A Land Fit for Heroin?

A Land Fit for Heroin?

Drug policies, prevention and practice

Edited by Nicholas Dorn
and
Nigel South

Macmillan Education

Editorial matter and selection © Nicholas Dorn and Nigel South 1987
Chapters 1 and 4 © Institute for the Study of Drug Dependence 1987
Chapter 2 © Gerry Stimson 1987
Chapter 3 © Geoffrey Pearson 1987
Chapter 5 © Susanne MacGregor and Betsy Ettorre 1987

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 1987

All rights reserved. For information, write:
Scholarly & Reference Division,
St. Martin's Press, Inc.,
175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY10010

First published in the United States of America in 1987

ISBN 978-0-312-01254-0

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

A Land fit for heroin?

Bibliography: p.

Includes index.

1. Heroin habit—Great Britain. 2. Heroin habit—
Government policy—Great Britain. 3. Drug abuse—
Government policy—Great Britain. I. Dorn, Nicholas.
II. South, Nigel. [DNLM: 1. Health Policy—Great Britain.
2. Heroin Dependence. 3. Legislation, Drug—
Great Britain. WM 288 L253]
HV5822.H4L36 1987 362.2'938'0941 87-16327

ISBN 978-0-333-44152-7 ISBN 978-1-349-18892-5 (eBook)

DOI 10.1007/978-1-349-18892-5

To John Auld

Friend and colleague, who suggested the title and whose companionship, creativity and critical comment we greatly miss

Contents

Acknowledgements	x
Notes on the contributors	xi
List of abbreviations	xiii
Introduction	1
1 Heroin today: commodity, consumption, control and care	11
ISDD Research and Development Unit
Origins of heroin	11
Availability	12
The range of effects sought by users	13
Patterns of use and their consequences	16
Overdoses	23
Criminality and heroin	25
Health and welfare responses	29
A new balance of control policies	32
2 The war on heroin: British policy and the international trade in illicit drugs	35
Gerry Stimson
The medico-centrism of British policy	36
The heroin market	39
Law and order and the ‘war on drugs’	41
The effectiveness of the law enforcement response	44
Policy options – the issues and the questions	55

3	Social deprivation, unemployment and patterns of heroin use	62
	Geoffrey Pearson
	Some initial confusions and complexities	63
	Neighbourhood studies: unemployment, housing and heroin	69
	Activity or passivity? Messages from North America	76
	Life on the dole: killing time and creating meaning	83
4	How families and communities respond to heroin	95
	Martin Donoghoe, Nicholas Dorn, Christine James, Stephen Jones, Jane Ribbens and Nigel South
	A town lies in wait	97
	Case study: a problem in the family	102
	Parents drawing upon the resources of the 'parent movement'	105
	Public activism as a context for parental care	110
	State and professional initiatives	116
	Conclusion	121
5	From treatment to rehabilitation – aspects of the evolution of British policy on the care of drug-takers	125
	Susanne MacGregor and Betsy Ettorre
	How serious is the drugs problem in Britain?	126
	Treating heroin addicts: the development of the 'British system'	128
	The emergence of rehabilitation as an adjunct to treatment	131
	Current government strategy and the Central Funding Initiative (CFI)	138
	Criticism of existing services	140
	A pragmatic approach: a full response linked with the awareness of gender and race	141
	Conclusion	143
6	Reconciling policy and practice	146
	Nicholas Dorn and Nigel South
	The stances of the political parties	148

A framework for policy at local, national and international levels	150
Grassroots strategies: learning from experience	151
Innovative national or local strategies to reduce drug distribution	160
Contradictions at the international level: tackling the problem at source?	165
Bibliography	170
Author index	181
Subject index	184

Acknowledgements

We thank our colleagues at the Institute for the Study of Drug Dependence, in particular Jasper Woodcock for his helpful suggestions. The authors of Chapter 4 add thanks to the Department of Health and Social Security and to a charitable trust for funding two studies drawn upon, and further thanks to Lorraine Lucas and Valerie MacNeshie for transcribing endless taped interviews and drafts.

*Nicholas Dorn
Nigel South*

Notes on the contributors

Martin Donoghoe is a student in the Department of Applied Social Studies in the Polytechnic of North London.

Nicholas Dorn, PhD, is Assistant Director (Research) at the Institute for the Study of Drug Dependence (ISDD), London. He is author of Alcohol, Youth and the State and of several works with Nigel South and others and is a consultant for the United Nations Development Programme.

Betsy Ettorre, PhD, is a Research Associate in the Department of Politics and Sociology at Birkbeck College, University of London. She is author of Lesbians, Women and Society and has conducted studies at the Addiction Research Unit, Institute of Psychiatry, London University.

Christine James is a Research Officer at ISDD where she is working on community responses and youth-work practice in relation to drugs. Previously she worked in community work and has studied sociology and health education.

Stephen Jones is a student in the Department of Applied Social Studies in the Polytechnic of North London. During 1986 he and Martin Donoghoe were placement students at ISDD.

Susanne MacGregor, PhD, is Senior Lecturer in the Department of Politics and Sociology at Birkbeck College. She is author of Politics and Poverty and a co-author of Dealing with Drug Misuse and is directing a major study of the government's Central Funding Initiative on services for drug users.

Geoffrey Pearson is Professor of Social Work at Middlesex Polytechnic. He is author of The Deviant Imagination and Hooligan: A History of Respectable Fears and recently conducted a study of heroin in the north of England.

Jane Ribbens is a postgraduate student in the Department of Sociology at Essex University. She was formerly a Research Officer at ISDD and co-author of a short book, Coping with a Nightmare: Family feelings about long term drug use.

Gerry Stimson, PhD, is Principal Lecturer in Sociology at Goldsmiths College, University of London. He is author of numerous publications on drug problems including Heroin and Behaviour and (with Edna Oppenheimer) Heroin Addiction; Treatment and Control in Britain.

Nigel South, PhD, is a Research Officer at ISDD. He is co-author with Nicholas Dorn of Message in a Bottle and of Helping Drug Users and is author of Policing for Profit: Private Security in Britain.

List of abbreviations

ACDD	Advisory Committee on Drug Dependence
ACMD	Advisory Council on Misuse of Drugs
ADFAM	Aid for Addicts and Families
CFI	Central Funding Initiative
DAWN	Drugs Alcohol Women Nationally
DDU	Drug Dependency Unit
DHSS	Department of Health and Social Security
ED	Enumeration District (census)
FA	Families Anonymous
GP	General Practitioner (family doctor)
HMSO	Her Majesty's Stationery Office
ISDD	Institute for the Study of Drug Dependence
NACRO	National Association for the Care and Resettlement of Offenders
NIDA	National Institute on Drug Abuse (USA)
OPUS	Organisation of Parents under Stress
PNCB	Pakistan Narcotics Control Board
RCMP	Royal Canadian Mounted Police
RCS	Regional Crime Squad
SCPS	Society of Civil and Public Servants (UK)
UNFDAC	United Nations Fund for Drug Abuse Control