The ‘Studies on Entrepreneurship, Structural Change and Industrial Dynamics’ series showcases exceptional scholarly work being developed on the still unexplored complex relationship between entrepreneurship, structural change and industrial dynamics, by addressing structural and technological determinants of the evolutionary pathway of innovative and entrepreneurial activity.

The series invites proposals based on sound research methodologies and approaches to the above topics. Volumes in the series may include research monographs and edited/contributed works. Please send the completed proposal form downloadable from this page (see “For Authors and Editors”) to the series editors.

Acknowledgments

The editorial effort in a volume like this offers the opportunity to extend scholarly knowledge in a collaborative and innovative way. In the case of “Rethinking the entrepreneurial human capital: the role of innovation and collaboration,” this would not have been possible without the support of many friends and colleagues who have not spared comments, suggestions, and criticisms. They cannot be cited here individually because they are numerous. Nevertheless, we owe a special appreciation to contributors, who have patiently followed our suggestions and requests, and in particular those also acting as reviewers, as they added significant value to the book.

We wish to thank Howard Aldrich, Alexander Bryson, Alfredo De Massis, Paul Dumouchel, Frank Hoy, Anita Van Gils, and Francesca Visintin for their support in the organization of the workshop “Together: Collaborative practices in groups and organizations” (held at the University of Bergamo, 18th and 19th May 2016).

The workshop was conceived and developed as joint effort and final event of two research projects:

University of Bergamo “ITALY®” 2014–2015 Research Grant “Modes and places of collaboration” Strategic Project, for which we thank our colleagues at the University of Bergamo, and particularly Gianluca Bocchi, Mara Brumana, Mara Grasseni, Stefano Lucarelli, Roberto Lusardi, Ugo Morelli, and Anna Maria Variato for the valuable collaboration as well as Paolo Buonanno, Lucio Cassia, and Stefano Paleari for their stimulating contributions to our research.

Italian Ministry of Education, University and Research “PRIN” 2010–2011 Research Grant “Scientific research and competitiveness. Variety of organizations, support systems and performance levels” Strategic Project (Grant no. 2010744K3S_007), for which we thank the colleagues from the partner universities, and particularly Gilda Antonelli, Guido Bortoluzzi, Anna Comacchio, Francesco Izzo, Daniel Pittino, Lorenzo Zanni, and Antonella Zucchella.

The book also benefited from a broad international network of collaborations on the topics of entrepreneurship, entrepreneurship education, and entrepreneurial human capital.

We are grateful to Miro Radici, President of the Board of Trustees, and to all the board members of CYFE (Center for Young and Family Enterprise), since its establishment would not have been possible without their understanding and support. Let us also thank our student community, who has enthusiastically supported us by prompting our curiosity through their questions.

It goes without saying that we are grateful to the publisher and the book series Editors for recognizing the value of the relevance of the theme of technology entrepreneurship. Every effort has been made to trace all the copyright holders: if any have been inadvertently overlooked, the publisher will be pleased to make the necessary arrangements at the first occasion.
