

The New Antiquity

Series Editor
Matthew S. Santirocco
New York, NY, USA

Over the past two decades, our understanding of the ancient world has been dramatically transformed as classicists and other scholars of antiquity have moved beyond traditional geographical, chronological, and methodological boundaries to focus on new topics and different questions. By providing a major venue for further cutting-edge scholarship, The New Antiquity will reflect, shape, and participate in this transformation. The series will focus on the literature, history, thought, and material culture of not only ancient Europe, but also Egypt, the Middle East, and the Far East. With an emphasis also on the reception of the ancient world into later periods, The New Antiquity will reveal how present concerns can be brilliantly illuminated by this new understanding of the past.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

A great debt of thanks is owed to Dr. Marta Garcia Morcillo (University of Roehampton) for her time and expertise during crucial periods in the development of this volume and its theoretical underpinnings. We would also like to thank the Institute of Classical Studies that hosted the Masks, Echoes, Shadows colloquium in 2012, co-organised with Dr. Joanna Paul (The Open University), and The Open University (UK) for their support.

At Palgrave Macmillan we would like to thank Matthew S. Santirocco, editor of The New Antiquity series, and Vicky Bates, editorial assistant for Literature and Theatre & Performance, for their help and professionalism. Many thanks also to the anonymous reviewers whose insightful comments helped us to refine and improve our work.

Anastasia owes a great debt of thanks to Professor Kerry Taylor, Head of the School of Humanities at Massey University, for his support of my work and his generosity in furnishing me with two travel grants that furthered my work on this project.

Finally, we are very grateful to all our contributors for their dedication, hard work, and patience. This volume would not have been possible without all of you.
