ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The original idea for the book was conceived at a conference titled “The West: Concept, Narrative, and Politics,” at the University of Jyväskylä, Finland, in December 2016. The conference was organized by The West Network (<https://thewestnetwork.org/>), an international, multidisciplinary research network focusing on “the West,” and coordinated from the Department of History and Ethnology at the University of Jyväskylä. During the past decade, the theme of our book, “crises of the liberal West,” has become more topical year by year, although the understanding of these crises has somewhat transformed after 2016.

This book project can be regarded as a continuation, or “volume two,” to the book The Struggle for the West. A divided and contested legacy (Routledge, 2010), jointly edited by Marko Lehti and Christopher Browning. This project is also a logical continuation to the edited volume in Finnish, Länsi: käsite, kertomus, ja maailmankuva (The West: Concept, Narrative and Worldview, SKS, 2016), edited by Jukka Jouhki and Henna-Riikka Pennanen, to which Marko Lehti contributed as an author.

We have presented our work on this volume at the International Studies Association Annual Convention, European International Studies Association Conference, and smaller workshops at our own institutions. We wish to thank The Tampere Peace Research Institute (TAPRI), The John Morton Center for North American Studies (JMC), The Turku Institute for Advanced Studies (TIAS), and the Department of History and Ethnology at University of Jyväskylä for generous collegial support for the project. We also wish to thank a number of excellent scholars, who have found the time to comment on our work and engage in valuable discussion and debates on the main themes of the book. We are especially indebted to Torbjørn Knutsen, Christopher Browning, Viatcheslav Morozov, Pertti Joenniemi, Tarja Väyrynen, Robert Imre, Élise Féron, Benita Heiskanen, and the whole JMC team.
