We are acutely conscious of the fact that, although only our names appear on the title page, this book could not have been written without the advice, encouragement and assistance given by many people. Our major debt is to the trade-union representatives, employees and managers at 'Cohall', 'Lifeco' and 'Southbank'. Considerations of anonymity make it impossible for us to acknowledge particular individuals, but we would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who gave so freely of their time during the period of our fieldwork, which was carried out as part of a project sponsored by the Social Science Research Council. Stuart Reid and Tim Snow also worked on the project, and we gratefully acknowledge their help and assistance. Steve Mosley gave invaluable assistance in data processing which frequently went well beyond the call of duty. Molly Allen typed and retyped questionnaires, reports and manuscripts with unfailing cheerfulness and accuracy. Bob Blackburn, Ken Prandy and Sandy Stewart gave much-needed encouragement and advice at the start of our research, and Jon Gubbay and Nick Abercrombie read and commented on the manuscript. Shirley, Gerald, Jenny and Anne will doubtless be relieved that the book has been completed, and to them, many thanks.
