

Palgrave Studies in Literature, Culture and Economics

Series Editors

Paul Crosthwaite

School of Literatures, Languages & Culture

University of Edinburgh

Edinburgh, UK

Peter Knight

Department of English and American Studies

University of Manchester

Manchester, UK

Nicky Marsh

Department of English

University of Southampton

Southampton, UK

This series showcases some of the most intellectually adventurous work being done in the broad field of the economic humanities, putting it in dialogue with developments in heterodox economic theory, economic sociology, critical finance studies and the history of capitalism. It starts from the conviction that literary and cultural studies can provide vital theoretical insights into economics. The series will include historical studies as well as contemporary ones, as a much-needed counterweight to the tendency within economics to concentrate solely on the present and to ignore potential lessons from history. The series also recognizes that the poetics of economics and finance is an increasingly central concern across a wide range of fields of literary study, from Shakespeare to Dickens to the financial thriller. In doing so it builds on the scholarship that has been identified as the ‘new economic criticism’, but moves beyond it by bringing a more politically and historically sharpened focus to that earlier work.

More information about this series at <http://www.palgrave.com/gp/series/15745>

Sarah Comyn

Political Economy and the Novel

A Literary History of “Homo Economicus” palgrave

macmillan

Sarah Comyn
University College Dublin
Dublin, Ireland

Palgrave Studies in Literature, Culture and Economics
ISBN 978-3-319-94324-4 ISBN 978-3-319-94325-1 (eBook)
<https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-319-94325-1>

Library of Congress Control Number: 2018950733

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s), under exclusive license to Springer Nature Switzerland AG 2018

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use. The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

Cover credit: Niday Picture Library / Alamy Stock Photo

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by the registered company Springer Nature Switzerland AG

The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

For my parents, Gayle and Daniel

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book has its origins in the comments section of my final paper for the Honours degree at the University of Melbourne, where an inspiring note encouraged me to pursue a postgraduate degree in English Literature. I am indebted to Clara Tuite for prompting me to undertake the PhD which led to this book, and for being an enthusiastic, insightful, and incisive supervisor and a most generous mentor.

I have been most privileged in the advice and support I have received from readers of the manuscript at different stages. Significant thanks are owed to the anonymous reviewer of my manuscript for making astute observations and offering important guidance that helped advance the book. Nancy Armstrong and Jon Mee provided critical advice that assisted me in reshaping my work. Porscha Fermanis and Gillian Russell not only read substantial portions of the manuscript but have been inspiring mentors. Miriam Nicholls read every word (sometimes twice!) with such a perceptive eye and generosity of spirit that I will be forever in her debt. Corinna Box provided much-needed wit, advice, and calm in the final stages.

This book owes a great deal to the support, mentorship, and friendship I received during my time as a doctoral student at the School of Culture and Communication, University of Melbourne. I am grateful to Grace Moore and David Bennett for their guidance and important contributions as supervisors. I am appreciative of the following people who have been wonderful and challenging conversationalists: Emma J. Clery, Justin Clemens, Deirdre Coleman, Liam Connell, Helen Groth, Anne Maxwell, Peter Otto, Andrew Smith, and Bob White. I would also like to give special thanks to Gillian Dow at Chawton House Library for inviting me to spend a wonderful afternoon speaking about Jane Austen, Sanditon, and banknotes. I am grateful for the welcome and encouragement I received from my colleagues in the School of English, Drama, and Film at University College Dublin: Lara Atkin, Danielle Clarke, Lucy Cogan, Nathan Garvey, and Michelle O'Connell.

