Again we are greatly in debt to the many colleagues and students who have commented on earlier editions of the book and on the manuscript of this one. In particular, we would like to mention Gillian Court, Damaris Le Grand, Phillipa Marks, Robin Means, Tony O'Sullivan, Randall Smith and Christine Whitehead for helpful comments on specific chapters. A succession of editors at Macmillan have patiently endured a succession of missed deadlines without any flagging in their encouragement or commitment; the most recent (and the most patient) is Stephen Rutt. Finally, we are deeply grateful to Lorraine Cantle, who had not only to do much of the typing, but also to manage three authors and several word processors, separated geographically and often technologically. All this she did with her customary speed, efficiency and, above all, good humour.
