

Part III

Stream and Event Processing Services

The third part of this book explores new techniques to support approximate and best-effort stream and event processing services for Real-time Linked Dataspaces, which support loose semantic integration and administrative proximity. This part contains chapters covering complex event processing, event service composition, stream dissemination, stream matching, and approximate semantic matching.