Mental Health, Race and Culture

The Issues in Mental Health series is published in association with:

MIND (National Association for Mental Health)
22 Harley Street, London W1N 2ED (071-637-0741)

MIND is the leading mental health organisation in England and Wales. It works for a better life for people diagnosed, labelled or treated as mentally ill. It does this through campaigning, influencing government policy, training, education and service provision. Throughout its work MIND reflects its awareness of black and ethnic communities, and draws on the expertise of people with direct experience as providers and users of mental health services.

The points of view expressed in this publication do not necessarily reflect MIND policy.

I am indebted to many works of scholarship in the fields of medicine, psychiatry, psychology and religion, especially those works that cut across these disciplines. However, this book would not have been possible without the stimulation I derived from discussions with numerous colleagues of various disciplines, the insight I gained through talking to people I met as patients or clients, and, most of all, the forbearance and patience shown by my wife and daughter.
