

Care of the World

---

STUDIES IN GLOBAL JUSTICE

---

VOLUME 11

Series Editor

Deen K. Chatterjee, University of Utah, Salt Lake City, UT, U.S.A.

Editorial Board

Elizabeth Ashford, University of St. Andrews, U.K.

Gillian Brock, University of Auckland, New Zealand

Simon Caney, Oxford University, U.K.

Michael Doyle, Columbia University, U.S.A.

Andreas Follesdal, University of Oslo, Norway

Carol Gould, Hunter College, U.S.A.

Virginia Held, City University of New York, U.S.A.

Alison Jaggar, University of Colorado, U.S.A.

Jon Mandle, SUNY, Albany, U.S.A.

Richard W. Miller, Cornell University, U.S.A.

Sanjay Reddy, The New School for Social Research, U.S.A.

Joel H. Rosenthal, President, Carnegie Council for Ethics and International Affairs

Kok-Chor Tan, University of Pennsylvania, U.S.A.

Leif Wenar, King's College London, U.K.

Veronique Zanetti, University of Bielefeld, Germany

Aims and Scope

In today's world, national borders seem irrelevant when it comes to international crime and terrorism. Likewise, human rights, poverty, inequality, democracy, development, trade, bioethics, hunger, war and peace are all issues of global rather than national justice. The fact that mass demonstrations are organized whenever the world's governments and politicians gather to discuss such major international issues is testimony to a widespread appeal for justice around the world.

Discussions of global justice are not limited to the fields of political philosophy and political theory. In fact, research concerning global justice quite often requires an interdisciplinary approach. It involves aspects of ethics, law, human rights, international relations, sociology, economics, public health, and ecology. Springer's new series Studies in Global Justice up that interdisciplinary perspective. The series brings together outstanding monographs and anthologies that deal with both basic normative theorizing and its institutional applications. The volumes in the series discuss such aspects of global justice as the scope of social justice, the moral significance of borders, global inequality and poverty, the justification and content of human rights, the aims and methods of development, global environmental justice, global bioethics, the global institutional order and the justice of intervention and war.

Volumes in this series will prove of great relevance to researchers, educators and students, as well as politicians, policy-makers and government officials.

For further volumes:

<http://www.springer.com/series/6958>

Elena Pulcini

Care of the World

Fear, Responsibility and Justice in the Global Age

Translated by Karen Whittle

 Springer

Elena Pulcini
Dipartimento di Filosofia
Universita' Degli Studi Di Firenze
Firenze, Florence, Italy

The translation of this work has been funded also by SEPS
SEGRETARIATO EUROPEO PER LE PUBBLICAZIONI SCIENTIFICHE

Via Val d'Aposa 7 - 40123 Bologna - Italy
seps@seps.it - www.seps.it

ISSN 1871-0409

ISBN 978-94-007-4481-3 (hardcover)

ISBN 978-94-007-4482-0 (eBook)

ISBN 978-94-007-7465-0 (softcover)

DOI 10.1007/978-94-007-4482-0

Springer Dordrecht Heidelberg New York London

Library of Congress Control Number: 2012945302

© 2009 Bollati Boringhieri editore, Torino

© Springer Science+Business Media Dordrecht 2013, First softcover printing 2013

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are reserved by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed. Exempted from this legal reservation are brief excerpts in connection with reviews or scholarly analysis or material supplied specifically for the purpose of being entered and executed on a computer system, for exclusive use by the purchaser of the work. Duplication of this publication or parts thereof is permitted only under the provisions of the Copyright Law of the Publisher's location, in its current version, and permission for use must always be obtained from Springer. Permissions for use may be obtained through RightsLink at the Copyright Clearance Center. Violations are liable to prosecution under the respective Copyright Law.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use.

While the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication, neither the authors nor the editors nor the publisher can accept any legal responsibility for any errors or omissions that may be made. The publisher makes no warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein.

Printed on acid-free paper

Springer is part of Springer Science+Business Media (www.springer.com)

Translator's Note

I would like to address the use of pronouns in the text. Owing to the subject of the book, with its emphasis on the subject and individual, the singular pronoun appears very often throughout. In light of the gender debate, which pronoun to use is a delicate issue. After giving the matter due consideration, I have decided to use the male pronoun in line with the dominant usage followed until quite recently. It must be understood that at all times it can be replaced by the feminine pronoun.

Karen Whittle

Acknowledgements

First of all I would like to thank friends and colleagues from the Department of Philosophy in Florence with whom I have shared many years of study interests and work projects, and who have had the patience to read and comment on the whole book: Elena Acuti, Renata Badii, Chiara Bottici, Furio Cerutti and Debora Spini for their scrupulous comments; and above all Dimitri D'Andrea for sharing his boundless theoretical curiosity and for his constant and generous openness to discussion.

I am also grateful to Giacomo Marramao, who has been a precious interlocutor for years, for following the book publishing process with such 'care'. I am indebted to Enrico Donaggio for his sharp observations, and his reassertion of our mutual elective interests. Marco Solinas closely followed in particular the final phase of drafting the text with keen suggestions and fond solicitude.

