Palgrave Studies in New Religions and Alternative Spiritualities is an interdisciplinary monograph and edited collection series sponsored by the International Society for the Study of New Religions. The series is devoted to research on New Religious Movements. In addition to the usual groups studied under the New Religions label, the series publishes books on such phenomena as the New Age, communal & utopian groups, Spiritualism, New Thought, Holistic Medicine, Western esotericism, Contemporary Paganism, astrology, UFO groups, and new movements within traditional religions. The Society considers submissions from researchers in any discipline.

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Tessel M. Bauduin is postdoctoral research associate and Lecturer in Art History at the University of Amsterdam. Her monograph on Surrealism and the Occult was published in 2014, and she has further published on modern art and occultism, Hilma af Klint, automatism, and Jheronimus Bosch as surrealist, among other things. Tessel is coeditor of Surrealism, Occultism and Politics: In Search of the Marvellous (2017). Her current research project on Surrealist Medievalism will be published in 2019.

Sasha Chaitow, PhD, completed her doctoral research on Joséphin Péladan's life and work in 2014 at the University of Essex. With a background in both literature and the history of Western esotericism, she is interested in the interdisciplinary study of the intersection between esotericism and culture and has published a monograph on Péladan (Salonica, 2013; Athens, 2016), several academic articles on Péladan and other topics in Western esotericism. Her work has been published in Spain, Sweden, the USA and Greece on related topics for the general reader. She has delivered numerous academic and public lectures on related subjects and runs art history courses for an adult education centre in Corfu, Greece. Also a prolific artist, she has exhibited internationally and since 2015 has been directing and curating ICON Gallery arts collective in Corfu, specialising in symbolist and sacred art. Her current projects include preparation of her dissertation for publication by Brill, independent research into the philosophical underpinnings of Greek sacred art, and the bridging of her academic research into symbolism with the development of her own art collections for exhibitions in 2018. For detailed information on her academic and artistic activities, visit www.sashachaitow.co.uk.

Giuliano D'Amico is Associate Professor of Scandinavian Literature at the University of Oslo's Centre for Ibsen Studies. His main research interests include the reception and translation history of Scandinavian literature in Europe (Domesticating Ibsen for Italy, Edizioni di Pagina 2013, "Henrietta Frances Lord: Translating Ibsen for the Theosophical Movement", Scandinavica 56.1 2017) and the relationship between esotericism and selected Scandinavian authorships ("Aleister Crowley Reads Inferno: Towards an Occult Reception of Strindberg", Scandinavian Studies 84.3 2012 and "Between Occultism and Drama: Henrik Ibsen and Aleister Crowley", Nordlit 34 2015). He is working on a book project on the Swedish poet Håkan Sandell and Scandinavian retrogardism, an anti-modernist literary movement.

Per Faxneld obtained his PhD (2014) in History of Religions at Stockholm University, with a thesis about "Satanic feminism" in literature, art and occult movements. He has published extensively on esotericism, in top-ranked academic journals like Numen as well as in books issued by, for example, Oxford University Press, Yale University Press, Palgrave Macmillan, Routledge, Equinox, Ashgate, Acumen and Brill. After post-doctoral research (on Lilith in non-Jewish narratives) at Mid Sweden University, and a stint as visiting scholar at Cambridge University, he went on to a position as senior lecturer at Södertörn University, Stockholm. He has co-organized ten international conferences and presented papers at more than 30 such events. Most of his writings have focused on nineteenth-century esotericism, in particular the relationship between literature, visual art and esotericism during this period.

