

Victorian Environmental Nightmares

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Both editors wish to formally commend our contributors for their exceptional response to our solicitation for articles, for their cheerful responses to our queries, and for their promptness in meeting deadlines.

Laurence W. Mazzeno wishes to acknowledge the assistance he received from the staff of the Frank A. Franco Library at Alvernia University, and the staff of the Jefferson County Public Library in Colorado.

Ronald D. Morrison extends his gratitude to the following individuals at Morehead State University for negotiating a reduced teaching load to support this project: Tom Williams, former Associate Dean of the School of English, Communication, Media, and Languages; Layne Neeper, Associate Dean of the School of English, Communication, Media, and Languages; and John Ernst, Dean of the Caudill College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences.

Laurence W. Mazzeno ·
Ronald D. Morrison
Editors

Victorian Environmental Nightmares

palgrave
macmillan

Editors

Laurence W. Mazzeno
Alvernia University
Reading, PA, USA

Ronald D. Morrison
Department of English
Morehead State University
Morehead, KY, USA

ISBN 978-3-030-14041-0 ISBN 978-3-030-14042-7 (eBook)
<https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-030-14042-7>

Library of Congress Control Number: 2019932941

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s) 2019

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use. The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

Cover illustration: “The Silent Highway”-man (illustration of the polluted Thames River published in Punch July 10, 1858 during the Great Stink) Science History Images/Alamy Stock Photo

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by the registered company Springer Nature Switzerland AG
The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

CONTENTS

- 1 Introduction: Representing Victorian Environmental Nightmares 1
Laurence W. Mazzeno and Ronald D. Morrison
- Part I At Home
- 2 The Assumption of the Dragon: Ruskin's Mythic Vision 25
Sara Atwood
- 3 Elizabeth Barrett Browning's Failed Pastoral and the Environments of the Poor 45
Mary Sanders Pollock
- 4 Pip's Nightmare and Orlick's Dream 61
Allen MacDuffie
- Part II Abroad
- 5 Frances Trollope's Domestic Manners of the Americans and the EcoGothic 81
Ronald D. Morrison

6	James Thomson's Deserts John Miller	101
7	"Tragic ring-barked forests" and the "Wicked Wood": Haunting Environmental Anxiety in Late Nineteenth-Century Australian Literature Susan K. Martin	121
8	"Rivers Change Like Nations": Reading Eco-Apocalypse in The Waters of Edera Alicia Carroll	145
 Part III Imagined Landscapes
9	Disaster and Deserts: Children's Natural History as Nightmare and Dream Naomi Wood	167
10	Imperial Ecologies and Extinction in H. G. Wells's Island Stories Jade Munslow Ong	185
11	Human Intervention and More-Than-Human Humanity in H. G. Wells's The Island of Doctor Moreau Shun Yin Kiang	207
12	Nowhere to Go: Caught Between Nature and Culture in Oscar Wilde's Fairy Tales Susan M. Bernardo	227
13	Ecocrisis and Slow Violence: Anthropocene Readings of Late-Victorian Disaster Narratives Mark Frost	243
	Index	263

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Sara Atwood's work has appeared in The Ruskin Review and Bulletin, Nineteenth-Century Prose, The Journal of Pre-Raphaelite Studies, and Carlyle Studies Annual. Her book Ruskin's Educational Ideals was published by Ashgate in 2011. She is a contributor to the Yale University Press edition of Carlyle's On Heroes, Hero Worship, and the Heroic in History (2013), Teaching Victorian Literature in the Twenty-First Century (Palgrave, 2017), and John Ruskin and Nineteenth-Century Education (Anthem Press, 2018). She has lectured widely on Ruskin, focusing particularly on education, the environment, and language. She is a Companion of the Guild of St. George and editor of its annual journal, The Companion. Dr. Atwood teaches English literature at Portland State University and writing at Portland Community College.

Susan M. Bernardo teaches literary theory, British literature, fairy tales, and science fiction at Wagner College, where she is Professor of English. At conferences, she has presented on Victorian literature (most recently on Edith Nesbit's short fiction and on Oscar Wilde's fairy tales), science fiction, and film. She has co-authored (with Graham Murphy) a book on Ursula Le Guin's works and contributed chapters on Butler's Parable of the Sower and Griffith's Slow River, Eliot's Romola, Mary Shelley's Mathilda, and C. J. Cherryh's Cyteen to various edited volumes. She has edited a book called Environments in Science Fiction: Essays on Alternative Spaces (2014), to which she contributed a chapter on Philip K. Dick's Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep? She has also contributed a chapter to Time Travel Television (editors Sherry Ginn and Gillian Leitch, 2015) and to Tim Burton: Essays on the Films (edited by Johnson Cheu, 2016). Her next book will focus on Star Trek: Voyager.

Alicia Carroll is Associate Professor of English at Auburn University, Auburn, Alabama. She is the author of Dark Smiles: Race and Desire in the Works of George Eliot (2003). Her recent work on Victorians and the environment has appeared in Green Letters: Studies in Ecocriticism, Romantic Ecocriticism: Origins and Legacies, and Victorian Review. She has also published extensively on George Eliot.

