FAMILY THERAPY IN CHANGING TIMES

BASIC TEXTS IN COUNSELLING AND PSYCHOTHERAPY

Series Editor: Stephen Frosh

This series introduces readers to the theory and practice of counselling and psychotherapy across a wide range of topic areas. The books will appeal to anyone wishing to use counselling and psychotherapeutic skills and will be particularly relevant to workers in health, education, social work and related settings.

The books in this series are unusual in being rooted in psychodynamic and systemic ideas, yet being written at an accessible, readable and introductory level. Each text offers theoretical background and guidance for practice, with creative use of clinical examples.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is always difficult to do justice to an accurate recording and acknowledgement of the ecology of ideas that contribute to one's own thinking. Some of these can be found in the notes and the references. However the 'context of mind' is more complex to chart. The ways in which thinking, clinical practice that devolves from thinking and the development of subsequent thought as a result of new practices take place are often unrecorded. Ideas and practices evolve in the context of reflection or debates with others, but it is often only moments of those exchanges that are remembered. So I would like to thank a number of people with whom in the last ten years I have discussed issues of therapeutic work, mental health practices, teaching, learning and supervision – all have had a personal impact on my work and thinking in diverse ways: Luigi Boscolo, Mary Bratley, Charlotte Burck, John Byng-Hall, Gianfranco Cecchin, Gwyn Daniel, Emilia Dowling, Gwynneth Down, Suman Fernando, Virginia Goldner, Sharon Henesy, Elsa Jones, Annie Lau, Caroline Lindsay, Ann Miller, Salvador Minuchin, Damian McCann, Nimisha Patel, Peggy Penn, Archie Smith, Ged Smith and Lennox Thomas.

I have probably learnt as much from the family I am part of as I have from the families I work with. I would like to thank my own family for the many aspects of life they have introduced me to or kept me connected with; and all the families I have worked with whose thoughts about life, as well as dilemmas encountered when living it, have contributed to my own life and to this book.

I would especially like to acknowledge my partner and colleague Alan Cooklin for all the clinical work and teaching we have shared, for the half-completed and ongoing conversations, and the ideas we have struggled with when writing together.

Getting one's thought onto paper is no easy job. I would like to thank Stephen Frosh for his patience, and give particular thanks to
