Conceptualizing the West in International Relations

Also by Jacinta O'Hagan

CONTENDING IMAGES OF WORLD POLITICS (co-editor with Greg Fry)

Conceptualizing the West in International Relations

From Spengler to Said

Jacinta O'Hagan

*School of Political Science and International Studies
University of Queensland Australia*

palgrave

© Jacinta O' Hagan 2002

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2002 978-0-333-92037-4

All rights reserved. No reproduction, copy or transmission of this publication may be made without written permission.

No paragraph of this publication may be reproduced, copied or transmitted save with written permission or in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, or under the terms of any licence permitting limited copying issued by the Copyright Licensing Agency, 90 Tottenham Court Road, London W1T 4LP.

Any person who does any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

The author has asserted her right to be identified as the author of this work in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

First published 2002 by

PALGRAVE

Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS and

175 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10010

Companies and representatives throughout the world

PALGRAVE is the new global academic imprint of St. Martin's Press LLC Scholarly and Reference Division and Palgrave Publishers Ltd (formerly Macmillan Press Ltd).

ISBN 978-1-349-42452-8 ISBN 978-1-4039-0752-3 (eBook)

DOI 10.1057/9781403907523

This book is printed on paper suitable for recycling and made from fully managed and sustained forest sources.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

O'Hagan, Jacinta.

Conceptualizing the West in international relations: from Spengler to Said/
Jacinta O'Hagan.

p. cm

Originally presented as the author's thesis (doctoral – Australian National University).

Includes bibliographical references and index.

1. Western Hemisphere – Foreign relations. 2. International relations – Philosophy.
3. Critical theory. I. Title.

JZ1464.O36 2002

327'.09182'1–dc21

2001058058

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

11 10 09 08 07 06 05 04 03 02

Typeset by EXPO Holdings, Malaysia

For Gary

Contents

Acknowledgements	viii
Introduction: The West and Cultural World Order	1
1 The West, Civilizations and International Relations Theory	21
2 Towards a Framework for Conceptualizing the West in International Relations	43
3 Faust in the Twilight: Conceptions of the West in Oswald Spengler	59
4 The Parochial Civilization: Arnold Toynbee's Conception of the West	83
5 Universalizing the West? The Conception of the West in the Work of the 'International Society' School	108
6 History's End? Francis Fukuyama's Conception of the West	132
7 Civilizations in Conflict: Samuel Huntington's Conception of the West	157
8 The Occident and its Significant 'Other': Edward Said's West	185
Conclusion: Continuities and Difference: Conceptions of the West and Cultural World Order Compared	212
Notes	241
Bibliography	253
Index	278

Acknowledgements

The writing of this book has been for me a journey of inquiry and exploration at many levels. During the course of this journey, I have been fortunate to enjoy the companionship and support of many friends and colleagues whom I would like to thank. The book has developed out of my Ph.D. dissertation that was pursued at the Australian National University and, in part, during a short association with the Center for International Studies at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The original manuscript was revised during a year spent as a Visiting Scholar at the Center for International Studies, the University of Southern California and subsequently after joining the School of Political Science and International Studies at the University of Queensland. I am grateful to all of these institutions for their support. Some of the ideas developed in this book have appeared in earlier form in 'Civilizational Conflict? Looking for Cultural Enemies', Third World Quarterly, vol. 16, no. 1 (1995); 'Conflict, Convergence or Co-existence? The Relevance of Culture in Reframing World Order' published in Transnational Law & Contemporary Problems, vol. 9, no. 2. (1999); 'A Clash of "Civilisations"?' in Contending Images of World Politics (Basingstoke: Macmillan – now Palgrave, 2000).

This project was inspired and coaxed from me by two remarkable teachers and colleagues, Jim Richardson and Greg Fry. Together they encouraged me to pursue the goals of critical inquiry and clarity of thought; goals I am still striving to achieve. Most importantly, they taught me not to be afraid to ask the 'big questions'. I am also indebted to Peter Van Ness and Paul Keal whose insights, promptings and encouragement have been invaluable. I thank Andrew Linklater and Richard Falk for their constructive comments on the earlier versions of this manuscript. At various points in this project Hayward Alker has challenged and provoked my thinking and my method in an exuberant manner that I have always benefited from.

While at the Australian National University I enjoyed and was stimulated by the company of my fellow graduates and teaching colleagues and, ever dependent on Lynne Payne and Amy Chen for technical support, I thank you all for this. At the University of California, I greatly appreciated the support of Laurie Brand, Steve Lamy, Ann Tickner, Geoff Wiseman and in particular Patti Goff, my 'fellow fellow' who helped make the LA leg of the journey all the more fun and productive! Thanks also to Marisella, Mara, Melissa and Claude. My new colleagues at the University of Queensland have been stalwart in their patience and encouragement, in particular Roland Bleiker, Bill Tow and Marianne Hanson. Chris Reus-Smit has been valiant in reviewing the penultimate version of this manuscript and I have benefited greatly from his insights. I am grateful for the encouragement Chris, Heather Rae and Gavin Mount have provided over the years. Thanks also to Patrick Jackson and Mark Salter for sharing their insights on civilisations. Alan Treadgold, Ann Gunn and Richard Thomson kindly read and commented upon earlier versions of this manuscript. My thanks to all those who gave me their valuable time and their insights in the course of this research. Thanks also to Alison Howson of Palgrave for her patience and understanding of transpacific shifts and lost dogs and to Lesley Steward for her editorial assistance. I am deeply indebted to Robin Ward for her professional expertise indexing volume, and for her calming advice. I have also benefited greatly from Geordie's quiet companionship and attention to my exercise regime.

Finally, a project such as this cannot be pursued without the love and support of family. The faith and confidence mine have shown in me have always been a source of strength and perseverance. I thank my parents Michael and Esmay O'Hagan for encouraging me to learn and, in particular, my sister Roisin O'Hagan for her ever-cheerful encouragement and understanding. The unwavering love and support of my husband Gary Frontin have made this book possible. I dedicate it to him.