Mark Frost is Senior Lecturer in English Literature at the University of Portsmouth, Portsmouth, UK. He is the author of The Lost Companions and John Ruskin's Guild of St. George: A Revisionary History (2014) and articles on Ruskin in Victorian Literature and Culture (2011), Nineteenth-Century Prose (2011), Green Letters: Studies in Ecocriticism (2011), Journal of Commonwealth Literature (2010), The Eighth Lamp: Ruskin Studies Today (2009), and Victorian Writers and the Environment (2017). He is also the editor of the new edition of Richard Jefferies's After London (Edinburgh UP, 2017).

Shun Yin Kiang is an Assistant Professor of English at the University of Central Oklahoma. His research and teaching interests span Victorian and Edwardian literature, twentieth- and twenty-first-century British literature, and contemporary Anglophone fiction, with emphases on the novel, postcolonial thought, and ecocriticism. His articles on friendship in Edwardian and twentieth-century English fiction appeared in ARIEL and Creatural Fictions in 2016. He is currently at work on two projects: an essay on magical thinking and assemblages as history in Shani Mootoo's fiction, and guest-editing a special issue of The Global South on the possibilities of and problems with contextualizing the Anglophone novel.

Allen MacDuffie Associate Professor of English at the University of Texas at Austin, is the author of Victorian Literature, Energy, and the Ecological Imagination (Cambridge University Press, 2014), winner of the Sonya Rudikoff Award for the best first scholarly book in the field of Victorian Studies. His essays on Victorian fiction and poetry have appeared in Representations, ELH, PMLA, and Philological Quarterly, and his most recent work, on the television series Breaking Bad and contemporary serial narrative, is forthcoming from Cultural Critique.

Susan K. Martin is Professor in English and Associate Pro Vice-Chancellor (Research) in the College of Arts, Social Sciences and Commerce, La Trobe University, Australia. Her teaching is in Australian studies and Victorian culture. She publishes on nineteenth- to twenty-first-century Anglophone literature and culture, including cultures of reading, garden history, and literature and the environment, in journals including English Studies and Studies in The History of Gardens and Designed Landscapes. Her books include Reading the Garden with Katie Holmes and Kylie Mirmohamadi (2008), Women and Empire (Australia) (2009), Sensational Melbourne (2011), and Colonial Dickens (2012) with Kylie Mirmohamadi. She is currently working with an interdisciplinary team on a project on national identity and the teaching of literature in schools in the digital age.

Laurence W. Mazzeno president emeritus of Alvernia University, is the author or editor of twenty books on British and American literary figures, including two collections of essays co-edited with Ronald D. Morrison, Victorian Writers and the Environment: Ecocritical Perspectives and Animals in Victorian Literature and Culture: Contexts for Criticism. He has published articles in refereed journals, literary journalism, and reference articles, reviews, and selected bibliographies. He served as academic editor for two editions of Masterplots (14 volumes) and has been on the editorial staff of Nineteenth-Century Prose and its predecessor journals since 1980.

John Miller is a Senior Lecturer in Nineteenth-Century Literature at the University of Sheffield. His books include Empire and the Animal Body (Anthem, 2012) and (with Louise Miller) Walrus (Reaktion, 2014). He is co-editor of Palgrave Studies in Animals and Literature, co-director of ShARC (Sheffield Animal Studies Research Centre) and Deputy Chair of ASLE-UKI (Association for Study of Literature and the Environment, UK & Ireland). His current book project is a literary history of fur.

Ronald D. Morrison is Professor of English at Morehead State University. He is co-editor, with Laurence W. Mazzeno, of Victorian Writers and the Environment: Ecocritical Perspectives (Routledge, 2016) and Animals in Victorian Literature and Culture: Contexts for Criticism (Palgrave, 2017). He has published essays on a range of nineteenth-century authors, including Hardy, Dickens, Christina Rossetti, and Wordsworth, among others. He is currently writing a volume on Hardy's novels for MacFarland's new companion series on nineteenth-century authors.

Jade Munslow Ong is Lecturer in English Literature at the University of Salford, Salford, UK. She is the author of Olive Schreiner and African Modernism: Allegory, Empire, and Postcolonial Writing (2017) and articles in The Journal of Postcolonial Writing, The Journal of Commonwealth Literature, The Literary Encyclopedia, A Dictionary of Modernism, and The Yellow Nineties Online. She co-edited a special issue of The Journal of Postcolonial Literature on the topic “Postcolonial Environments: Animals, Ecologies, Localities” (June 2016).

Mary Sanders Pollock Professor of English at Stetson University, teaches nineteenth-century British literature, gender studies, and environmental studies. She is the author of Storytelling Apes: Primatology Narratives Past and Future (Penn State University Press, 2015) and Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning: A Creative Partnership (Ashgate, 2003), and co-editor of two anthologies: Figuring Animals (Palgrave, 2005) and Victorian Literature and Film Adaptation (Cambria, 2011). Her current research for Gerald Durrell and the Little Ones of God explores this author and wildlife conservationist’s response to the sixth extinction.

Naomi Wood is Professor of English at Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas, where she serves as the department’s Director of Undergraduate Studies. She is a specialist in children’s literature with a special focus on the Victorians. Her work has appeared in Marvels & Tales; she also contributed a chapter to Little Red Readings: Historical Materialist Perspectives on Children’s Literature. Wood’s article “Gold Standards and Silver Subversions: Treasure Island and the Romance of Money” received an honor award for criticism from the Children’s Literature Association in 1999. She has published on Victorian fantasists, Walt Disney’s Cinderella, and Philip Pullman’s His Dark Materials. Since 2009 she has served as an editor for The Lion and the Unicorn, a journal devoted to scholarship on children’s literature.