

Part IV

Design Alchemy: Self Service

The final part of the text provides a set of resources for design practitioners, especially those who are new and inexperienced in the theories and practices of educational design. In the first chapter a sample design is presented, including the syllabus, for a course where the practice of Design Alchemy can be learned. The second chapter provides a series of templates which can be used to support the practices documented across the narrative. To complete the analysis, the final chapter provides a manifesto, a set of reflections on design thinking, and a brief perspective on the future of learning, teaching and design.
