ISSUES IN POLITICAL THEORY

Political Theory has undergone a remarkable development in recent years. From a state in which it was once declared dead, it has come to occupy a central place in the study of Politics. Both political ideas and the wide-ranging arguments to which they give rise are now treated in a rigorous, analytical fashion, and political theorists have contributed to disciplines as diverse as economics, sociology and law. These developments have made the subject more challenging and exciting, but they have also added to the difficulties of students and others coming to the subject for the first time. Much of the burgeoning literature in specialist books and journals is readily intelligible only to those who are already well-versed in the subject.

Issues in Political Theory is a series conceived in response to this situation. It consists of a number of detailed and comprehensive studies of issues central to Political Theory which take account of the latest developments in scholarly debate. While making original contributions to the subject, books in the series are written especially for those who are new to Political Theory. Each volume aims to introduce its readers to the intricacies of a fundamental political issue and to help them find their way through the detailed, and often complicated, argument that issue has attracted.

PETER JONES
ALBERT WEALE

ISSUES IN POLITICAL THEORY

Series editors: PETER JONES and ALBERT WEALE

Published

Christopher J. Berry: Human Nature

Michael Lessnoff: Social Contract

Richard Lindley: Autonomy

Andrew Reeve: Property

Forthcoming

David Beetham: Legitimacy

Tom Campbell: Justice

Tim Gray: Freedom

John Horton: Political Obligation

Peter Jones: Rights

Susan Mendus: Toleration and the Limits of Liberty

Raymond Plant: Equality

Hillel Steiner: Utilitarianism

Property

Andrew Reeve

M
MACMILLAN

© Andrew Reeve 1986

All rights reserved. No reproduction, copy or transmission of this publication may be made without written permission.

No paragraph of this publication may be reproduced, copied or transmitted save with written permission or in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright Act 1956 (as amended).

Any person who does any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

First published 1986

Published by
MACMILLAN EDUCATION LTD
Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 2XS
and London
Companies and representatives
throughout the world

Typeset by
Wessex Typesetters
(Division of The Eastern Press Ltd)
Frome, Somerset

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data
Reeve, Andrew

Property.—(Issues in political theory)

1. Property—Political aspects

I. Title II. Series

330'.17 HB701

ISBN 0-333-36797-9 Pbk

ISBN 978-0-333-36797-1 ISBN 978-1-349-18411-8 (eBook)

DOI 10.1007/978-1-349-18411-8

For my mother

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
1 Introduction	1
2 'Property', 'Ownership' and Political Theory	9
Ordinary language analysis	10
Jurisprudence	13
Economics	23
Economic and legal history	26
Normative analysis	27
Public property and public ownership	29
3 On the 'History' of Property	38
A framework for 'property'	39
Debate about the modern concept of property	45
Creation stories and the importance of John Locke	51
Adam Smith and social development	57
Evolution and modes of production	63
Conclusion	74
4 Property, Liberty and Power	77
Land and the means of production	80
Property, the market and capitalism	94
Property, power and the state	101
Liberty and property	105
5 Property and Labour	112
Property as an incentive to labour	116
Individual entitlement to the product of labour	122
Property as fulfilment or objectification	136
Private property and alienated labour	143

6	Property and Time	152
	Inheritance	153
	Property, stability and continuity	163
	Intergenerational justice	166
7	Conclusion	179
	Guide to Further Reading	188
	Bibliography	190
	Index	199

Acknowledgements

My interest in the political theory of property began with a postgraduate project concerned with the seventeenth century. I remain indebted to a number of individuals and institutions who helped me to pursue it – especially Mr Keith Thomas, the Fellows of Nuffield College and the Social Science Research Council. My colleagues at Warwick have sharpened my appreciation of the complexities of the subject by their candid criticism and by their ability to draw on an extensive – and sometimes esoteric – range of material. I am also grateful to friends in Edinburgh, whose hospitality I enjoyed while planning this book. Participants in seminars at Edinburgh, Manchester, Lancaster and Birmingham helped me with their comments. John Cunliffe and Timothy Kenyon subjected earlier versions to careful and incisive criticism. I am also grateful to the editors for their help and encouragement. While these friends have increased the pleasures of exploring an issue in political theory, I would not wish to implicate them in responsibility for what follows.

ANDREW REEVE