RELIGION AND SOCIETY IN ENGLAND, 1850–1914

Social History in Perspective

General Editor: Jeremy Black

Social History in Perspective is a new series of in-depth studies of the many topics in social, cultural and religious history of interest to students. The books will give the student clear surveys of the subject and also present the most recent research in an accessible way.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The work of oral historians has provided one of the most important sources for this book. I would therefore like to begin by thanking Alan Bartlett, John Fletcher, Elizabeth Roberts, Gillian Rose, Raphael Samuel, Paul Thompson, Thea Thompson and Avon County Reference Library for allowing me to listen to tapes or read transcripts of interviews, and to quote from them. I would also like to thank the Faculty of Arts at Birmingham University for research grants, and Harry Buglass of the Department of Ancient History and Archaeology for drawing the maps. Much of the writing was done while I was a Visiting Fellow at the Research Centre Religion and Society at the University of Amsterdam, so I would like to thank the members of the Centre for inviting me and for being generous hosts and, in particular, Peter van Rooden for extensive discussions. Most of all I would like to thank my wife Jackie for many forms of help and encouragement.
