

Cambridge Imperial and Post-Colonial
Studies Series

Series Editors

Megan Vaughan
University College London
London, United Kingdom

Richard Drayton
Department of History
King's College London
London, United Kingdom

Aim of the series

The Cambridge Imperial and Post-Colonial Studies series is a collection of studies on empires in world history and on the societies and cultures which emerged from colonialism. It includes both transnational, comparative and connective studies, and studies which address where particular regions or nations participate in global phenomena. While in the past the series focused on the British Empire and Commonwealth, in its current incarnation there is no imperial system, period of human history or part of the world which lies outside of its compass. While we particularly welcome the first monographs of young researchers, we also seek major studies by more senior scholars, and welcome collections of essays with a strong thematic focus. The series includes work on politics, economics, culture, literature, science, art, medicine, and war. Our aim is to collect the most exciting new scholarship on world history with an imperial theme.

More information about this series at <http://www.springer.com/series/13937>

Harald Fischer-Tiné
Editor

Anxieties, Fear and Panic in Colonial Settings

Empires on the Verge of a Nervous Breakdown

palgrave
macmillan

Editor

Harald Fischer-Tiné
Zurich, Switzerland

Cambridge Imperial and Post-Colonial Studies Series
ISBN 978-3-319-45135-0      ISBN 978-3-319-45136-7 (eBook)
DOI 10.1007/978-3-319-45136-7

Library of Congress Control Number: 2016962320

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s) 2016

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use. The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made.

Cover image © Lebrecht Music and Arts Photo Library / Alamy Stock Photo

Printed on acid-free paper

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by Springer Nature
The registered company is Springer International Publishing AG
The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

CONTENTS

1	Introduction: Empires and Emotions Harald Fischer-Tiné and Christine Whyte	1
Part I	The Health of Body and Mind	25
2	Minds in Crisis: Medico-moral Theories of Disorder in the Late Colonial World Dane Kennedy	27
3	The Poison Panics of British India David Arnold	49
4	The Settler's Demise: Decolonization and Mental Breakdown in 1950s Kenya Will Jackson	73
Part II	Imperial Panics and Discursive Responses	97
5	Mass-Mediated Panic in the British Empire? Shyamji Krishnavarma's 'Scientific Terrorism' and the 'London Outrage', 1909 Harald Fischer-Tiné	99

6	The Art of Panicking Quietly: British Expatriate Responses to ‘Terrorist Outrages’ in India, 1912–33 Kama Maclean	135
7	Mirrors of Violence: Inter-racial Sex, Colonial Anxieties and Disciplining the Body of the Indian Soldier During the First World War Gajendra Singh	169
Part III Practical and Institutional Counter-measures		199
8	Colonial Panics Big and Small in the British Empire (1865–1907) Norman Etherington	201
9	Imperial Fears and Transnational Policing in Europe: The ‘German Problem’ and the British and French Surveillance of Anti-colonialists in Exile, 1904–1939 Daniel Brückenhaus	225
10	Repertoires of European Panic and Indigenous Recaptures in Late Colonial Indonesia Vincent Houben	259
11	‘The Swiss of All People!’ Politics of Embarrassment and Dutch Imperialism around 1900 Bernhard C. Schär	279

Part IV ‘Knowledge’ and ‘Ignorance’	305
12 Arrested Circulation: Catholic Missionaries, Anthropological Knowledge and the Politics of Cultural Difference in Imperial Germany, 1880–1914 Richard Hölzl	307
13 ‘The Strangest Problem’: Daniel Wilberforce, the Human Leopards Panic and the Special Court in Sierra Leone Christine Whyte	345
14 Critical Mass: Colonial Crowds and Contagious Panics in 1890s Hong Kong and Bombay Robert Peckham	369
Index	393

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

EDITOR

Harald Fischer-Tiné is Professor of Modern Global History at ETH Zurich. His research interests include transnational and global history, the history of knowledge, the history of South Asia (from the eighteenth to the twentieth centuries), and the history of colonialism and imperialism. His monographs include Low and Licentious Europeans: Race, Class, and White Subalternity in Colonial India (2009) and a biography of an Indian revolutionary (Shyamji Krishnavarma: Sanskrit, Sociology and Anti-imperialism, 2014). Most recently, he has co-edited, with Patricia Purtschert, Colonial Switzerland: Rethinking Colonialism from the Margins (2015).

CONTRIBUTORS

David Arnold is Emeritus Professor of Asian and Global History at Warwick University. He has published widely on the history of South Asia, on social and environmental history and on the history of science, technology and medicine. He is the author of many monographs, including Science, Technology and Medicine in Colonial India (2000), The Tropics and the Traveling Gaze (2006) and Toxic Histories: Poison and Pollution in Modern India (2016).

Daniel Brückenhaus is Assistant Professor at Beloit College, Wisconsin. He received his PhD from Yale University and spent a year as a postdoctoral fellow at the Max Planck Institute for Human Development in Berlin. He has published ‘The Origins of Trans-imperial Policing: British–French Government Cooperation in the Surveillance of Anti-colonialists in Europe, 1905–1925’ in Volker Barth and Roland Cvetkovski (eds), Imperial Co-operation and Transfer, 1870–1930 (2015) and ‘Radicalism’ in Gita Dharampal-Frick et al. (eds), Key Concepts in Modern Indian Studies (2015).

