Acknowledgements

I wish to thank the Economic and Social Research Council (grant number R00429124310) and the Central Research Fund of the University of London for providing financial support for the original research.

My particular thanks go to all the interviewees for giving their time to this work. Many colleagues and friends have helped me complete this book. I am particularly grateful to Dr Simon Duncan of the University of Bradford for reading the manuscript and making helpful comments, and for his invaluable advice and encouragement throughout the project period. Special thanks must also go to Dr Gregory Andrusz of Middlesex University for many insightful conversations, and his never fading support throughout my academic career. I would also like to thank Professor Linda Hantrais of Loughborough University, and Dr Mark Kleinman and Dr Kathleen Kiernan of the London School of Economics for their critical comments on an earlier version of this work. Dr Steen Mangan of the LSE and my colleagues in the Social Science Research Centre at South Bank University provided invaluable encouragement in the final stages of this book. I have had valuable help from a network of friends. I am most grateful to Dr Soraya Cortes for many insightful conversations on the work. Special thanks must go to Amparo Restrepo and Regina Sonet Mancho for helping translate the questionnaires into Spanish, Elsa Sanchez for transcribing the Spanish interview tapes, and Andrea Höfling for some of the German tapes. Thanks also to Wendy Lewsey, Hildegard Nagele and Claudia Stendel-King for proof-reading an earlier manuscript. I am also grateful to friends and others who provided me with contacts to find interviewees. Melita Wenzel and Regina Sonet Mancho made my stay in Frankfurt and Madrid not only a working period. The daily conversations with Regina's mother Dori were particularly useful in preparing myself for the Spanish interviews. Last, but not least, I would like to thank my mother for taking care of me during most of the writing-up stage of this work, and Ruth Willats (Palgrave) for ensuring this book is presentable and complete.
