GENERAL EDITOR'S PREFACE

The aim of the Macmillan Master Guides is to help you to appreciate the book you are studying by providing information about it and by suggesting ways of reading and thinking about it which will lead to a fuller understanding. The section on the writer's life and background has been designed to illustrate those aspects of the writer's life which have influenced the work, and to place it in its personal and literary context. The summaries and critical commentary are of special importance in that each brief summary of the action is followed by an examination of the significant critical points. The space which might have been given to repetitive explanatory notes has been devoted to a detailed analysis of the kind of passage which might confront you in an examination. Literary criticism is concerned with both the broader aspects of the work being studied and with its detail. The ideas which meet us in reading a great work of literature, and their relevance to us today, are an essential part of our study, and our Guides look at the thought of their subject in some detail. But just as essential is the craft with which the writer has constructed his work of art, and this may be considered under several technical headings – characterisation, language, style and stagecraft, for example.

The authors of these Guides are all teachers and writers of wide experience, and they have chosen to write about books they admire and know well in the belief that they can communicate their admiration to you. But you yourself must read and know intimately the book you are studying. No one can do that for you. You should see this book as a lamp-post. Use it to shed light, not to lean against. If you know your text and know what it is saying about life, and how it says it, then you will enjoy it, and there is no better way of passing an examination in literature.

JAMES GIBSON

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In my quotations from The Pilgrim's Progress I have used the edition prepared by N. H. Keeble, published by Oxford University Press. This book is listed among the primary sources which I recommend in the Further Reading section.

I should like to thank the staff of the British Library, the Newberry Library of Chicago, and the Wheaton College Library for their ready assistance in numerous ways. My thanks also go to the Curator of the Bunyan Museum, Bedford, for showing me the collection of Bunyan memorabilia, a reminder of the creative energy of the tinker, preacher and writer.

My deep appreciation goes to Croom Helm Ltd, publisher of my book, Allegory and Imagination, for permitting me to quote occasional lines from that work. To Yvonne Robery, Secretary of the Department of English at Wheaton College, I offer my sincere gratitude for giving unstintingly of her time to prepare the typescript.
