

The Coleridge Legacy

Philip Aherne

The Coleridge Legacy

Samuel Taylor Coleridge's Intellectual Legacy
in Britain and America, 1834–1934

palgrave
macmillan

Philip Aherne
King's College London
London, UK

ISBN 978-3-319-95857-6      ISBN 978-3-319-95858-3 (eBook)
<https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-319-95858-3>

Library of Congress Control Number: 2018948204

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s), under exclusive licence to Springer
Nature Switzerland AG 2018, corrected publication 2018

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use.

The publisher, the authors, and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication.
Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

Cover image: Samuel Taylor Coleridge's study in Highgate, Haringey, London, c1835.

Artist: George Scharf

Cover credit: Heritage Image Partnership Ltd/Alamy Stock Photo

Cover design: Fatima Jamadar

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by the registered company

Springer Nature Switzerland AG

The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

For my parents

In memoriam
R. D. Treece
1925–2008

---

The frontmatter of this book was revised: the dedication was inadvertently set incorrectly and has now been amended.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

My first and greatest debt is to my parents, Daniel and Eileen Aherne: without their support the work required to produce this book would simply not have been possible; accordingly, it is dedicated to them. I would also like to thank my siblings, their partners and progeny: Jenny, Christopher, Simon, Patrick, Sara, Adam, Lucy, Sophia and James.

Research can be a lonely business, and in that regard, I am grateful for the company of my friends, many of whom have patiently allowed me to bore on about a subject of no real interest to them for longer than courtesy required: James Lowe, Tom Russell, Tom Dods, Steven Taylor, Harry and Laura Hurrell, Christopher Lloyd, Melissa Oppenheim, Greg Lim, Rob Sinclair, James McGrady, Phillippe Roesle, Fariha Shaikh, Gerard Miles, Jon Cooper, Jack Boteler, Jake Rowley and Shiva-Shankar Mysore. Simon Jones and Darren McFarland were kind and generous hosts during many research trips to Oxford.

The majority of this work was undertaken whilst I was a research student in the English Department of King's College London, 2010–2014. I am grateful to the Graduate School of King's College London for awarding me a King's Alumni Bursary and a King's Continuation Scholarship. The British Association of Romantic Studies (both the International and Early Career conferences) and The Friends of Coleridge provided me with opportunities, and funding, to present my work at various stages. I would also like to thank the Symbiosis Conferences in 2013 and 2015, the Midlands Romantic Seminar, the Oxford Romanticism Conference, and the Coleridge and Contemplation conference in Kyoto, Japan.

A number of colleagues have been very generous in their guidance, advice and friendship, and deserve my gratitude: Jo Taylor, Beatrice Turner, Ewan Jones, Matthew Sangster, Matthew Ward, Helen Stark, Tom Owens, Kerri Andrews, Douglas Hedley, Peter Cheyne, Charles Mahoney, Matthew Scott, Eric Nye, Graham Davidson, Justin Shepherd, Emily Stanback, Jim Mays, Paul Cheshire, Robin Whittaker, Nicola Watson, David Ruderman, Greg Leadbetter, James Engell, Samantha Harvey, Jeffrey Barbeau, Michael Gamer, Nick Halmi, Jeff Strabone, Karen Swann, Murray Evans, Suzanne Webster, Fred Burwick and David Russell. William Mander kindly shared essays from The Oxford Handbook of British Philosophy in the Nineteenth Century before it was published. I would also like to thank my teachers from my MA in Eighteenth-Century Studies at King's, including Clare Brant, Elizabeth Eger, Ian McBride, Matthew Bell and Adam Sutcliffe, the last of whom introduced me to intellectual history, laying the ground for this book. Additionally, I want to express my gratitude to my tutors from Merton College, Oxford: Richard A. McCabe, Tom MacFaul, Guy Cuthbertson, Kate McClune and Jonathan Thorpe.

I would especially like to thank my former colleagues at King's, James Whitehead and Monika Class, for offering detailed comments on this work at the up-grade stage; Jamie was an enthusiastic and companionable secondary supervisor, and Monika kindly saved me from numerous philosophical errors. Additionally, Seamus Perry and Kathleen Wheeler were kind, insightful and encouraging examiners.

I am grateful to Ben Doyle, for his patience and commitment to this project, and to Camille Davies for her help during the submission and publication process. I am also grateful to the two anonymous readers for their advice and encouragement. I would like to thank OUP for their permission to republish here my essay 'The 'way of seeking': The Coleridgean Development of Utilitarianism in Cambridge', which originally appeared in Coleridge and Contemplation (Ed. Peter Cheyne). I would also like to thank (again) James Lowe, Tom Russell and Guy Cuthbertson for offering notes on the revised introduction, and especially to Greg Lim for scrupulously proofreading the entire manuscript and receiving only a pizza as payment; Fariha Shaikh also deserves a second mention for her invaluable advice on how to compile an index.

