Acknowledgements

There are many people and organisations that deserve my thanks for the inspiration and creation of this book. The ideas, methods and approaches have been developed through a combination of personal experience and the adaptation of the teachings of those who have travelled this road before me. In this respect, I am particularly grateful for the work of Geoffrey Moore, John Mullins, Mike Southon, Chris West and Michael Porter.

I would also like to thank those who have helped in the many enterprise programmes and seminars that I have been involved with. These organisations include the Universities of Reading, Portsmouth, Warwick and Sunderland, Harrison Goddard Foote, Dickinson Dees, Boulton Wade Tennant, Boyes Turner, Coffin Mew & Clover and Beresfords & Co.

This second edition has also benefited through the many companies I have been able to work with directly such as Cybula Ltd and through the many projects funded by Innovate UK.

Last, but by no means least, I thank my wonderful wife, and not just for updating all the diagrams in this edition.
