Private Topographies

This page intentionally left blank

Private Topographies

Space, Subjectivity, and Political Change in Modern Latin America

Marzena Grzegorzcyk

palgrave
macmillan

ISBN 978-1-4039-6748-0
DOI 10.1057/9781403978639

ISBN 978-1-4039-7863-9 (eBook)

PRIVATE TOPOGRAPHIES

© Marzena Grzegorzczuk, 2005.

Reprint of the original edition 2005

Parts of this book appeared in somewhat different form in Journal of Latin American Cultural Studies (Vol. 12, No. 3, 2003, "Agoraphobia and Modernity in fin-de-siècle Brazil: On Dom Casmurro" Vol. 7, No. 1; 1988, "From Urb of Clay to the Hypodermic City. Improper Cities in Modern Latin America") and in Journal of Iberian and Latin American Studies (Vol. 8, No. 1, 2002, "Lost Space: Juana Manuela Gorriti's Postcolonial Geography").

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be used or reproduced in any manner whatsoever without written permission except in the case of brief quotations embodied in critical articles or reviews.

First published in 2005 by

PALGRAVE MACMILLAN™

175 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10010 and

Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire, England RG21 6XS

Companies and representatives throughout the world.

PALGRAVE MACMILLAN is the global academic imprint of the Palgrave Macmillan division of St. Martin's Press, LLC and of Palgrave Macmillan Ltd. Macmillan® is a registered trademark in the United States, United Kingdom and other countries. Palgrave is a registered trademark in the European Union and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-4039-6748-0

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Grzegorzczuk, Marzena.

Private topographies : space, subjectivity, and political change in modern Latin America / edited by Marzena Grzegorzczuk.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-1-4039-6748-0 (CL)

1. Latin American prose literature—19th century—History and criticism.
2. Creoles in literature.
3. Space and time in literature.
4. Latin America—History—Autonomy and independence movements.
5. Literature and society—Latin America. I. Title.

PQ7082.P76G78 2004

860.9'358—dc22

2004054412

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

Design by Newgen Imaging Systems (P) Ltd., Chennai, India.

First edition: February 2005

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1

To Joanna, Eugeniusz and Ania Grzegorzcyk

This page intentionally left blank

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: Private Topographies	1
Transition as a Culture of Event	4
Private Topographies	11
1. Travel, Experience, and Reflection: Readerly Topography in El Periquillo Sarmiento	19
Colonial Identifications	20
Model(ing) Citizens	23
“To Be” or “To Appear”? An Experiment in Representation	26
The Anti-Aesthetics of Space	29
The Epistemology of Blurred Vision	31
Topography of Reflection	38
2. Theatricality: On Creole Agency in Sarmiento’s Trilogy Civilización y barbarie	47
Topography as Discipline	48
A Museum of Wounds	51
The Synthesizing Subject	56
Creator of Images	66
On Form: Politically, Discursively	73
3. Lost Space: Juana Manuela Gorriti’s Postcolonial Geography	75
A Postcolonial Vita	78
The Abandoned House	79
Negative Spatiality	83
On Collecting	86

4. Building in 1900: An Agoraphobic Tale	93
Ambiguity	94
This Old House	97
Narrating the Post-Heroic	102
Delineations: On Building and Writing	106
The Vertigo of Privacy	109
The Economy of Agoraphobia	112
5. Eclipse of Reason: Euclides da Cunha's "Improper City"	115
Between the Body and the Map	116
Process Against the City	118
Urban Confrontations	125
On Agitated Structures	127
Conclusion	131
Notes	141
Works Cited	167
Index	185

Acknowledgments

While working on this book I have incurred many personal and intellectual debts. Julio Ramos's inspiring scholarship and perceptive suggestions have been a necessary constant during this journey; Mary Louise Pratt's intellectual rigor has been a model worth emulating; Sepp Gumbrecht's philosophy reading group at Stanford University, his tough questions and insightful comments offered me intellectual stimulation and fruitful direction for my research.

These pages owe much to the intellectual generosity, friendship, and encouragement that I have received from my friends Carl Good, Eugenia Afinoguenova, Roland Greene, Deepika Petraglia-Bahri, Silvia Spitta. I thank Carl Good, Benjamin Robinson, Hubert Tworzecki, Leonardo García-Pabón, Guido Podestá, Dane Johnson, and Paul Miller for their patience and generosity in evaluating drafts of my work. With their insightful questions and thoughtful comments, my students at Emory University offered me quick and invaluable feedback for my ideas that were in the process of taking shape. I am also indebted to my interlocutors from Buenos Aires, in particular, Ana María Barranechea, Cristina Iglesia, Noé Jitrik, Beatriz Sarlo, José Sazbón, and Liliana Zuccotti. My friends from Salta offered me hospitality while I was exploring the landscape that originally captured my imagination in Gorriti's texts.

The Emory University Research Committee supported a summer of fieldwork. The Getty Center in Santa Monica, Dartmouth College (conference "Space across Borders," 1999) and University of Bristol, UK ("Negotiating the Streets: New Perspectives on the Hispanic & Lusophone City," 2004) provided me with a demanding interdisciplinary audience for my work.

I am particularly grateful to several anonymous readers for their serious engagement with my ideas, wonderfully detailed readings, and stimulating comments that helped me immensely in the process of revising the manuscript. I would also like to express my appreciation to Gabriella Pearce of St. Martin's Press for her patience and professionalism in guiding this project to successful publication.

My biggest gratitude goes to my partner, Hubert, whose love, intellectual companionship, and sense of humor have been essential to me. I dedicate this book to my parents, Joanna and Eugeniusz Grzegorzczuk, and to my sister Ania, who has always assisted me when I was in need of transcontinental communication.