I would like to express my considerable gratitude to my former Ph.D. supervisor Neil Vickers: this project began with the question ‘what do you know about the Cambridge Apostles?’ back in December 2009, and from then on Neil has been an unfailing source of encouragement and guidance, patiently tolerating periods of lengthy silence and tirelessly supporting my ambition, long after the Ph.D. came to its formal conclusion. I am grateful for his friendship, and can pay him no greater compliment than to say he is the ‘vivifying impulse’ of this book.

In finishing up the work on the final manuscript, I came across this comment in a review of the Shawcross Biographia, dated 1908: ‘To draw out fully what [Coleridge] achieved as a writer, and what mental forces, still at play, he quickened as a thinker, is a task so far unperformed, requiring subtlety and patience and no small measure of philosophic and literary sense’. I hope the following is an adequate contribution to this task, which will hopefully be continued by those with more subtlety, patience and sense than I possess.

TEXTUAL NOTE

Readers should note that second and subsequent citations throughout each chapter will cite the author's name and the title of the book in an abbreviated form. Multiple works by the same order are cited chronologically according to date of publication in the bibliographies. If a series of volumes (i.e. Coleridge's letters or notebooks) is published over a number of years, the first date is used.

CONTENTS

|          |   |           |
|----------|---|-----------|
| 1 | Introduction: The Elusive Legacy   | 1  |
|          | Bibliography   | 18        |
| 2 | The Sad Ghost: Coleridge as the Sage of Highgate                         | 21 |
| 2.1      | The Design of Education and Influence in Coleridge'sLater Works     | 22        |
| 2.2      | Teacher and Talker: Accounts of Coleridge's Monologue                    | 30        |
| 2.3      | Fragment, Aphorism and Coleridge's Intellectual Process                  | 37        |
|          | Bibliography   | 51        |
| 3 | The Ruined Man: Coleridge's Posthumous Reputation                        | 55 |
| 3.1      | The Repetition of Criticism: William Hazlitt to LeslieStephen       | 56        |
| 3.2      | The Argument for Ownership: J. C. Hare to SaraColeridge             | 63        |
| 3.3      | Coleridge's Enduring Popularity: Lyman Atwaterto I. A. Richards     | 70        |
|          | Bibliography   | 84        |
| 4 | The Power of Criticism: Poetry, Aestheticism,and Literary Criticism | 89 |
| 4.1      | The Creation of the Poet: William Wordsworth to AlfredTennyson      | 90        |

|          |   |     |
|----------|---|-----|
| 4.2      | Religious Aestheticism: John Ruskin to Arthur Symons                           | 100 |
| 4.3      | Twentieth-Century Critical Theories: T. S. Eliot to John Dewey                 | 106 |
|          | Bibliography   | 122 |
| 5 | The Construction of Doubt: Reflection, Faith, and the Knowledge of God         | 127 |
| 5.1      | Epistemology and Aphorism: James Marsh to William James                        | 128 |
| 5.2      | The Evidence of Faith: James Marsh to John Dewey                               | 138 |
| 5.3      | Religion and Philosophy: Horace Bushnell to William James                      | 145 |
|          | Bibliography   | 161 |
| 6 | The Endurance of Idealism: Ethics, Epistemology, and the Self                  | 169 |
| 6.1      | Utilitarianism in Cambridge: J. C. Hare to Henry Sidgwick                      | 170 |
| 6.2      | Reflective Consciousness: Ralph Waldo Emerson to John Dewey                    | 178 |
| 6.3      | The Dynamic Model of the Self: John Stuart Mill to John Dewey                  | 184 |
|          | Bibliography   | 196 |
| 7 | The Religion of Politics: The State, the Church, and Political Economy         | 201 |
| 7.1      | The Moral Unity of the State: Thomas Carlyle to John Dewey                     | 203 |
| 7.2      | The Democratic Purpose of the Church: F. D. Maurice to John Henry Newman       | 209 |
| 7.3      | The 'Commercial Spirit' and Ethical Capitalism: Thomas Carlyle to T. H. Green  | 217 |
|          | Bibliography   | 232 |
| 8 | The Harmony of Society: The Clerisy, Liberal Education and the Idea of Culture | 239 |
| 8.1      | The Educated Elite: F. D. Maurice to T. H. Green                               | 240 |
| 8.2      | Intellectual Cultivation: Thomas Arnold to John Dewey                          | 248 |

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| 8.3 Harmonious Development: Matthew Arnold to T. S. Eliot | 256 |
| Bibliography  | 272 |
| 9 Conclusion: The Coleridgean Vocation                    | 279 |
| Bibliography  | 287 |
| Index   | 289 |