The research undertaken for this book was augmented by significant institutional and financial support. I am grateful for the funding provided by: the Australian Postgraduate Award, the Amy Gaye Cowper Tennent Memorial Scholarship, the Melbourne Abroad Travelling Scheme, the Graduate Research in Arts Travel Scheme, the National University of Ireland Publication Scheme, the School of Culture and Communication Dickens Universe funding, and the Romantic Studies Association of Australasia Postgraduate travel scholarship. I am also very appreciative of the workshop group at the Dickens Universe in 2011 that read and commented on early drafts of my introduction. In my most recent position as a European Research Council postdoctoral fellow on the SouthHem project at UCD, I have been undertaking new research; but the fellowship has nonetheless afforded me the time and space to complete this monograph and I am very grateful for that opportunity. I would also like to thank and acknowledge the welcome and assistance I received at the following archives and libraries: Ayn Rand Archives, a department of the Ayn Rand Institute; Chawton House Library; The Henry W. and Albert A. Berg Collection of English and American Literature, New York Public Library; the Hoover Institution, Stanford University; King's College Library, Cambridge University; and the Western Manuscripts, British Library. I would like to give particular thanks to Jeff Britting, curator at the Ayn Rand Archives, for his crucial assistance during my research and guidance in obtaining permissions. Thanks to Darren Bevin, Becky Filner, Jacqui Grainger, Patricia McGuire, and Jenniffer Woodson for sharing their extensive archival knowledge with me. I am indebted to the following people and institutions for assisting me in the process of obtaining permissions to publish manuscript material: Sarah Baxter, the Society of Authors; Lyndsi Barnes, New York Public Library; Peter Monteith and Peter Jones, King's College Library; and Allison Theveney, Greenspan Associates. I am grateful to the following copyright holders for granting permission to publish: Alan Greenspan, the Ayn Rand literary representative, the Provost and Scholars of King's College Cambridge, and the Society of Authors.

An earlier version of a section in Chap. 7 appeared in Literature as Translation/Translation as Literature, edited by Chris Conti and James Gourley (Newcastle upon Tyne: Cambridge Scholars Publishing, 2014). I am grateful to Cambridge Scholars Publishing for granting me permission to reprint this material here and for Elizabeth Cook's assistance in the process. At Palgrave, I would like to thank Allie Bochicchio, Benjamin Doyle, and Rachel Jacobe for their professionalism and invaluable guidance throughout the publishing process. Many thanks to Liz Fawcett for her patience and assistance in developing the index.

It takes a village to write a book and I am truly grateful for the support I received from mine throughout. I have been incredibly lucky to have shared many a conference with an inspiring group of Romanticists: Amelia Dale, Elias Greig, Alexandra Hankinson, Meegan Hasted, Michael Falk, Neil Ramsay, and Sarah Sharp. I would also like to thank the wonderful Culture and Communication Graduate Committee who helped me through the final year of my studies: Emily, Flick, Holly, Scott, Stuey, and Tim. At Trinity College I would like to thank Mark, Jennifer, Robin, Dianne and Sashi. Special thanks to my dear friends who read, commented, helped, and supported: Alaina, Bella, Corey, Lauren, Navarre, Sinead, Sarah B., and Suzie.

This book would never have been completed without the love and support of my family. I am grateful to my cousin Kerry and my aunt Clarice for their wise words and encouragement. Thank you to Monty for the many walks and giggles. Thank you to Anthony, whose sense of humour and calm, love, and kindness make everything achievable. To my brother, Joshua, thank you for being there from the beginning and through it all.

Finally, to my parents, Gayle and Daniel, to whom I dedicate this book: thank you for your unwavering faith in me.

CONTENTS

1	Introduction	1
	Value and Representation	3
	The Character of Homo Economicus	5
	The Empathic Imagination	10
	The Narrative of Homo Economicus	12
2	The Contested Birth of Homo Economicus	29
	The Crisis of Value and the Literary Discourse	36
	The Critical Enclosure of the Text	47
	The Division of Labour and Speculative Rhetoric	52
	Self-improvement and the Impartial Spectator	55
3	The Speculative World of Sanditon	63
	The Text and the Textual Place	66
	Imagined Economies, Imagined Disorders	68
	Ricardo's Theory of Rent and Modern Sanditon	70
	The Comparative Value of Austen and Ricardo	76
4	A Marginal Life in Great Expectations	93
	The Optative Mood: Residues of a Past Life	95
	A Parvenu Civilisation	105
	The Spectral Presence of Homo Economicus	114

5	Woolf, Keynes, and the Compulsion to Consume	133
	The Specificity of the General	138
	Historians of Genre	148
	Fragments of Empire	153
	The (In)consumable and Inconsolable	160
6	The Neoliberal Ideologue	173
	The Political Backdrop to an Economic Revolution	175
	Moral Equilibrium	182
	Contemporary Randian Impulses	195
7	The Asymmetric Prostate: Symptoms of a Failed Technocrat in Cosmopolis	209
	The Ascent of Information Technology	214
	Zeptoseconds and Reading Economic Data	221
	Value and Authenticity	231
8	Coda	249
	Selected Bibliography	255
	Index	273