Recent British Sociology

Recent British Sociology

John
Eldridge

M

© John Eldridge 1980

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 1980

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced or transmitted, in any form or by any means, without permission.

First published 1980 by

THE MACMILLAN PRESS LTD
London and Basingstoke

Associated Companies throughout the world

ISBN 978-0-333-26640-3 ISBN 978-1-349-16508-7 (eBook)
DOI 10.1007/978-1-349-16508-7

This book is sold subject to the standard conditions of the Net Book Agreement.

Typeset by Leaper and Gard Ltd, Bristol

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	00
PART I: Yesterday
1. Introduction: Not waving but drowning?	3
2. Not so recent British sociology	7
3. When we were very young	24
4. The sociology of this and that	29
PART II: All things new?
5. A new sociology? Catching the Millsian imagination	43
6. The sociology of economic life: a growth industry?	53
7. A new criminology: somewhere over the rainbow	109
8. An educational Babel?	123
9. Religion: where the action isn't?	132
10. Communication: a brief excursus	140
11. Towns and cities: conflicts in process	143
12. A new sociology of development: panacea or programme?	173
13. Social stratification: the unconcluded argument	181
PART III: Forms of relevance
14. The relevance of history	193
15. The relevance of 'pure' theory	203
PART IV: Bibliography of recent British sociology	219
Other references cited in text	271

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book has grown out of a report that I first wrote for the Sociology Committee of the SSRC. It is now a very different product but I wish to thank the SSRC for permitting me to build upon that work and proceed with this publication. I also wish to mention that I have drawn upon material from two previous papers. These are 'Panaceas and Pragmatism in Industrial Relations' and 'Industrial Relations and Industrial Capitalism'. These references may be located in the bibliography.

I have been fortunate to work in the congenial atmosphere of the Sociology Department at Glasgow University. A number of colleagues have discussed various matters arising in the text with me and I have appreciated that. The responsibility for what follows, however, is mine alone.

I want to record my thanks to Margaret Hall for her immense help in the preparation of the typescript of this book, especially the bibliography which was a very demanding assignment. I also appreciate the courtesy, care and efficiency with which the editorial and production staff at Macmillans have approached their task.

Finally, personal thanks are due to Rosemary Eldridge and our children Paul, Elizabeth and Alison. They tolerate the presence of a sociologist in the house with great humour. They have been very patient and a delight to live with. I dedicate this book to them.