Victoria Ferentinou is Assistant Professor at the University of Ioannina, where she teaches courses on art theory and history of art. She obtained an MA in archaeology from the University of London (2001) and an MA in modern art and theory from the University of Essex (2002). She received her PhD in art history and theory from the University of Essex in 2007. Funded by an AHRC Doctoral Award, the thesis explored the proto-feminist appropriation of occult tropes in the visual and verbal output of Ithell Colquhoun, Leonora Carrington and Remedios Varo. Ferentinou's main research interests include surrealist art and its theory, feminist art and criticism, occultism, aesthetics and the visual arts, and modern and contemporary art theory. She has lectured about, and published articles, encyclopaedia entries and book chapters on, the above themes. She is researching the legacies of surrealism in theory and practice in the post-war era and most specifically the oeuvre of Nanos Valaoritis and Marie Wilson. She is coeditor of Surrealism, Occultism and Politics: In Search of the Marvellous (2017)

Benedikt Hjartarson is Professor of Comparative Literature and Cultural Studies at the University of Iceland. He has been a member of the steering committee and publication commission of EAM (European Network for Avant-Garde and Modernism Studies) since its foundation in 2007. He was a member of the steering committee of the Nordic Network for Avant-garde Studies from 2003 to 2009, and he is a member of the editorial board of a four-volume Cultural History of the Avant-Garde in the Nordic Countries published by Brill/Rodopi. His publications include the monograph Visionen des Neuen (2013) and the following volumes, which he has coedited: Beyond Given Knowledge (2017), Utopia (2015), Decentering the Avant-Garde (2014), The Aesthetics of Matter (2013), A Cultural History of the Avant-Garde in the Nordic Countries 1900–1925 (2012), Regarding the Popular (2011), and Europa! Europa? (2009).

Henrik Johnsson received his PhD in History of Literature from Stockholm University. His doctoral dissertation, Strindberg and Horror: Horror Motifs and the Theme of Identity in the Works of August Strindberg, was published in 2009. His second monograph, The Infinite Coherence: August Strindberg's Occult Science, was published in 2015. His current research explores the relationship between occultism and modernism in the Scandinavian Modern Breakthrough.

Marja Lahelma is an art historian who specializes in Nordic art around the turn of the twentieth century. She received her PhD from the University of Helsinki in 2014. Her doctoral thesis, Ideal and Disintegration: Dynamics of the Self and Art at the Fin-de-Siècle, examined self-portraiture around the year 1900, focusing on works by Pekka Halonen, Edvard Munch, Ellen Thesleff, August Strindberg, and J.F. Willumsen. She has published work on Nordic art and artists, on questions of the self and subjectivity, and on the relationship between art, science, and occultism. Since 2015 she has been positioned as a postdoctoral researcher at the University of Edinburgh with funding from the Alfred Kordelin Foundation. From September 2016 to February 2017, she held a Visiting Research Fellowship at the Institute for Advanced Studies in the Humanities, the University of Edinburgh. She is working on a research project on Nordic symbolism, decadence, and the idea of the north.

Gísli Magnússon, dr. habil., is Lecturer in Danish Literature at the University of Iceland. He received a PhD scholarship from the Danish Council for Independent Research (affiliated to Rheinisch-Westphälische Technische Hochschule Aachen) from 2001 to 2005. His 2008 doctoral thesis on the importance of esotericism and occultism for the Austrian poet Rainer Maria Rilke at Roskilde University was published in 2009 by Königshausen & Neumann (Dichtung als Erfahrungsmaphysik: Esoterische und okkultistische Modernität bei R.M. Rilke). In 2014, he published the monograph Esotericism and Occultism in the Works of the Austrian Poet Rainer Maria Rilke: A New Reading of His Texts. He has also published on the philosophical aesthetics in the works of Pascal Mercier, and in addition to research, he has translated works from Icelandic, Old Norse, German, and English into Danish.

Kristoffer Noheden is researcher at the Department of Media Studies, Stockholm University. He is the author of Surrealism, Cinema, and the Search for a New Myth (Palgrave Macmillan, 2017) and a number of articles and book chapters on surrealism in film, art, and literature. His current project is funded by the Swedish Research Council and examines ecological tendencies and depictions of animals in transnational surrealism.
