CONTEMPORARY SOCIAL THEORY

General Editor: ANTHONY GIDDENS

This series aims to create a forum for debate between different theoretical and philosophical traditions in the social sciences. As well as covering broad schools of thought, the series will also concentrate upon the work of particular thinkers whose ideas have had a major impact on social science (these books appear under the sub-series title of 'Theoretical Traditions in the Social Sciences'). The series is not limited to abstract theoretical discussion – it will also include more substantive works on contemporary capitalism, the state, politics and other subject areas.

I wish to thank: the Nuffield Foundation for a small grant which enabled me to visit America in the spring of 1981 in order to work on Chapter 5, and Roscoe Hinkle and his colleagues at the Department of Sociology, The Ohio State University, Columbus, who did so much to help me; colleagues and students at the University of Salford, especially Douglas Webster and Paul Keating, for comments on a succession of seminar papers on positivism; Anthony Giddens for his comments on an earlier draft of the book and Jennifer Platt for comments on an earlier draft of Chapter 5; Ruth Fingerhut, Sue Young and Sheila Walker for their expeditious typing; and my wife and children for their support and encouragement at all times.