Norman Etherington is Emeritus Professor of the Department of History, University of Western Australia. His research interests include African history, the history of the British Empire and, beyond that, the history and heritage of the urban built environment, art and literature in the age of imperialism and the history of Christian missions. He is the author of Missions and Empire (2005) and Mapping Colonial Conquest: Australia and Southern Africa (2007).

Richard Hölzl is a lecturer and researcher at the Georg-August-Universität in Göttingen and Theodor Heuss Lecturer at the New School for Social Research. Currently, he is conducting a German Science Foundation project entitled ‘Conversion, Civilisation, Development? Catholic Missionaries between Germany and East Africa 1880 to 1945’. He is the author of Umkämpfte Wälder. Die Geschichte einer ökologischen Reform in Deutschland 1760–1860 (2010) and has co-edited, with Rebekka Habermas, Mission global – Eine Verflechtungsgeschichte seit dem 19. Jahrhundert (2014).

Vincent Houben is Professor at the Institute for Asian and African Studies at the Humboldt-University, Berlin. His areas of research are modern and contemporary Southeast Asian history and society (from the nineteenth to the twenty-first centuries), colonial history, native states and indirect colonial rule. His publications include Coolie Labour in Colonial Indonesia: A Study of Labour Relations in the Outer Islands, c. 1900–1940 (1999) (with J.T. Lindblad) and The Emergence of a National Economy: An Economic History of Indonesia, 1800–2000 (with Howard Dick, J. Thomas Lindblad and Thee Kian Wie, 2002).

Will Jackson is Lecturer in Imperial History at the University of Leeds. His main research interests are imperial history, settler colonial history, African history, decolonization, the history of the emotions and the history of Psychiatry. He is the author of Madness and Marginality: The Lives of Kenya’s White Insane (2013) and has co-edited a volume with Emily Manktelow, Subverting Empire: Deviance and Disorder in the British World (2015).

Dane Kennedy is Elmer Louis Kayser Professor of History and International Affairs at the Columbian College of Arts & Sciences at the George Washington University in Washington DC. His research interests focus on British imperial, modern British and world history. He is the author of The Highly Civilized Man: Richard Burton and the Victorian World and The Last Blank Spaces: Exploring Africa and Australia (2013). Most recently, he edited the volume Reinterpreting Exploration: The West in the World (2014).

Kama Maclean is Associate Professor of South Asian and World History in the School of Humanities at the University of New South Wales. Her research interests relate to north India, including nationalist mobilization, the politics of pilgrimage, theories of social communication and inter-colonial histories. She has published two monographs: Pilgrimage and Power: The Kumbh Mela in Allahabad (2008) and A Revolutionary History of Interwar India: Violence, Image, Voice and Text (2015).

Robert Peckham is Associate Professor of History at the University of Hong Kong, where he directs the Centre for the Humanities and Medicine. He has published widely on the history of medicine and empire. His recent publications include Epidemics in Modern Asia (2016) and the edited volumes Disease and Crime: A History of Social Pathologies and the New Politics of Health (2014) and Empires of Panic: Epidemics and Colonial Anxieties (2015).

Bernhard C. Schär is a postdoctoral researcher at the ETH Zurich's Institute of History. His areas of research include the history of science, Swiss and Dutch colonialism, Swiss history and the history of the Roma, Sinti and Yeniche people. He is the author of Tropenliebe. Schweizer Naturforscher und niederländischer Imperialismus in Südostasien um 1900 (2015). He has also co-edited several volumes, most recently (together with Patrick Kupper), Die Naturforschenden. Auf der Suche nach Wissen über die Schweiz und die Welt, 1800–2015 (2015).

Gajendra Singh is a lecturer at the University of Exeter. His research interests lie in the histories of colonialism and, in particular, the hybridities of Empire. He is the author of The Testimonies of Indian Soldiers and the Two World Wars: Between Self and Sepoy (2014) and several articles in peer-reviewed journals.

Christine Whyte is a Leverhulme Early Career Fellow associated with the Centre for the Study of Colonialisms at the University of Kent. She obtained her PhD at ETH Zurich and worked afterwards as a Postdoctoral Research Fellow at the Bayreuth Academy of Advanced African Studies. She has published several articles on the history of slavery and abolition in Africa in journals and edited volumes.

LIST OF FIGURES

Fig. 5.1	Shyamji Krishnavarma during his London years (c. 1905)	105
Fig. 5.2	Lady Curzon Wylie trying to help her dying husband while witnesses of the murder are overpowering M.L. Dhingra. Contemporary reconstruction of the 'London outrage' in a painting by Cyrus C. Cuneo	116
Fig. 11.1	Willem Brugman in a white uniform, right arm akimbo, in the middle, accompanied the Sarasins on all of their important expeditions. In the foreground are the rajas of Palu bay, who allowed the Swiss to pass through their territory in the summer of 1902 only because they were pressured by Dutch gunboats (photo from the archive of the Museums für Kulturen, Basel)	295
Fig. 13.1	Daniel Flickinger Wilberforce in a ceremonial chief's outfit (used with permission of the United Brethren Historical Center, Huntington University, Huntington, Indiana)	352

LIST OF TABLES

Table 6.1	Statement showing the total number of officials and innocent victims killed and injured [All India], 1930	141
Table 6.2	Statement giving the number of the more important cases connected with the anarchist movement in which bombs were used in 1930	142