Acknowledgements

This book could not have been completed without the assistance of numerous individuals and institutions. In particular I would like to acknowledge the help and assistance that I received from the staff at the Public Records Office at Kew, the British Library, the National Maritime Museum, the Imperial War Museum, the Royal Marines Museum, the Churchill Archives Centre, the Liddell-Hart Centre for Military Archives, the Ministry of Defence Naval Historical Branch, the National Register of Archives and the Joint Services Command and Staff College Library.

The Department of War Studies at King's College, London and the Defence Studies Department at the Joint Services Command and Staff College have proven stimulating environments in which to work and I owe a debt of gratitude to my colleagues at both of these institutions. Particular mention must be made of Professor Andrew Lambert and Professor Geoffrey Till for their constant advice and support. I would also like to thank Admiral Sir James Eberle, Captain Robert Franks RN and Dr Spencer Mawby for their help with the draft manuscript. I owe my greatest debt to my parents, without whose support and encouragement this work could not have been completed and to Colette who has lived with this project for as long as I have and has kept me sane during the process.
