The 1970s and 1980s have seen an explosion of publishing by, about and for women. This new list is designed to make a particular contribution to this process by commissioning and publishing books which consolidate and advance feminist research and debate in key areas in a form suitable for students, academics and researchers but also accessible to a broader general readership.

As far as possible books will adopt an international perspective incorporating comparative material from a range of countries where this is illuminating. Above all they will be interdisciplinary, aiming to put women's studies and feminist discussion firmly on the agenda in subject-areas as disparate as law, physical education, art and social policy.

This book began while I was working with the Girls and Occupational Choice project at the University of London Institute of Education in a fruitful and productive environment. I have carried the book with me through Helsinki University Sociology Department to the Department of Sociology of Education at the University of Joensuu. I would like to thank the Finnish Academy, who partly funded the work. Various people have been influential in the shaping of this book, and numerous discussions have been interesting and stimulating. I would like to name some of those who have given me food for thought and read sections of the manuscript: Lynne Chisholm, Dougie Gordon, Janet Holland, Marja Holmila, Pertti Koistinen, Leena Koski, Eeva Peltonen, Vesa Puuronen and Liisa Rantalaiho. The following organisations were helpful: Maternity Alliance, Hackney African Organisation, and in Finland Yksinhuoltajien liitto, Social Democratic Women, Folk Democratic Women, SETA and Unioni Naisasialiitto. The editor of the series, Jo Campling, deserves to be thanked; she has always been very encouraging at appropriate points. I would like to thank all the women who agreed to be interviewed; though the writing of this book has, on the whole, been interesting, no doubt the most memorable and interesting part for me was meeting all of them. I am grateful to them for sharing their thoughts with me; if this book is a product of those meetings, they meant a great deal to me personally as well. Last but not least, I am indebted to the members of my family, Dougie, Mikko and Janne; I thank them for their support during what has in many ways been a period of change in our lives. I am additionally grateful to Dougie for proof-reading the whole manuscript.