As ever, a book is also the fruit of stimuli received in formal and informal moments of discussion and head-to-heads with colleagues and friends, both when the book was being written and following its publication in Italian. First of all I would like to remember my friends from MAUSS, among others Alain Caillé, Jacques Godbout, Marcel Hénaff, Christian Lazzeri and Philippe Chaniel, with whom I enjoy an ongoing dialogue. But I would also like to mention Laura Bazzicalupo, Luisa Boccia, Liana Borghi, Carlo Altini, Françoise Collin, Pietro Costa, Daniel Innerarity, Ida Dominjanni, Roberto Esposito, Mariapaola Fimiani, Simona Forti, Roberto Gatti, Volker Gerhardt, Marco Geuna, Barbara Henry, Raffaella Lamberti, Virginio Marzocchi, Luisa Passerini, Laura Pennacchi, Michela Pereira, Alberto Pirni, Alessandro Pizzorno, Pier Paolo Portinaro, Giulia Sissa, Joan Tronto, Gabriella Turnaturi and Eleni Varikas.

Particular thanks go to my women friends and colleagues in the 'Travelling Concepts' group (part of the Athena European Network), with whom I have shared intense and fruitful moments of discussion and work for several years: Silvia Caporale, Anabela Couto, Dasa Duhacek, Biljana Kasic, Linda Lund, Melita Richter and Eva Skaerbaek.

An important and permanent stage for comparison for me remains the Seminar of Critical Theory perhaps, above all, in those moments when we have not seen eye to eye.

I would also like to thank all those people whom I have met on occasion of the many debates and conferences on the topics in the book, organized by cultural associations, feminist groups, political youth organizations and volunteer associations, for enriching my cultural outlook and putting my theoretical proposals to the test.

The thorough work by my translator Karen Whittle and my young assistant Agostino Peruzzi has been invaluable for me for the English edition of the book.

Finally, heartfelt thanks go to my husband, Dario, for his patient and thorough reading of the book and his precious advice in terms of psychoanalytical interpretation, as well as for putting up with absences, bad moods and anxieties.

To my daughter Bharti, to whom this book is dedicated, I am grateful for the brilliance of her smile.

Contents

1	Introduction: The Ambivalence of Globalization .....	1
1.1	Global Unification and Local Fragmentation .....	1
1.2	Self- and Us-Obsession.....	4
1.3	Absence and Excess of Pathos .....	7
1.4	For a Relational Subject.....	9
1.4.1	Addition to the English Edition.....	14
 Part I Pathologies of the Global Age: Unlimited Individualism, Endogamous Communitarianism
2	Unlimited Individualism .....	19
2.1	Prometheus and Narcissus .....	19
2.2	Between Unlimitedness and Insecurity.....	28
2.2.1	The Spectator Self.....	28
2.2.2	The Consumer Self.....	31
2.2.3	The Creator Self (homo creator) .....	34
3	Endogamous Communitarianism .....	41
3.1	The Need for Community in Modernity .....	41
3.2	The Need for Community in the Global Age.....	52
3.2.1	As the Response to Unlimited Individualism.....	52
3.2.2	As the Response to Exclusion .....	58
3.3	Struggles for Recognition: Identity and Difference .....	63
3.4	Immunitarian Communities .....	69
3.4.1	The Us–Them Contrast .....	69
3.4.2	Communities without Solidarity .....	76
3.4.3	The Split between Individualism and Communitarianism .....	79

Part II Pathologies of Feeling: The Metamorphosis of Fear in the Global Age

- 4 Modernity and Fear ..... 83
  - 4.1 A Desirable Passion ..... 83
  - 4.2 Reciprocal Fear ..... 86
  - 4.3 Productive Fear ..... 92
- 5 Risk Society: From Fear to Anxiety? ..... 95
  - 5.1 In the Face of Global Risks..... 95
  - 5.2 Fear of the Other ..... 104
  - 5.3 Fear, Anxiety and Global Fear ..... 106
- 6 Spectators and Victims: Between Denial and Projection ..... 111
  - 6.1 Global Risks and Absence of Fear..... 111
  - 6.2 Denial and Self-Deception ..... 118
  - 6.3 Spectators and Victims..... 124
  - 6.4 Projection of Fear and the Scapegoat’s Ineffectiveness ..... 127

Part III Responsibility and Care of the World

- 7 Actors: Relearning to Fear ..... 137
  - 7.1 Vulnerable Humanity ..... 137
  - 7.2 A ‘Loving Fear’: Fear and Imagination ..... 143
    - 7.2.1 Reawakening Productive Fear..... 143
    - 7.2.2 Fear for the World ..... 150
  - 7.3 From Fear of the Other to Contamination: Towards Solidaristic Recognition..... 151
    - 7.3.1 The Challenge of Difference ..... 156
- 8 From Fear to Care ..... 163
  - 8.1 Responsibility For ..... 163
  - 8.2 ‘Responsibility for’ and the Vulnerable Subject ..... 172
  - 8.3 Global Vulnerability..... 181
  - 8.4 Responsibility as Care..... 186
- 9 A World in Common..... 197
  - 9.1 Creating a World ..... 197
  - 9.2 Plural Worlds..... 208

Part IV Care and Justice

10 Care and Justice: The Perspective of the Passions..... 221

10.1 Care Versus Justice?..... 221

    10.1.1 Care Ethics and the Critique of the Theory of Justice ..... 221

    10.1.2 The Affective Dimension of Justice..... 229

    10.1.3 Compassion as a Motivation for Justice ..... 233

10.2 The Passions of Justice ..... 238

    10.2.1 The Experience of Injustice ..... 238

    10.2.2 Envy or Indignation?..... 242

10.3 Beyond Justice: Care and Love..... 248

Bibliography ..... 253

Index..... 267