PRACTICAL SOCIAL WORK

Series Editor: Jo Campling

BASW

Social work is at an important stage in its development. All professions must be responsive to changing social and economic conditions if they are to meet the needs of those they serve. This series focuses on sound practice and the specific contribution which social workers can make to the well-being of our society in the 1980s.

The British Association of Social Workers has always been conscious of its role in setting guidelines for practice and in seeking to raise professional standards. The conception of the Practical Social Work series arose from a survey of BASW members to discover where they, the practitioners in social work, felt there was the most need for new literature. The response was overwhelming and enthusiastic, and the result is a carefully planned, coherent series of books. The emphasis is firmly on practice, set in a theoretical framework. The books will inform, stimulate and promote discussion, thus adding to the further development of skills and high professional standards. All the authors are practitioners and teachers of social work representing a wide variety of experience.

Acknowledgements

Bill Beaumont and Hilary Walker would like to thank the contributors for their commitment to this co-operative project and acknowledge the support of others with whom we discussed the ideas in, and progress of, this book. We appreciate the efforts of all those who have worked hard to help prepare the manuscripts. Our thanks also go to Jo Campling who suggested that we might try again! Paul James's thanks go to Barbara for her support, encouragement and advice, and to Liz Harris for making sense of his scrawl and typing Chapter 8 into reasonable English. Kevin Kirwin's thanks go to all the secretaries and probation officers at Notting Hill for their help and encouragement, and particularly to Rascha Martell for typing his chapter. Also to Jean McEvoy and Jane Burke for their constructive comments on the first draft. Margaret Powell's thanks go to Anne Thomas for typing Chapter 2.
