and Fellow of Girton College. She is the author of The Content of Social Explanation.

Christopher Norris is Reader in English at the University of Wales in Cardiff. He has written extensively on various aspects of philosophy and literary theory. His publications include William Empson, Deconstruction: Theory and Practice, The Deconstructive Turn and The Contest of Faculties. At present he is completing a book on Jacques Derrida.

Norma Rinsler is Professor of French Language and Literature at King's College, London. She has published books on Nerval and articles on nineteenth- and twentieth-century literature, especially poetry, and on comparative literature.

Ian Small is Lecturer in English at the University of Birmingham. His previous publications include The Aesthetes, editions of Walter Pater's Marius the Epicurean and, with Russell Jackson, of Oscar Wilde's four society dramas.

Colin Wilson was born in Leicester in 1931. He left school at the age of sixteen and began to write a novel when he was seventeen. An offshoot of this novel, a study in 'existential sociology' called The Outsider, appeared when he was twenty-four and brought him overnight notoriety as an 'Angry Young Man'. The novel Ritual in the Dark appeared in 1960. Wilson has written sixteen novels and forty works of non-fiction, including biographies of Shaw, Rasputin and Wilhelm Reich and the psychologist Abraham Maslow.
