Social work is at an important stage in its development. All professions must be responsive to changing social and economic conditions if they are to meet the needs of those they serve. This series focuses on sound practice and the specific contributions which social workers can make to the well-being of our society.

The British Association of Social Workers has always been conscious of its role in setting guidelines for practice and in seeking to raise professional standards. The conception of the Practical Social Work series arose from a survey of BASW members to discover where they, the practitioners in social work, felt there was the most need for new literature. The response was overwhelming and enthusiastic, and the result is a carefully planned, coherent series of books. The emphasis is firmly on practice set in a theoretical framework. The books will inform, stimulate and promote discussion, thus adding to the further development of skills and high professional standards. All the authors are practitioners and teachers of social work representing a wide variety of experience.

Acknowledgements

The main stimulus for writing this book has been the dialogue and discussion generated through teaching ethics to trainee social workers, both at Durham and especially the many cohorts of York University Master of Social Work students.

I would like to thank the social workers who were prepared to discuss their ethical dilemmas with me – particularly trainee social workers from the Universities of York and Durham, and social workers from County Durham Social Services Department. I am also grateful to the Social Services Departments of Durham, Newcastle and Sunderland for providing me with documentation, and to the International Federation of Social Workers and the professional associations across the world that sent copies of their ethical codes. Many colleagues have offered encouragement and been prepared to discuss aspects of the book with me including Margaret Bell, Tim Bond, Lorna Durrani, Umme Imam, Juliet Koprowska, Kate Leonard, Una McCluskey, Audrey Mullender, Alf Ronnby, Muriel Sawbridge, Mark Smith and Bill Williamson. I have also benefited from Jo Campling's enthusiastic support, and the helpful comments of two anonymous referees.

Finally, I would like to thank my colleagues at Durham University for giving me space to complete a large part of the book during a period of research leave, Ken Fairless for his continuous support and encouragement and Fred Banks for first pointing me in the direction of moral philosophy.
