

Hospital at Home

Dedicated to the many hospital patients I have known whose dearest wish was to have been looked after at home, in the hope that those among us who may one day be in a similar position will have that option.

Hospital at Home

The Alternative to General Hospital Admission

Freda Clarke

M
MACMILLAN

© Freda Clarke 1984

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced or transmitted, in any form or by any means, without permission.

First published 1984 by
Higher and Further Education Division
MACMILLAN PUBLISHERS LTD
London and Basingstoke
Companies and representatives throughout the world

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data
Clarke, Freda
Hospital at home.

1. Home care services

I. Title

362.1'4 RA645.3

ISBN 978-0-333-37526-6

ISBN 978-1-349-17693-9 (eBook)

DOI 10.1007/978-1-349-17693-9

Contents

Abbreviations	vi
Acknowledgements	vii
Introduction	1
1 Pre-twentieth-century health provision in Britain: an introductory sketch	7
2 Foundations of modern health care in Britain: a divided medical service and consequences for the sick	21
3 The National Health Service: high-dependency patients at home – the case for a secondary domi- ciliary care service	35
4 Overseas experiments in the home care of the sick	52
5 Hospitalisation à domicile , France: a first-hand account	70
6 Home care experiments in Britain	95
7 Peterborough District Hospital at Home three-year pilot scheme	118
8 ‘Hospital at home’ and the medical profession	135
9 Nurses and home care of the sick	144
10 The other carers	155
11 How to get your local ‘hospital at home’ service	168
12 Summary, conclusions and prospects for the future	183
Appendix A: Some cost findings on the home care of the sick – a reference list	195
Appendix B: Selected book list	197
Appendix C: Official publications	199
Index	200

Abbreviations

AHA	area health authority
BMA	British Medical Association
CCS	(MacMillan) continuing care service
CHC	community health council
DHA	district health authority
DHSS	Department of Health and Social Security
FNEHAD	Fédération Nationale des Etablissements d'Hospitalisation à Domicile (France)
FPC	family practitioner committee
GP	general practitioner
HAD	hospitalisation à domicile (France)
HAH	hospital at home
HSA	hospital savings association
LASSD	local authority social services department
MOH	Ministry of Health; Medical Officer of Health
NHS	National Health Service
NHI	national health insurance
NSCR	National Society for Cancer Relief
UK	United Kingdom

Acknowledgements

To acknowledge everyone who has helped me either directly or indirectly to formulate the ideas contained in this book would be impossible. Their influence extends to a time long before I first set pen to paper. Some, however, must be singled out for special mention:

Friends, colleagues and patients of Barnet General Hospital, alongside whom I worked for many years through a series of health reorganisations.

The British Council, whose fellowship award in 1972 enabled the first of my numerous visits to study hospitalisation à domicile (HAD) in France; the Nuffield Foundation which, in 1977, enabled a joint study visit to various HAD schemes together with Stephen Cang of the Health Services Organisation Research Unit, Brunel University; the Sainsbury Family Charitable Trusts, whose generous grant made possible the first 'hospital at home' experiment under the NHS.

The pioneers and personnel of the Paris, Bayonne, Bordeaux and Grenoble HAD schemes in France, who were unstinting in the time and trouble they took to describe their aims and organisations; nurses and social workers of these schemes, with whom I visited many patients; pioneers and personnel of hospital-based home care schemes in Adelaide and Melbourne (Australia) and Auckland (New Zealand) who kindly wrote to me describing their experiences.

The many people throughout the UK who wrote to me, following publication in the early 1970s of articles on the French HAD experience, urging practical action towards the setting up of similar services under the NHS, including health administrators, doctors and nurses, university staff, members of community health councils and other organisations of patient concern.

Members and staff of the Cambridgeshire Area Health Authority (Teaching), in particular of the Peterborough District, with whom I shared some both stressful and immensely rewarding times; members of the Peterborough Hospital at Home scheme's steering group; the first patients of the Peterborough Hospital at Home scheme, whose testimony of the benefits of HAH left no doubt in the mind as to the need throughout the NHS for realistic alternatives to general hospital admission.

Finally, on a personal note, I should like to thank Joyce Meadows and Shirley Johnston for their painstaking help in typing successive drafts of this book, Ruth Richardson for her help and guidance in its literary expression, and Arthur and Richard Clarke for their suggestions, criticisms and morale-boosting support through many difficult times.

No person other than myself bears any responsibility for the validity of the historical material contained in this book, nor for its interpretation.